HERB COMBINATION PLANTERS

Our herb combo planters are available as named selections.

Grown in 12" oval containers in white birch.

Watch for them on our Availability starting mid-April.

HERBS

Herbs are grown for the unique scents and flavors in their leaves, flowers, and seeds. They are commonly used for culinary purposes as they add flavor and enhance the flavor of foods. They are also ornamental in the landscape and some are used for aromatherapy purposes. Herbs grow best in a sunny location with well-drained soil, unless otherwise mentioned. Frequent trimming keeps plants attractive and encourages new growth, which is most desirable for culinary uses.

Herbs are available in:

- 3" container, 16/flat
available in spring
- 1-Quart container, 12/flat
available in spring and summer.

Each pot is shipped with a custom picture label.

Our herb crops will be ready to ship starting early April.

 PLEASE ORDER BY NUMBER OF POTS IN FULL FLATS **

Orders that require breaking a full flat will be subject to a special handling charge of $.50 per pot during March, April and May.

BASIL

A culinary staple used extensively in Italian dishes, including pesto. The flowers attract bees and hummingbirds.

Piccolino | Culinary ○ ♀ ♂ 🌿 🍷 🍷
Ocimum basilicum var.

Neat, uniform plants perfect for pots and garden beds. Leaves are only 1/2" long, which gives this variety an attractive boxwood-like appearance. Small leaves are easily pinched to sprinkle over dishes as a flavorful garnishment.

6-12" TALL X 6-12" WIDE | ANNUAL

MUSHROOM PLANT

Culinary ○ ● 🍷 🍷
Rungia klossii

Lovely, glossy green leaves have a mushroom like aroma and flavor which intensifies when cooking in soups and stews. Requires regular harvesting to encourage leafy growth. Can be eaten raw in tossed salad, tucked into a sandwich, or used as a great garnish. Plants grow best in well-drained soil in warm areas with partial sun.

TOOTHACHE PLANT

Culinary ○ ○ ☞ ☞

Acmella oleracea

A natural anesthetic, the Toothache plant has been used for years as a remedy for pain associated with toothaches. Simply chew the attractive golden flowers or the leaves for a few seconds and you'll notice a slight tingling and numbing sensation in your mouth. It's also used in regional foods to flavor soups, salads, and is mixed with chiles in hot sauces.
