

Plants with Restricted Propagation January 2013

Dear COPF Members:

All plants listed on this report are registered with COPF as restricted plants by member companies who wish to control propagation. The legal right to control propagation may or may not have been established for certain varieties. In Canada, propagation can only be controlled through a Plant Breeders' Right (PBR).

It's important to know that to propagate a plant protected by Plant Breeder's Rights in Canada, growers, including COPF members, are usually required to sign a license first. Being a member of COPF does not automatically give you the right to propagate or distribute all COPF-registered plants. U.S. plant patent owners can legally prevent propagation and distribution only in the United States, but can limit shipments from Canada.

It's unlikely permission to propagate can be obtained for plants on this list, but to get contact information for the registering company, give the COPF office a call or message (1-800-265-1629 or info@copf.org). It is up to every grower member to ensure they are complying with the law regarding propagation and with COPF membership agreements.

While it may be disappointing to find that the plant you wanted to propagate is restricted, you will find that the majority of COPF-registered plants can be propagated. Those plants are included on our 40-page Royalty Report. Feel free to contact me if you have questions or comments.

* Note: all plants added since the previous Restricted List are highlighted.

Victoria Turner Shoemaker, COPF Executive Director – victoria@copf.org
