Blue Lake land lease unresolved

MOUNT Gambier City Council hopes to fast-track a resolution for a historic lease on Crown land bordering the Blue Lake, which forced the closure of the Blue Lake Welcome Centre.

Elected members voted to contact several key politicians and stakeholders in an effort to resolve the tenure, with one senior councillors labelling the handling of the process "disgusting".

A 21-year head licence between SA Water and council expires on December 31 with a new agreement yet to be reached.

Meanwhile, an Upper House MP claims what the government is doing will provide "more security than that".

The vacant welcome centre will have tourism-focused artwork displayed in its windows advertising attractions in the area, with pop-up visitor information sites and mobile catering among the other methods explored to service tourists over summer.

The national carrier announced an expansion of its regional network with the addition of new routes and two new destinations - including Mount Gambier - last week.

While QantasLink chief executive John Gissing said the expansion will provide residents with more choice and competitive fares, Rex has described the move as a "strategy of flooding the regional airline market with additional excess capacity to eliminate weaker regional competitors".

Rex has called for Federal Government intervention to boost the powers of the ACCC.

Blue Lake land tenure tussle

MOLLY TAYLOR

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

MOUNT Gambier City Council hopes to fast-track a resolution for a historic lease on Crown land bordering the Blue Lake, which forced the closure of the Blue Lake Welcome Centre.

Elected members voted to contact several key politicians and stakeholders in an effort to resolve the tenure, with one senior councillors labelling the handling of the process "disgusting".

Long-term Blue Lake Welcome Centre tenants Garry and Trish Turner were forced to close the shopfront after council notified them a new lease could not be granted due to the local government body having no valid tenure over the land.

A 21-year head licence between SA Water and council expires on December 31 with a new agreement yet to be reached.

However, South Australian Upper House representative John Darley contacted The Border Watch last week and said the Department of Environment and Water had notified council it would provide more security over the land than what already existed and stated the current reasoning for not extending the sub-license business lease was not valid.

"They (elected members) may have wished to cancel the lease for some other reason, but they can not use land tenure as a reason because that is not true," Mr Darley said.

"What the government is now doing is providing more security than that."

The Turners also operate the popular tourism business Aquifer Tours, which still has a sub-license to continue operating pumping station tours until June 2022.

During last week's council meeting, Mount Gambier Mayor Lynette Martin said an application to extend joint custodianship of the land had been submitted.

"At time of writing this report, confirmation had not yet been received from Crown lands on stages of the co-custody application, however it is understood documentation is being prepared for presentation and further consideration," Ms Martin said.

Councillor Steve Perryman suggested council contacted department heads in an effort to speed up the procedure, which was supported by elected members.

"Perhaps, what it might be time for is, for council as an organisation on a political level, to write to a few people," Mr Perryman said.

"This is an important tourism asset, it would have been ideal if it was a more seamless process and not the one with the gaps which we are looking at," he said.

Councillor Sonya Mezinec said the way the situation had been handled was "disgusting" and supported council contacting relevant bodies directly.

Council resolved to write to Premier Steven Marshall, as well as the ministers for tourism, Crown Land, environment and water, the Attorney General and Member for Mount Gambier Troy Bell.

Cr Max Bruins asked what would be done by council to ensure activation of the Blue Lake area during the upcoming peak holiday period.

Acting chief executive Barbara Cernovskis said artwork was being designed to display on the windows of the kiosk building, which advertised the Crater Lake precinct walking trails and displayed a QR code which linked directly to council's live chat function.

"We also have an increasingly changing pop-up model with the visitor information servicing so there will be some pop-ups which will be available for three to fourand-a-half hours, serving not just the Blue Lake area but all around high profile sites, particularly through the peak tourism season," Ms Cernovskis said.

"What it would be doing is encouraging the diversion of food and beverage to close proximity brick and mortar sites and whatever that site might be, as well as accommodation to be able to stay.

"We will also be increasing the frequency of some of our mobile food and beverage providers around all our sites that we have so our tourists will be well serviced."

An SA Water spokesperson said the council was leading the joint custodianship application and it was not involved at this stage.

"Through an historical arrangement, we licence a section of Crown Land in our care to the City of Mount Gambier to house the Blue Lake Welcome Centre," a spokesperson said.

"As this licence recently expired, we are working with council and Crown Lands on a new licence arrangement for the longer term.

"With a shared interest in the Blue Lake area, we will work together with Crown Lands, council and the local community to enable a contemporary visitor experience that champions and adds value to the local area, capitalising on its natural beauty, cultural heritage and important operational role in water supply."

Speaking this week, the Turners remained "in the dark" and disappointed but thanked the community for its overwhelming support.

NO TOLERANCE: Substance Misuse Limestone Coast project office Sophie Bourchier and board member Michael Schultz are urging parents to adopt a no tolerance approach to underage drinking and postpone the alcohol debut of teenagers.

'No tolerance'

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

WITH Christmas one sleep away, the region's peak alcohol and drug misuse advocacy group are urging parents and other adults to adopt a zero-tolerance approach to underage drinking.

As increased police patrols and designated driver campaigns and help make our community safer during the holiday season, Substance Misuse Limestone Coast believe underage drinking is one danger often overlooked and dismissed during the festive period

The group say parents are the solution to the underage drinking problem and is encouraging adults to ensure no child is participating in alcohol use.

Substance Misuse Limestone Coast project officer Sophie Bourchier said parents play a pivotal role in driving attitudinal change and zero-tolerance messages were the most protective against alcohol use and consequences.

Ms Bourchier said adolescents are more vulnerable to the danger of alcohol than adults and the longer teenagers delay drinking alcohol, the more their brain has an opportunity to develop without adverse affects.

"Alcohol is one of the most dangerous drugs, it is the one that most people present to hospital with and it it one of the hardest drugs to withdraw from," she said.

"The effects alcohol has on the adolescent brain includes learning, memory and social problems and emotional intelligence problems and can result in alcohol-related car crashes and other unintentional injuries, violence and self-harm.

"Alcohol use can also be linked to long-term health problems, such as breast and bowel cancer, liver problems and high blood pressure."

The call follows the release of a survey of 15-year-old students from four schools in the region, which revealed almost 30pc had tried alcohol by 13 years.

Of the respondents, 29.5pc reported being drunk in their lifetime, with 11.5pc reporting being drunk during the last month.

Substance Misuse Limestone Coast board member Michael Schultz said while serving or purchasing alcohol for a minor was illegal, a number of parents still had permissive attitudes to underage alcohol use.

"If we want to know why it is happening, we have to have a look at the mirror," he said.

"We are happy to just accept that it happens and that needs to change, because to me, we are not sending a good enough message to society.

"Pressure needs to be not only put on kids but also parents, who allow this to happen.

"It is a very difficult position to be put in, but parents have got to stand up."

While the survey revealed an overwhelming majority of parents know where their children are in the evenings, Ms Bourchier raised concerns with unsupervised teenagers being out late at night.

"What good happens for a teenager outside of the family home after midnight," she said.

"This is where kids are drinking away from the outside home and then all of the exposure to the affects of alcohol suddenly increase.

"We are developing sleep guidelines for parents to remind kids need between nine to 11 hours every day, so if kids have to wake up at 9am they should be asleep by 9pm and not laying in bed with their mobile."

Mr Schultz encouraged parents to be clear about expectations and provide information about the consequences of drinking underage.

"At the end of the day, parents need to start questioning their children and make them feel uncomfortable," he said.

"They have to make some hard choices so they can impact their child in a positive way."

MOLLY TAYLOR

KEY components of a complex multi-million dollar engineering project for one of the world's largest aluminum smelters have been built on Mount Gambier's outskirts.

Several vital parts of a 16-metre high dust collector have been designed and manufactured at Nederman MikroPul's Worrolong production facility, ready for shipping to Aluminum Bahrain - the world's largest aluminum smelter outside of China.

It is among the company's largest and most complex projects completed in Australia, with Nederman MikroPul operating from the former McKee Engineering premises for the last 12 months.

The collector features over 800 self-filtering bags and will be used to purify Spent Pot Lining (SPL), an unavoidable waste product of the electrolytic process in the smelting of aluminum and plans.

It is planned to be installed by March next year.

Nederman MikroPul Australian engineering manager Jon Franklin said it was not first time a project of this complexity had been completed in the Limestone Coast, recalling production of similar components around a decade ago.

Mr Franklin said the workshop had manufactured two identical units over a decade ago, which were welded together as full pieces and transported by truck.

"This is all being shipped over in shipping containers so it is basically being built so it can be put together over there, like an Ikea flatpack essentially," Mr Franklin said.

"There is a significant level of complexity involved because it has to be pulled apart and put back together."

INDUSTRIAL VACCUM: Part of a large industrial dust collector being built in Mount Gambier

Workshop foreman Bob Green - a longtime employee at the Hawkins Road facility said as it was being built in different parts, an extra level of attention was needed.

"There is no way we can bolt it together and see in in one piece before it goes over. It just means you have to be much more critical when you are actually measuring things and when it gets over there, making sure it is going to fit together again," Mr Green said.

Mr Franklin said dust collectors were a critical part of processing and every project system was custom-designed and different in its own way.

"It is not like we use a cookie cutter system for these dust collectors, we do have a standard approach but pretty well every one of them has been designed specific to customers needs," he said.

"These guys here (in Mount Gambier) really take pride in what they're doing, they won't just accept what we have drawn, they'll question something and make sure it's what its need to be, opposed to what we are suggesting.

"That is important, especially when we are trying to build these in a flatpack style, which is a critical part of why we decided to have these manufactured here.

Mr Frankin said Dalkar Engineering had also been engaged with the manufacturing and all steel had been supplied from Limestone Coast-based companies, as well as many other components.

Airline to boost growth

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

A SECOND airline in the region will be central to the tourism sector realising its growth ambitions and provide new opportunities for businesses and individuals, Regional Development Australia Limestone Coast chair Peter Gandolfi says.

From March 28, 2021, Qantas will operate five weekly return flights from Mount Gambier to both Melbourne and Adelaide.

The flights will be operated by the airline's 50-seat Q300 turboprop aircraft, with upgraded cabin interiors, offering 500 seats on each route per week.

Mr Gandolfi said last week's announcement by the national carrier to introduce to new routes from Mount Gambier will provide competition in the airline market and potentially increase visitation numbers to the region

"Given Qantas' large tourism network, there is a potential we will see more tourists come to the region and there are opportunities to develop tourism packages for those visiting the Limestone Coast," he said.

"The redevelopment of the Mount Gamier Regional Airport means larger passenger aircraft with increased capacity are able to fly in to the region.

"A second airline will offer more opportunities for individuals to travel at a competitive price and it may also open up opportunities for people willing to establish businesses in the region.

"It will also work for people who want to live here, but conduct business or work in Adelaide or Melbourne.'

QantasLink chief executive John Gissing said the new routes were a great opportunity for travellers to explore the best of regional Australia

"As the national carrier, we have an important role to play in driving tourism and supporting the industry's recovery," he said.

"We know there is significant pent up demand for travel.

"These new flights will help more Australians explore some of the incredible places in their own backyard and drive tourism, which is so vital to the local economies of regional areas.

"We'll be promoting these new flights to Mount Gambier to millions of our frequent flyers across the country in the lead up to the flights commencing next year.

"We're also pleased to be able to offer locals more choice and competitive fares on these routes, most of which have been monopolies for years."

Grant District Council mayor Richard Sage said Qantas' decision to establish routes to Mount Gambier was unexpected, but welcomed the second airline's move to boost tourism numbers.

"Regional Express (Rex) will still be the main carrier for domestic passengers and we hope the business sector taps into Qantas, who are really about beefing up the tourism trade and the fly-drive experiences," he said.

"We hope as a region we can start to work to establish packages for visitors.

"We have a number of experiences such as cave diving, cray fishing, deep sea fishing and bird watching we are able to combine and package for tourists."

Mr Sage was confident both airlines could coexist in Mount Gambier as in the case in other dual airline towns such as Whyalla and Port Lincoln.

"Rex and Qantas definitely will be able to coexist - they do in other routes throughout South Australia," he said.

"Rex have done a fantastic job right from the get go to work with the community to get through the pandemic.

"The devil will be in the detail and there is a lot of detail to be worked through, but it is an excellent opportunity for the community."

Health network pushes for local focus

MOLLY TAYLOR

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

ENSURING the best possible medical services were available closer to home will be a key focus for the Limestone Coast Local Health Network (LCLHN) moving forward.

LCLHN medical services executive director Elaine Pretorius revealed the focus on a 'hub and spoke model' at the network's recent annual general meeting, prioritising Mount Gambier the central point for regional medical specialists.

Dr Pretorius said the concept was an exciting proposition and she hoped it would help provide care for Limestone Coast residents as close to home as possible.

"We would like to start thinking about what we can do safely at all our sites, to prevent people from having to take lengthy trips and then spend 15 minutes in somebody's consult room to then have to drive all the way back here," Dr Pretorius said.

"It is where we start saying our surgeons are based in Mount Gambier, they are our surgeons and are an infinity to the Limestone Coast. "They would be able to go out and provide services in Millicent, Naracoorte and perhaps go as far as Kingston if we can twist their arms to do that.

"We are very grateful to the visiting medical specialists who fly in and fly out, but you know as well as I do, there are 10 or 12 people who are lucky enough to see that visiting specialist and what about the other 100 which are missing out."

Dr Pretorius said she arrived in Mount Gambier with big plans for the health system but implementation of new measures had been impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic - which has produced some positive lessons, the health chief said.

"We have seen Telehealth does not solve everything and it shouldn't be part of every consultation, but there may be a change for us to develop hybrid models," she said.

"This is an exciting opportunity and we have fantastic plans to fill some of the gaps in our services with Telehealth and bringing care closer to home."

Dr Pretorius said a physical challenge in the Limestone Coast related to the health workforce and the ability to attract qualified and committed individuals of all skill levels.

"I aim to eventually have no locums on-site and again we are grateful for the services they provide us, but having a different person every single day is not team building and not a service where we can do quality improvement," she said.

"We have tried to work very hard to gather a core junior staff member workforce and tried to move away from the locum workforce within the junior medical staff as well.

"We have advertised twice and have had 400 applications for junior regional professionals at the Mount Gambier site, the sad part was not a single one was Australian trained.

"We are still heavily reliant on an international graduate workforce, having said that, they are marvelous and they work hard."

With extensive experience in both metropolitan and country roles, Dr Pretorius said she thought it was key to provide more training opportunities in Mount Gambier.

"People would stay here if they can complete their training here," she said.

"If we are able to provide more training and career opportunities, that there is an opportunity to further your career in the Limestone Coast."

NEWLY APPOINTED: Mount Gambier City Council elected member Christian Greco was appointed as the new deputy mayor during this month's monthly meeting.

Greco named deputy mayor

MOLLY TAYLOR

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

SENIOR Mount Gambier councillor Christian Greco is feeling cool, calm and collected about his new appointment as deputy mayor.

Cr Greco secured the position during this month's council meeting, coming up against former deputy mayor Councillor Sonya Mezinec, whose two-year tenure had expired.

As the Economic and Environment Committee presiding member, Cr Greco said he would resign from the position to allow other elected members to experience new leadership opportunities.

"I am pretty excited that the council has the confidence in me to appoint me to such a role," Cr Greco said.

"I have been a councillor for six years now, so it was good to be able to have their support to be able to do the role and I am essentially looking forward to working with the mayor to continue to the good work we are doing.

"I will be resigning from my presiding member role because I think it is very important at council to swap the roles around a bit allowing new councillors to experience those more senior council positions."

Cr Greco said he would not have nominated for the role if he did not think he was up for the challenge and looked forward to following in the footsteps of Cr Mezinec.

"Hopefully I can live up to the community's expectations in that role," he said.

"I think councillor Mezinec did an absolutely impeccable job, she was fantastic and her commitment to council and the role I'm happy to say was second to none, so I am hoping I can follow in her footsteps."

Council conveyed its thanks and appreciation to Cr Mezinec for serving the role of deputy mayor over the past two years.

The Border Watch values your opinion. If you have a view or wish to comment on any community issue we would like to hear from you.

I would like to take the opportunity to remind people of the importance to be bushfire ready as we head into the most dangerous months for fires in our region.

Nearly 12 months ago, bushfires ravaged our state. The Yorke Peninsula, followed by the Adelaide Hills, Kangaroo Island and then Keilira were devastated when fires broke out.

At Keilira, the blaze was started by a dry lightning strike on the morning of December 30th, and then spread - burning a massive 25 thousand hectares.

Three properties were destroyed, one was a much-loved family farm, while the other two houses were vacant. Stock and hay losses were substantial, fencing and infrastructure was destroyed, native flora and fauna were impacted.

The heartache felt by the community was enormous and was exacerbated by the feeling that due to its remote location and comparably low infrastructure losses, this was 'the forgotten fire.'

I want to assure the community; they were not forgotten.

I want to thank and reflect on the amazing work that was done on the day and in the days, weeks and months following the fire by CFS crews, the SES, farm fighting units, locals, the Kingston Council, Government agencies and by Blaze Aid.

Everyone did their bit - and more to ensure that those who suffered, were supported. The help received was overwhelming, and cemented our knowledge that in tough times, communities come together.

I am so proud of how the Keilira community has recovered.

My thoughts are with them as they approach the one year anniversary.

I know that on the December 30th, I will pause to remember that horrible hot windy day and the lightning that followed.

While many of us celebrate with gifts under the tree, the most special gift of all is the time spent with family and friends over the holiday period.

This is the true magic of Christmas, a time to stop and reflect on those we hold dear.

Enjoy this time and remember to reach out to those who may need a little extra care this Christmas.

Many this year will be suffering financial challenges or psychological sequelae which they may have never experienced before.

I ask anyone who is able, to support the many community organisations that are

2020/2021 budget included COVID-19 funding, deferred rate payments, honoured council sponsorship for events in 2020 and waived rent for council tenants

As we reach the end of the year, I hope we take the time to re-evaluate what is important in our lives as we look forward to the recovery process in 2021.

Council hopes to assist our recovery by accelerating the delivery of works programs to support local business, developing improvement and activation plans for community spaces and places and developing a future based strategy to re-ignite local economy.

There is much to look forward to in our city, including the development of council's largest ever infrastructure project, the Wulanda Recreation and Convention Centre.

The building is taking shape at Olympic Park and I am very much looking forward to seeing how this facility will improve the liveability within our community.

I acknowledge that Christmas can be a lonely time for some people in our community, and even more so this year.

I hope that as many as possible can be reunited with family and friends at this special time of year.

I wish you all peace and happiness at Christmas and may 2021 be all you hope for.

working tirelessly to help those in need.

If we all do our bit by making a contribution to one of the many charities, or buy our gifts or food for the festive table from one of the many local small business that have suffered losses this year, we will ensure we don't leave anyone behind.

The Christmas/New Year period is also a busy time of year on our roads, but if we all do our bit to pay extra attention and drive to the conditions, we can contribute to a safer journey for all.

Finally, please spare a thought for our Australian Defence Force personnel deployed overseas and members of our nation's health network working during the festive season ensuring our nation remains safe and secure this Christmas.

The challenges we face will not dissipate overnight but by working together we will come out the other side of this pandemic stronger.

Here's to a better 2021!

PLAQUE RELOCATED: The 10 plaques lining Port MacDonnell's Trees of Tribute will be moved to the town's existing war memorial.

MINE MOVED: The German mine found washed up onshore in 1943 will be moved closer to the war memorial as part of a major redevelopment of the commemorative site.

HISTORIC UPGRADES: Port MacDonnell and District RSL Sub-Branch president Wayne Manser (far right) celebrates the progression of the groups' final project before its closure with secretary Leonie Feast, committee member Ted Habner, treasurer Jan Cullen-Habner and vice president Phillip Simpson.

For sake of our honoured fallen

FOR almost 100 years, the Port MacDonnell and District RSL sub-branch has honoured men and women who have served, fought and fallen to maintain the freedoms Australians have today.

Before the doors shut at the much-loved sub-branch for the final time, members will undertake a major beautification project on the coastal town's war memorial.

The small but dedicated group will commemorate the memorials' centennial in 2021 with a new area and garden on Sea Parade to recognise those who paid the supreme sacrifice in Australian theatres of war.

Port MacDonnell and District RSL Sub-Branch president Wayne Manser hoped the project will be finished by the 100-year anniversary of the memorial on June 13, 2021.

"We are an ageing club and it has been very, very hard to keep the sub-branch going, but we can't do it anymore," he said.

"It is sad we can't get members for the club, but we can get people to attend the Dawn Service on Anzac Day.

"The new garden will keep an RSL presence in the town after we are gone and it will be a place for people to pay their respects.

"Future generations need to know the local history and we think the new area is a good way to do it."

Grant District Council will provide $10,000 for the project, the recently closed Eight Mile Creek Hall Committee has pledged to provide funding towards the redevelopment.

"Eight Mile Creek is an old settler history area and their history is reflected in Port Mac-Donnnell," Mr Manser said.

The project includes removing the soldier's plaques from under the trees on Sea Parade and relocating them to the memorial area, moving the bomb on the grassed Custom House lawn area closer to the memorial and removing the wooden fence.

A black granite structure with the crests of the Royal Australian Navy, the Australian Army and the Royal Australian Air Force above the text 'Lest We Forget' will also be installed at the site.

The upgrades will complement the existing granite obelisk originally unveiled to commemorate the fallen of WWI, but has since included those who died in service or were killed in action in WWII and the Vietnam War.

WAR MEMORIAL: The location of the soldier's plaques will move to a more central location after the Sub-Branch raised concerns with their prominence and upkeep at the current site.

Top results for small town girl

MOLLY TAYLOR

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

FORMER Penola resident Isabelle Merrett is considering a future in medical science after topping Year 12 results at one of Adelaide's most prestigious schools.

Ms Merrett was named Dux of Sacred Heart College after achieving an Australian Tertiary Admission Rank Score of 99.6, as well as five A grades and merits in biology, research project and religious studies. It was ground-breaking achievement by Ms Merrett - affectionally known at the college as Belle - becoming the first female boarder in history to be named Dux of Sacred Heart in a challenging year where boarding facilities were closed for four months due to COVID-19.

Born and raised in the Limestone Coast, Ms Merrett's school-topping result was impressive considering the college's 300-strong cohort had a 100pc South Australian Certificate of Education completion rate, with 41 students exceeding an ATAR of 90. It was reward for effort from the former Tenison Woods College, who moved to Adelaide two years ago. Although a year of diverse challenges, Ms Merrett said the stress was all worth it.

"My teachers were so amazing and mum and dad were super supportive," she said.

"I think it was tough because I also had nothing else really going on, no distractions and dedicated myself completely to study," Ms Merrett said. "I have to do a speech from school and I'm going to mention I am just a small country girl and I feel so proud that I am able to say I am from Penola. "I just pushed myself, but look where I got, it is just so amazing that I can be up there."

Ms Merrett decided she wished to attend the college to step out of her comfort zone.

"I wanted to extend myself and with a bit of convincing, mum and dad let me go," she said. "I think most students struggled with the pandemic but as a boarding student as well, that closed for a bit. "I had to study from home remotely and

"I had to study from home remotely and when I got back to school, the boarding school still wasn't open so I had to find somewhere else to stay to go to school, which was tricky.

"I think being away forced me to be independent and mature and I think I learnt a lot of life skills from doing that which you wouldn't really have at home."

School principal Steve Byrne said the college community was proud of Ms Merrett's achievements.

"Belle's contribution to the boarding community and dedication to her studies have been second to none and we are absolutely thrilled for her," Mr Byrne said.

"The most remarkable thing about Belle is the challenges she has faced this year being a Year 12 boarding student during a global pandemic.

"With the boarding house being closed for nearly four months, the disruption our boarders faced and overcame was truly inspiring.

"The resilience and courage our students showed, exemplified what it means to be a Sacred Heart College student."

Ms Merrett thanked her teachers and school peers for their help, planning to study a bachelor of medical radiation science in 2021.

Regional job incentive for students making the move

STUDENTS moving to the country to take up regional jobs can receive up to $2000 as part of a State Government incentive to fill vacancies in hospitality, tourism, allied health services or trade sectors.

Domestic and international secondary, tertiary and vocational students are eligible for funding under the Regional Jobs Support and Incentive Program to assist the urgent mobilisation of a seasonal and regional workforce in South Australia.

Traditionally, the workforce comes from a range of sources including interstate and intrastate domestic workers on working holidays and international workers on visa.

Trade Minister David Pisoni said the closure of state and international borders and introduction of Commonwealth job retention programs including JobSeeker and JobKeeper had resulted in a decrease in the pool of available workers.

Additional support will also be available for businesses bringing workers into South Australia as part of the Seasonal Worker Programme and Pacific Labour Scheme to fill critical roles.

Construction has started on the multimillion dollar upgrade, which will boost the hospital's sterilisation facilities and change rooms.

Naracoorte Health Service executive officer/director of nursing and midwifery Pam Schubert said the works will enable residents to receive care closure to home and without the need to travel long distances.

Works to upgrade will be staged over the coming months to minimise service disruption and are expected to be complete by mid-2021.

NEWS 11 Student embodies Olympic spirit

AN ALLENDALE East Area School student who independently operated sport programs to help minimise gender stereotyping has been recognised at a national level.

Year 10 student Luke Bald was selected as one of 20 Australian Olympic Change-Maker program finalists this year, celebrating youths who actively demonstrated Olympic spirit and have driven positive change in their communities.

Nominated by assistant principal Suzie Mitchell, Mr Bald was recognised for golf and dance school sport programs he coordinated.

Video nominations were assessed upon students' ability to demonstrate leadership, social impact, innovation and the inclusion of the 2020 program theme Discover Tomorrow.

Mr Bald was part of the inaugural Australian Olympic Change-Maker Virtual Summit held on September 17, which connected Australian students and schools in one major online event.

The national summit was held virtually this year, in line with government guidelines.

He has lived in the Limestone Coast his whole life and is a long-time Allendale East resident.

Honoured to be recognised as a finalist, Mr Bald said his programs aimed to help put an end to male and female sport stereotyping.

"Dance and golf are the two sports I am involved in and am very passionate about and I wanted to try and break down that stigma around what people think," he said.

"A lot of people think golf is an old man's sport and dance is only for girls and I want people to know that its not the case and anybody can participate in those sports if they want to.

Involving Year 4, 5, 6 and 7 students, Mr Bald was granted $1900 through Sporting

He was more recently granted an additional $2000 through Sporting Schools SA to host a secondary program to which involved Year 7, 8, 9 and 10 students over a three-week period.

As a dancer for 12 years, Mr Bald said he saw it fitting to also host a dance program, which was merged into his class' physical education lessons.

"I taught them correct ways to warm up and stretch before dancing and also a routine which was around two and a half minutes long...They all seemed to really enjoy it," Mr Bald said.

"Once again, to try and break down that stigma.

"I think a lot of people wanted to give it a go because it was something different and it's not something people usually go and try out for."

Mr Bald said he hoped what he had done would encourage people to step out of their comfort zone and give new things a go.

"I certainly hope kids can look at me as I guess a role model and if they want to do something then they should just do it," he said.

Mr Bald thanked the school community for its support.

Allendale East school principal Kylie Smith said Mr Bald was an outstanding young person who had demonstrated many leadership attributes during his schooling.

Ms Smith said Mr Bald had been recognised for his achievements in many other was.

"Luke additionally has been recognised by educators and leaders within our Blue Lake Partnership," Ms Smith.

"Luke has been a STEM Ambassador for our local region for approximately three years and has provided strong leadership, mentoring and most recently invited to judge at a regional competition for primary schools.

"We are all very proud of Luke's achievements and we look forward to continuing to support him in achieving future dreams and aspirations."

McCourt receives college honour

TENISON Woods College student Patrick McCourt positive and caring nature has led to the presentation of a prestigious title honouring fallen air force servicemen.

Mr McCourt received the Tenison Woods Flyers Award for his commitment to supporting the school community in various ways.

The award acknowledges a senior school student who has demonstrated an ability to go beyond what is generally expected of them, put others before themselves and has a strong sense of comradeship.

Marist Brothers Agricultural College old scholars Anthony Casadio, John Friedricks, Reginald Van Leuven and Errol Kavanagh all died while serving as pilots in the airforce and the award is named in their honour.

Mc McCourt has grown his leadership skills and passion for mentoring through his involvement in the Australia Army Cadets for the past four years and has been asked to speak to principals and Australian Defence Force staff members across South Australia.

"I feel as though the Tenison Woods College Flyers were great people that showed a lot of courage, and they are a role model to students within the school, to show them what bravery, courage and respect looks like.'

Award brainchild, Mount Gambier Community RSL president Bob Sandow, said he approached the school around five years ago with a scholarship idea in recognition of the four former students.

"The aim of the scholarship is to reward a student who has had a go, not the most scholastic," Mr Sandow said.

"For some reason, the history about Anthony Casadio and what he accomplished in his short life basically got into my heart.

"Over the years I have gathered whatever I could about him.

"This opened up an enormous response. I am so pleased that people have faith in me to do the right thing with any information given which eventually goes into the RSL museum here in Mount Gambier.'

With the McCourt family dedicated to helping with the college's Stephanie Alexander Kitchen Garden and other areas, Mr McCourt also works a part-time job and volunteers at agencies such as the Sunset Kitchen and a.c care.

He also recently shaved his head as part of a Leukaemia fundraiser, raising $1000.

Mr McCourt said he was shocked to win the award

"It came as a surprise to me. I was very happy about winning the award, I took a lot of pride in it and the things that I have achieved, and receiving the award," he said.

Funding the award with his partner, Mr Sandow said after researching Mr Casadio, he discovered Errol Kavanagh RAN.

"John David Friedrich was next, hiding in plain sight. After discussion, a connection was made to family of John's, and I was able to speak to a Wing Commander of the day, a Roulette leader," Mr Sandow said.

"He was happy to speak to me and I was able to put him in touch with family.

"Then I heard about Reg van Leuven from Naracoorte, another Marist Brothers old scholar.'

Mr Sandow said the school gave the veterans their wings and the forces taught them how to fly.

12 NEWS Galli earns entry

A MILLICENT performing arts student will study full-time at the prestigious Adelaide College of Arts next year following a competitive audition process. Ovation Centre of Performing Arts private student Noelle Galli has not missed a class at the Limestone Coast boutique drama school Ovation since she enrolled three years ago and it has paid dividends for the 21 year old.

"At the time I began searching to find options, there was little going on elsewhere and I wanted a place that would challenge me and was super lucky to stumble across Ova-tion," Ms Galli said. "I tried it, fell in love with the school and it was an amazing time in my life," she said. Ms Galli has fond memories of Ovation, where artistic director Jamie Harding honed her skills.

'Working with Jamie within Ovation's private stream is incredibly intense as he is such a focused and dedicated teacher who really allows you as a performer to take risks in your work and to push your boundaries," she said.

"I got genuine guidance and to really experience what it is like to be an actor.

"He gave me the confidence to believe that if you work hard, you can get results"- Galli said. When Adelaide College of the Arts auditions were held in Adelaide this month, Galli threw everything she had into the intensive process. "You try to relax but you know it could change everything," she said.

"AC Arts is a great program and I wanted the audition to go well as I have seen first-hand the results that the graduates can achieve".

Ms Galli's audition was assessed by a professional, before just 20 students were accepted to begin in 2021 from hundreds that auditioned across the country and the state.

"It was really exciting to know I'd been hand-picked to attend somewhere some of my heroes went," she said.

Boasting industry-standard performance and exhibition spaces, workshops and studios, Adelaide College of the Arts was purpose designed in every detail to achieve excellence in arts training. Centrally located in Adelaide's Light Square, Adelaide College of the Arts is Australia's only tertiary institution housing the study of performing arts, visual arts and design all in one building.

While Galli is under no illusion on how difficult is to carve out an acting career, she is determined to make the most of this opportunity

"This is a step up and a good chance to move towards regular paid work in film and TV and I truly thank Ovation Centre of Performing Arts for providing me with the training to really move ahead and achieve what I felt was the impossible," Ms Galli said. "I really want to contribute and make a mark and contribute to Australia's vast cultural fabric.

"I'm not yet sure where this path will lead me, it could be overseas but all I know is that the possibilities are just endless".

Attending the Adelaide College of the Arts in Adelaide for the next three years, Ms Galli will study acting, movement, voice, film, TV and more from some of the country's leading specialists.

Call to duty

A PAIR of Limestone Coast residents have been deployed to temporarily serve with the Royal Australian Navy during South Australia's high-risk weather season.

Shanen Pulkkinen and Alex Buhlmann have been selected as Navy reservists and have been allocated reserve days as part of Navy's support to government agencies. Navy has permanent and reserve members, as part of an ADF contingent, on-call in locations throughout Australia in order to be available at short notice and will be activated to help communities when directed by the government. Ms Pulkkinen and Mr Buhlmann had previously joined the Navy through a 12-month Gap Year program, and may now be required to utilise the skills developed during that time. The high-risk weather season standby requirement is in addition to the task that Navy members are conducting over the Christmas period to support the Australian community.

MOUNT Gambier woodturners continue to positively impact Australian Defence Force personnel deployed overseas, with handmade pens a personal gift from their home country.

Earlier this year, the Mount Gambier Woodturning Club joined several other organisations in an initiative to support service personnel abroad.

Over 1000 have been made handcrafted and individually packaged - more than 100 of those by Limestone Coast club members - with details sent identifying the timber type, maker and where the pen was made Recently the club's Facebook page received a message of thanks from an Royal Australian Air Force member serving in the Middle East as a maintainer on a C-130J aircraft.

The message expressed gratitude for the gift and commended the high class of workmanship

"Gifts like these make our day over here and we are forever grateful to those in the Australian public who sacrifice their time to support deployed ADF members," the message read.

HARD AT WORK: Mount Gambier Woodturning Club secretary Tom Dermody prepares timber to be made into a pen which will be sent as a gift to Australian servicemen and women overseas

The club has made it a priority to continue producing a new batch of approximately 25 to 30 pens to be ready for distribution before Anzac Day

Club secretary Tom Dermody believed there was more of an appreciation for handmade items now due to growing digitalisation in society.

"With everything becoming electronic, something handmade like that, is appreciated that little bit more," Mr Dermody said.

"Overall it goes over some weeks to get them finished, some people turn them at home, others turn them in work sessions.

'To get direct comment from somebody who has received one kicks things along quite nicely for us and makes us

Club activities resume on January 20 next year and the club encourages new members

We can provide the tools and teach anybody who wants to learn pen-making how to do it," club chairman Peter Cunningham said.

Diesel theft

MORE than 4000 litres of diesel has been stolen or spilt during a theft from a Glencoe property over the weekend.

Sometime between 4pm December 18 and into December 19, an Overland Track property was unlawfully accessed and a large amount of diesel was syphoned from a centre pivot irrigation system. The storage tank was also damaged during the theft, causing a significant amount of fuel to spill on the ground.

The theft and property damage is a timely reminded for property owners to review their security measures and to consider target hardening of storage tanks.

The community is urged to report any suspicious activity at any hour of the day or night on the police assistance line on 131 444.

Driver Asleep At Wheel

A Mount Gambier man will face court after he was found sleeping in his car with his vehicle running.

Police attended the rear car park of a Mount Gambier licensed venue about 2.30am on December 20 after a member of the public located a person asleep at the wheel of a Ford vehicle and notified patrols. Police located a 24-year-old man asleep in the driver's seat of his vehicle with the engine running.

The attending patrol woke the man and submitted him to a driver screening test, returning a result of 0.231 - nearly five times the legal limit. The man was reported for drink driving, his licence was suspended for 12 months and his vehicle was impounded for 28 days.

He will be summonsed to appear in Mount Gambier Magistrates Court at a later date.

Child Sex Crime Arrest

An Adelaide man was remanded in custody after being arrested in Mount Gambier last week on child sex crime charges. Detectives from the SAPOL's Public Protection Branch's Special Crime Investigation Section arrested the 24 year old on December 17 and charged him with aggravated unlawful sexual intercourse with a child under 14 years old and aggravated production of child exploitation material of a child under 14 years old. SERVICE RECOGNISED: Mount Burr CFS volunteers Timothy Blow, Dale Brant and Trevor Schultz receive life membership certificates for outstanding service to the community from CFS Regional Commander John Probert.

Mount Burr honours

THE efforts of three Mount Burr Country Fire Service (CFS) volunteers has been recognised for their dedication and commitment to keeping the community safe.

Long-serving firefighters Timothy Blow, Dale Brant and Trevor Schultz were awarded with life membership for outstanding service to the Mount Burr community and South Australia at a recent ceremony in the groups' newly constructed training shed.

CFS Regional Commander John Probert said the citation was awarded to emergency service personnel who have volunteered for more than 20 years and protected lives and properties through their actions. "The volunteers are certainly not doing it for medals, they are doing it for the community and it is great to be able to give them something back," he said.

"In brigades like Mount Burr, people work together like an extended family and in a lot of cases it is the hub of the community.

"It is nice to be able to recognise those who have shown such a commitment to the CFS and the community as a whole."

Mr Probert praised the efforts of the entire Mount Burr brigade, which he said comprised of around 20 members and 10 active volunteers.

"The volunteers are certainly not doing was upgraded to a two-bay shed and includes a meeting room, toilets and washing facilities.

"It is nice they have a new fire shed, which was supposed to be officially opened right now but was delayed because of COVID-19 and they have a new truck coming in the near future," Mr Probert said.

"These smaller brigades are vital to our communities as they not only provide support to incidents in our area, some of the gentleman in that brigade have been to NSW and the Cudlee Creek fires.

"Our volunteers make a huge commitment and help all communities through their efforts."

Uncaught rock lobster quota rolled over to be determined following consultation with the Rock Lobster Fishery Management Advisory Committee.

ROCK lobster fisheries will be able to carryover uncaught quotas from 2021/22 season to mitigate impacts of market disruption related to China's trade ban and coronavirus.

The government has also brought forward the 2021/22 quota period in the Southern Zone to September 15, 2021.

The latest change follows an earlier announced carryover of uncaught quota from 2019/20 to 2020/21 which aimed to provide commercial fishers additional time to use uncaught quota entitlements in the 2020/21 quota period.

Primary Industries and Regional Development Minister David Basham said if the market disruption continues, some licence holders will not be able to harvest their full quota before the end of the fishing season.

"This can come at a significant economic cost to the community and the seafood business," he said.

"We have worked with the separate seafood sectors to provide carryover quota so if they can't catch their quota this season, they can carry forward into the next year."

A majority of applicants - 98pc - were from women and 60pc were seeking information about an ex partner, while 40pc were seeking information about a current partner.

She said information obtained throughout the disclosure process allows people to make an informed decision about their safety and the safety of their children.

REVISITING HISTORY: Millicent Library local history volunteers Nan Minty, Kerry Lawson, Debbie Reiman and Wendy Thomson hunt through old editions of The South Eastern Times in a quest for information about Millicent-based business Teagle's Excavations.

History buffs keep Millicent past alive

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

EVERY week, a group of researchers meet in the Towers History Room within the Millicent Public Library complex to step back in time and keep local stories alive.

The diligent volunteers are custodians of a veritable treasure trove of information, using microfiche, digital archives and the wetthumb method to recreate the history of some of Millicent's most prominent identities.

The group's latest project involved researching the history of Millicent earthmoving business Teagle Excavations after a request from general manager Kurt Stephan.

"Kurt contacted the library to see if we could find out about the history of the company as he wanted to display a collage at Teagle's new office," Wattle Range Council libraries and cultural services manager Janice Nitschke said.

"It was something I felt our local history volunteers were able to do.

"As we didn't have any dates, it took a couple of days of effort and the group scanned through years of newspapers without success.

"We spoke to a couple of key people who recommended some dates and gave us some other leads to follow."

Volunteer Nan Minty said after days of researching, the group had a breakthrough and discovered a cache of information about the 60-year-old business after searching old "We found out there had been a shipwreck off the coast and Teagle's had been involved in its recovery," she said.

"From there we found out a lot of information about the company and how much Teagle's had supported the community over the years.

"When Noorla Yo-Long was being set up, Teagle's gave them a machine for a week at no charge.

"They are such a big company and through all of the generations the company has provided work for a lot of people."

The group handed over its digitalised findings to the Teagle family at a small ceremony last month and has placed the collated information on its online Portfolio portal.

"The group scanned and converted the files to PDF's and provided Teagle's with all of the information on a USB," Ms Nitschke said.

"The Teagle's were so impressed they have donated a new scanner with will allow us to scan photo negatives."

Alongside the Teagle's project, the historians have spent the last two years transcribing the lifelong diaries of the late James Wilfred "Jim" Andre.

The diaries span from 1929 to 1998 and cover 70 years - or 25,000 days - of Mr Andre's farming life in Furner.

"I find researching very interesting as I am not a native of Millicent and you find out a lot about the history of the town," Ms Minty said.

"It is a great group of people who are interested in history and you also get to meet a lot their own family history."

of other people like family members who are involved.

"It is good to hear the history first hand from family members as it helps you get a better picture of what the person was like."

Ms Nitschke said one of the most challenging history projects was completed by researchers Mary Altschwager and Graeme Richardson, who undertook a five-year quest to uncover information about Millicent resident Tom Towers, who was killed in action in World War I.

The pair spent countless hours documenting the tragic history of the 35-year-old man's life as part of his involvement with the 32nd Australian Infantry Battalion through letters sent by the Second Lieutenant during his station in France in Belgium.

Inspired by letters found in a trunk owned by late historian Bruce Towers, the historians traced his story through correspondence, postcards, newspaper reports, photographs and local information.

Ms Altschwager and Mr Richardson's efforts culminated in a booklet, titled Tom Towers Letters from the Front 1916 - 1917.

"The volunteers play an important role in researching history to acknowledge our past and preserving our history for future generations," she said.

"They are also instrumental in organising records, scanning photographs, indexing and adding to our comprehensive database which will help people who might want to research their own family history."

No pets at Kingston caravans

DOGS will not be permitted in the Kingston Foreshore Caravan Park in the Christmas and January holidays.

Kingston District Council is maintaining its policy position despite a review into its decision and exemption requests from the public.

Following an incident where a child was severely injured during a dog attack, council adopted a new Caravan Park policy including the exclusion of pets during peak periods.

Council received a request from an annual site licence hold for an internal review on the decision, with a report undertaken by Robe Council chief executive James Holyman upholding the decision.

According to Mr Holyman's report, Kingston Council chief executive Nat Traeger said managers at the councilowned Caravan Park do not have the competencies to assess the risk of each pet and the best way to mitigate risk was to exclude pets during times where there was limited opportunity to separate guests.

Mr Holyman said an investigation was undertaken on the position taken by other councils across the state with caravan parks as part of the process to develop the new policy.

"Through this research, it was found that it is common practice to have a policy that excludes pets during peak times," the report said.

"It is understood... that the managers of the Kingston Foreshore Caravan Park are supportive of the new policy and assumed that they understand the risks that need to be mitigated through the policy."

After consideration of the report councillors unanimously reaffirmed the decision to adopt the policy, including an exemption in place for assistance dogs.

The formal complainant has made a further request to council to reconsider the pet friendly status and grant a permit to permanent site owners of caravans to allow dogs in the park from December 14 to January 31 and Easter holiday weekend.

"We utilised our caravan every year and have so for the last 18 years with family and dog, which is under permanent contract," the request said.

"Our site is also fenced both child and dog safe.

"As Christmas looms, we would like to spend our 19th Christmas at Kingston, but cannot do this without our beloved family dog."

At last week's council meeting, elected members voted to maintain its policy position "unless advice from council's insurers or lawyers indicates otherwise".

Kingston aged care upgrade complete

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

AFTER close to two decades of funding pleas, residents at Kingston's Lighthouse Lodge Residential Aged Care Facility will benefit from a new fire safety system following the completion of the $1m project.

The long-awaited upgrade of the State Government-run facility, which includes new fire tanks, pumps, sprinklers and fire detection is finally complete as part of a boost to aged care services.

The need for an upgrade of the Lighthouse Lodge fire protection system was first identified in a safety audit in July 2003 and was initially costed at $58,000 and flagged again in November 2012.

However, no funding was made available to the facility, co-located at Kingston Soldiers' Memorial Hospital, until 2018.

The project started in November 2018, with South Australian owned company Fusco Construction undertaking the upgrade.

Health Minister Stephen Wade said the Lighthouse Lodge project has created South Australian jobs during challenging times due to COVID-19, while delivering enhanced facilities Kingston residents. "Ensuring aged care residents and staff are as safe as possible from a fire is important for shielding against the physical risk and also for mental wellbeing," he said.

"The Marshall Liberal Government made a commitment to boost healthcare services and aged care facilities throughout regional South Australia and these new fire system upgrades are helping us deliver on that promise."

NEWS 15 Generosity a community gift

OVER 2200 meals and hundreds of toys have been donated through two separate charity drives at Mount Gambier Marketplace in recent weeks, with the goods distributed to vulnerable Limestone Coast residents ahead of Christmas

Regional Foodbank Mount Gambier has received more than 1.1 tonnes of food through its annual collection at the shopping centre, bulking up its stock in what is the organisation's peak demand period.

Shoppers have also generously filled a gift collection box positioned outside Big W with donation recipient ac.care distributing 236 toys and eight $25 gift cards to vulnerable families and children yesterday.

ac.care chief executive Shane Maddocks said organisations such as ac.care relied on the support of the community to increase their impact.

"The year 2020 has been uniquely challenging with the impact of COVID-19 on top of the pressures already faced by vulnerable families and individuals," Mr Maddocks said.

"Sadly, as we near the festive season and the end of the year, we are seeing an increasing number of people in need of support to avoid or move past a crisis.

"Some of these people have lost employment or income as a result of COVID-19 and our services are seeing an influx of people at risk of homelessness due to a range of factors.

"Distribution of toys and hampers at Christmas time can provide some dignity and hope to people struggling to cope at this time of year, especially parents under the pressure of having to choose between paying essential bills or providing gifts for their children.

"We hear many touching stories at this time of year from clients and are forever grateful for the community's generous support to help us bring some relief and hopefully joy to people who need it most at this time of year.

Regional Foodbank Mount Gambier branch manager Lynne Neshoda said the demand for food had increased due to CO-VID-19, praising ambassador Vince Versace, Marketplace management and collection volunteers from both Hallmont Estate and Woodlands Grove.

"Christmas is a peak time of year for Foodbank, working around the clock to distribute hundreds of kilos of food and Christmas hampers to those in need throughout the Limestone Coast," Ms Neshoda said.

"We could not have done it without your help.'

OVERWHELMING SUPPORT: The Regional Foodbank Mount Gambier annual food drive received more than 1.1 tonnes of food. Foodbank ambassador Vince Versace enlisted the help of volunteers from Hallmont Estate and Woodlands Grove for the collection.

Rotarians answer appeal call

THE Rotary Club of Mount Gambier West has made a significant donation to the Mount Gambier Mayor's Community Christmas Appeal despite being unable to hold its major fundraisers in 2020.

Club president Andy Stott recently presented $2000 to Mount Gambier Mayor Lynette Martin, continuing the club's support of the annual appeal.

The COVID-19 pandemic has severely curtailed the club's fundraising efforts this year, including its popular food truck at the Generations In Jazz festival, which has also been called off in 2021.

Mr Stott said while the club's ability to contribute funds to community groups had been severely reduced this year, the club felt that the Mayor's Christmas appeal was a worthy cause.

Maria Creek business case

A FURTHER $20,000 will be spent by Kingston District Council to develop a business case for the Maria Creek Sustainable Infrastructure Project after councillors endorsed a budget variation at Tuesday night's meeting.

The coastal town's sole boat launching facility has been closed for more than a year as a result of sand and seagrass accumulation within the channel.

A community focus group comprising of commercial and recreational fishers, businesses, ratepayers, mayor Kay Rasheed and council staff and a First Nations representative has continued its focus on the long-term future for boat launching facilities and progressing a future pathway for Maria Creek.

??"It has become increasingly clear that a strong business case is going to be crucial in determining the preferred pathway for the project and to facilitate any future grant funding applications," a staff report said.??

"Council will need to consider formal endorsement of its preferred pathway upon receipt of a business case early in the new year year in order to support any grant funding applications and provide clarity on its position for the facility as this project has reached its critical point."

Council has allocated $50,000 in its 2020-21 budget for stage two for design associated with sustainable infrastructure by September 2020, with the report estimating the remaining budget was likely to be exhausted within the coming months for ongoing technical support and progression of a preferred pathway.

In September, elected members approved a $214,278 budget variation to purchase a military-designed trackway to be installed at Johnston Avenue to improve beach access.

Following the resolution, council was advised that availability was limited prior to Christmas and further review resulted in only 30m being purchased.

Key to saving rare bird Junction

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

A LARGELY untouched ecosystem near Penola has undergone extensive weed removal to help maintain its native vegetation and wildlife and reduce environmental threats.

Spanning roughly 300 acres, St Mary's Sanctuary is a pristine area filled with native vegetation and is considered a high-priority feeding habitat to the endangered South-eastern Red-tailed Black-Cockatoo.

Due to its significance, volunteer conservation group Trees For Life has worked to remove woody weeds at the site to improve productivity and reduce degradation of habitat from weed invasion.

A team of eight contractors spent around two weeks to treat all weeds within a 100-hectare block and a follow-up visit is scheduled in 12-months time.

The two rounds of treatment were estimated to cost around $20,000.

Trees For Life South-eastern Redtailed Black-Cockatoo habitat officer Cassie Hlava said the sanctuary was particularly important as it contained a remnant patch of brown stringy bark woodland.

"Brown stringybark is one of only three food species of the endangered South-Eastern Red-Tailed Black-Cockatoo. These beautiful birds are regular visitors to the sanctuary," Ms Hlava said.

"Since 1947, 73pc of stringybark habitat has been lost in the South East of South Australia, therefore all remnant patches of this habitat are important.

"The sanctuary also conserves red gum, manna gum and blue gum woodland and provides habitat for a large diversity of woodland birds including the black-chinned honeyeater which is vulnerable in South Australia."

In spring, a myriad of orchids can also be seen at the property, including spider orchids, pink fingers, donkey orchids and purple cockatoo.

The main weeds investing the sanctuary include Boneseed (Chrysanthemoides monilifera), Coastal wattle (Acacia longifolia ssp sophorae) and sallow wattle (Acacia longifolia ssp longifolia).

"Boneseed is declared a weed from South Africa with bright yellow flowers. Emus and foxes spread the round hard seeds which readily germinate and rapidly spread across large areas of bushland," Ms Hlava said.

"Coastal wattle and sallow wattle are two similar looking wattle species which grow into large shrubs and form dense thickets."

Radiata Pine (Pinus radiate) was also being terminated at other sites, which often establishes in bushland next to commercial pine plantations.

Ms Hlava said all listed weeds compete with native plants for space, light, nutrients and water.

"If left unchecked they eventually dominate the bushland, crowding out small groundcover species," she said.

"They change the mid-storey structure, and make the woodland much more dense and difficult to walk through, this can make it uninhabitable for many wildlife species and can also increase the bushfire risk.

"The impacts of woody weeds on red-tailed black cockatoos can be significant as large dense infestations reduce the amount of seed produced by the brown stringybark trees and limits regeneration of stringybark seedlings."

St Mary's Wines and Spirits shares it property with the sanctuary, with owner Barry Mulligan - who helps care for the area - stating the area had been locked-up since his grandfather purchased it in 1937.

Since taking ownership of the estate, Mr Mulligan said he made the decision to maintain and preserve the sanctuary.

"I can always remember it as a kid and have this memory of black cockatoos flying over the top when down there with my father," he said.

"The site offers all different land forms including Terra Rossa ridges, which run pretty much all the way through and you can see what land looked before it was cleared.

"As I understand, the sanctuary is the only singular patches of land in the region which is relatively unaffected by European land management."

Mr Mulligan said he had never regretted maintaining the site.

"When family members come back from wherever they've been in the world, they'll disappear and that's where they'll go," he said.

"It is a microcosm of all the different land forms in the district and I don't think anybody else has that, you can see all the flora and fauna go through and utilise it.

"The interesting thing is a lot of the birds which were catalogued in 1982 can be listed again today."

A family home neighbouring the sanctuary boundary is routinely graced with the presence of South-eastern Red-tailed Black-Cockatoos, with one night reportedly attracting a total of 84.

Mr Mulligan has committed to continue with follow-up control measures in the future to ensure the weed problem does not come back.

This work is being completed as part of the Communities helping Cockies project, a five-year project supported by the Limestone Coast Landscape Board through funding from the Australian Government's National Landcare Program.

It is delivered in partnership with Birdlife Australia, Zoos SA and Trees For Life.

The project has been operational for two years.

Trees for Life has so far mapped and removed woody weeds from 600 hectares of south-eastern red-tailed black-cockatoo stringybark feeding habitat across four properties.

Junction work is back on

THE South East Junction is preparing to launch into 2021 after COVID-19 restrictions significantly impacted its mental health service delivery this year.

A diverse range of activities are planned for members from mid-January ranging from coffee and chat sessions, Tai Chi, cooking classes and nature walks.

Visit www.thesoutheastjunction.org. au or call 0477 886 450 for more information on mental health services and upcoming events.

Life4Life success

MENTAL health support organisation Live4Life Glenelg has ended 2020 on a high after a year of forced adaptation to services due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Online forums and workshops, as well as a delivery of care packs for young people, were some of the methods used to ensure the Live4Life initiative maintained momentum in the Glenelg Shire.

The group recently restarted face-to-face mental health education for young people and adults following the easing of health restrictions.

Council community wellbeing manager and Live4Life Glenelg partnership group chair Julie Drechsler said the Teen Mental Health First Aid was competed by every year 8 and 10/11 student in the Glenelg Shire during Term 4.

"Furthermore, two youth Mental Health First Aid and three refresher courses were also able to be completed - two in an online space, and three face to face," Ms Drechsler said.

The Live4Life model focuses on a whole of community approach to mental health education and suicide prevention in order to build resilient young people and communities.

Since its implementation in the Glenelg Shire in 2017, more than 1300 young people and 200 adults have received mental health first aid training.

New animal welfare direction

GLENELG Shire Council will transition its animal welfare services to a new model next year, citing unsustainable costs with current provider RSPCA Victoria.

The council last week voted not to renew the contract with RSPCA Victoria, with a 12-month transition period now underway as the local government body explores alternatives to the Portland facility.

Glenelg Shire Mayor Anita Rank said the decision was one not taken lightly by council. "The services provided by RSPCA Victoria at the Darts Road facility have been exemplary, however they are well above our current legislative requirements," Cr Rank said.

"These costs are unsustainable for council and our ratepayers, and we cannot afford to continue the current arrangement," she said.

"As a result, we will transition away from the status quo and take the opportunity to explore more feasible options, including the potential for a shared regional facility.

"We can also take this chance to utilise funds for positive programming in the community, such as education and desexing programs, and help ensure a longer-term solution for responsible pet ownership in the Glenelg Shire." Cr Rank said council, in partnership with RSPCA Victoria, had operated a successful desexing program over the past two years, with council hoping to continue this in the future.

"We have had a great working relationship with RSPCA Victoria and we take this time to thank them, and the many local volunteers, for all that they have achieved at the Dart's Road animal shelter.

"The shelter has been greatly appreciated and valued by the community and we once again thank all those who donated their time and resources to contribute to this success." All train, tram and bus services will also be free from 6pm on December 31 until 6am on January 1.

Passengers on V/Line services still need to book their travel on reserved services, but will be issued a ticket free of charge, while individuals using a myki are not required to touch on and off and will not be charged if they do.

In addition to free travel during the festive season, the Victorian Government will not increase public transport fares in 2021 in recogition of the difficult year Victorians have had.

All regional fares and passes and myki will remain at 2020 rates next year to encourage people to return to the pubic transport network into the new year.

Face masks must be worn at all times on public transport.

Photographers showcase region

A GLOBAL pandemic could not stop creativity in 2020 as more than 400 entries were virtually showcased in the annual Wattle Range Photographic Exhibition.

First-time entrants came up alongside seasoned veterans in the regional showcase, which coincided this month with the launch of Wattle Range Council's 2021 community calendar.

Exhibition curator Janice Nitschke said there was a good mix of veteran and new exhibitors receiving accolades in the 2020 competition.

"Joint winners of the Landscape category were Alex Window and Phil de Koning who both depicted stunning sunsets at the Pool of Siloam and Beachport's Salmon Hole," Ms Nitschke said.

"Two outstanding photographs worthy of any publication or as an art piece."

The Limestone Coast Photographic Club sponsored the Black and White Category, which was won by Tania Millard with her depiction of Sean Smyth, St Vinnie's Volunteer.

Bronwyn Heffernan's Barry - a Hereford bull - was named runner up.

Noel and Sheila Boyle sponsored the Lake McIntyre category which was won by Ramona Oppelaar's Kung Fu.

Darren Galwey's Bad Hair Harry - showcasing a striking spoonbill - re-ceived runner up honours.

Melanie Halton won the Sport and Leisure category with the Beachport Surf Lifesaving Club's winter competition the subject.

Mary Whitehead won the Business and Industry with Cattle and the Panoramic category with Lest we Forget, an evocative sunset shot on Anzac Day 2020.

Alex Window won People and Portrait with a photograph of his two children in Penola's Lolly Shop and was a joint winner with Katie Window (Shake a Tail Feather) in the Nature category.

rite of Mayor Noll, was runner up," Ms Nitschke said.

Jack Francis placed third in this category with Windmill Sunset.

Wattle Range Mayor Des Noll congratulated all entrants and winners and said the exhibition had continued to grow since its inception 12 years ago.

"Each year new photographers enter the competition bringing with them new ideas and interpretations of what Wattle Range means to them," he said.

"We have some brilliant photographers in our region, who should all be very proud of themselves.

"I am in awe of their talent and our community calendar is a wonderful representation of their amazing photography."

The exhibition winning and runnerup entries are currently on display in the Millicent Gallery.

A video of the photographs will also be screened at Wattle Range service centres and the library over summer.

The 2021 Wattle Range Council community calendar is available from council's offices, the Millicent Library and selected postal outlets in the Wattle Range region.

The box will house the recently released Kalangadoo History Walk brochures, which guides walkers to 29 different locations around the town to provide visitors with a glimpse of Kalangadoo's development and history.

Kalangadoo History Group chair Sandra Young said the establishment of a brochure box would provide instant access to information.

"There are brochures in the Kalangadoo Shop and Kreiger's Store, but this was to cater for tourists who often come to Kalangadoo when these two places are not open," she said.

"The brochures are also in the tourist information centres in the Wattle Range Council region.

"This way, the brochure is available all year around and on every day."

Ms Young said the specially designed bro-which Kalangadoo was built around."

The brochure was developed by Ms Young with help from Nick Hunt and Peter Savage and features interesting stories from when Kalangadoo was a bustling railway town in the early 1900s.

The walk includes historic sites including the Kalangadoo's first post office, shop, bakery and residence, Kalangadoo Railway Station, the Riddoch Memorial Institute and Harry Bilney's wheelwright and blacksmith shed - the first in Kalangadoo.

The brochure box is located at the town's carpark next to the Kalangadoo tourist sign.

"The residents and tourists alike are most impressed with the walk," Ms Young said.

"The Kalangadoo History Group is very pleased that now any local or tourist can access the brochure 24 hours at the carpark to go back in time and relive the past."

Winery shines light on savings

ONE of Coonawarra's largest wineries will combat the impacts of energy costs by replacing 1000 light fittings around its Riddoch Highway estate with LED bulbs.

Jack Estate has received a $20,000 boost from the Federal Government's Energy Efficient Communities Program to complete the work, improving on-site efficiencies while also boosting safety due to the brighter LED fittings

While the project will improve energy costs for the business, it builds on its sustainability focus as well, having installed solar panels two years ago.

Winery accounts manager Melissa Ploenges said lights would be replaced throughout the cellars and in external work areas in early 2021

Ms Ploenges said some lights had already been switched over to LED, which drew the praise of staff who work under light due to the increased brightness.

"Our energy costs are a decent whack of money," Ms Ploenges said.

"We have replaced lights in the vintage area and you can see so much better out there," she said.

The winery is also exploring upgrades to Elesol Plate Filters (electric current filter) and Refrigeration variable speed drives to boost energy efficiency.

Federal Member for Barker Tony Pasin said local small businesses had been hit hard by the COVID-19 pandemic and the grants would be a welcome boost.

"As we recover from the impacts of COV-ID-19, small businesses like Coonawarra Jack Winery will play a key role in our plan for a stronger economy," Mr Pasin said.

It has been a positive boost to end 2020 for the winery, which will produce in excess of 7000 tonnes of wine this vintage.

"We have boosted our online sales quite a bit," Ms Ploenges explained, adding there had been challenges in combating the impacts of COVID-19.

Ms Ploenges said the winery remained hopeful it could resume several industry traditions in 2021, including wine shows.

"We are looking to attend shows in Melbourne or Sydney and hopefully that all goes well," she said.

"It (COVID-19) is always going to be in the back of your mind as it is a constantly evolving situation.

"You have to just stay positive."

Jack Estate was established in 2011 and has 15 employees, fluctuating to around 20 during vintage.

Farmer confidence surges

CONFIDENCE is surging among Limestone Coast farmers with the latest Rabobank Rural survey highlight an almost 15-year high across South Australia in what has been labelled an an agricultural renaissance.

A strong appetite for farm land across the Limestone Coast continues to fuel aggressive growth in value, while demand for South Australian cattle from eastern states remains high as herds restock.

The survey found 98pc of South Australian farmers reported their farm businesses were viable, rising to 100pc for enterprises with incomes over $300,000.

Data shows 46pc of farmers now expect business conditions to improve in the coming 12 months, up from just 11pc last quarter.

Just 8pc of farmers have a negative outlook, down from 42pc in the September quarter.

In the Limestone Coast, farmers expecting conditions to improve grew from 16pc last quarter to 43pc.

Rabobank South Australia regional manager Roger Matthews said widespread spring rain across the state - including in some of its driest pastoral areas - coupled with the prospect of an emerging La Nina, had bolstered confidence across the rural community.

Mr Matthews said the diversity of enterprise mix within South Australia - with many farmers running combinations of sheep, grain, hay and cattle - also helped mitigate risk, and this diversity helped secure farm viability.

South Australia has been fortunate in that we haven't had complete fails or a complete lack of rain like in other parts of the country," he said

"Even in the tough years our farmers have generally been able to emerge with something.

Mr Matthews said the results of this quarter's survey - completed last month - were reflective of just how critical spring rain was.

"Obviously it's the key growing period across southern Australia with the potential to 'make or break' a season and, with some good spring rains, all of a sudden confidence jumps dramatically."

Confidence surged across all commodity sectors in the state, with sheep producers enjoying a significant increase in confidence this quarter - 49 per cent now expect conditions to improve compared with just five per cent with this view three months ago.

The favourable season and strong commodity prices were behind the uplift in sentiment, factors cited equally by 58pc of sheep graziers as key reasons for their optimistic outlook.

In the beef sector, more than two thirds of producers (67pc) expect conditions to improve, up from 18 per cent last quarter, largely on the back of commodity prices.

'There's still high demand for South Australian cattle as eastern producers look to build breeding stock, the market is exceptionally strong, however possibly artificially inflated due to this demand," Mr Matthews said.

Confidence in the grain sector improved albeit not to the same extent as in the livestock sectors - with 29pc of the state's grain growers expecting conditions to improve, up from 11pc last quarter.

More than half (53pc) expect little change in the current conditions.

Mr Matthews said the lack of winter rain had negatively impacted yield potential, with spring rain bringing both huge benefits to some and headaches to others.

South Australian farmer investment plans hit their highest level in close to a decade since March 2011 - and at levels outstripping all other states except New South Wales.

Mr Matthews said with one-in-five of those farmers intending to increase investment looking at property purchases, he said South Australian farmland was proving its worth.

"In the South East, where the appetite for land purchases was particularly strong, there's been quite aggressive growth in land values you think the prices are going to slow down but they just keep getting higher, reflective of the strong demand," he said.

"In a year marred by COVID-19 uncertainty, our Australian farmers seem to have come out on top compared with many other global industries," he said.

A comprehensive monitor of outlook and sentiment in Australian rural industries, the Rabobank Rural Confidence Survey questions an average of 1000 primary producers across a wide range of commodities and geographical areas throughout Australia on a quarterly basis

The next results are scheduled for release in March 2021

Plea for festive support

NATIONAL farmer-focused charity Rural Aid is encouraging Australians to consider the needs of primary producers over Christmas by hosting a fundraising party or supporting a rural family.

Rural Aid chief executive John Warlters said it had been a challenging year for the nation's farming sector and a small gesture at Christmas time could have a major impact on rural families.

"Drought, bushfire and flood are regular and devastating realities for Australian farmers," Mr Warlters said.

"These challenges create financial, emotional and practical hurdles for this crucial sector of our community and economy; the people who put food on our tables and clothes on our back.

"In addition, COVID-19 created new pressures for farmers this year.

"Domestic border closures impacted the supply chain for farmers, and international border closures impacted the workforce of shearers and fruit pickers."

Visit www.ruralaid.org.au to view a number of festive programs supporting Australian farmers.

Podcast focus on drought

THE experiences of drought-impacted communities across Australia are being explored in a new series that brings stories of the bush together with tips from experts.

Dry Times Talks, a new podcast and short video series by Red Cross, explores the experiences of people living through the ongoing drought around Australia.

The series goes well beyond the farm gate and explores how communities as a whole are impacted by environmental factors while providing specialist advice about how to adapt and build resilience.

Red Cross' national drought resilience coordinator Alex Tanfield said while rain continued in some areas, drought persisted in others.

"Australia's rural and regional communities have endured drought - and its uncertainty and stress - for a long time, Mr Tanfield said, adding drought recovery could be a long and slow journey. "In each episode, you'll hear from rural Australians sharing their stories, hope and tips: those working on the land, school workers, business owners and community supporters. "Their stories are backed up by advice from experts in drought resilience, health and wellbeing, who have decades of practical experience supporting communities.'

FRIDAY

THE ROYAL VARIETY PERFORMANCE 2020 ABC, 7.30pm

As Christmas Day celebrations draw to a close there's not much else to do but flop down on the couch and enjoy a charity spectacular. Comedian Jason Manford (left) presents this year's extravaganza, filmed earlier this year at the Blackpool Opera House, which includes performances by Gary Barlow, Celeste and Mel C and an appearance by Captain Sir Tom Moore, who raised £33 million for the NHS with his charity walk in April.

GREAT BRITISH RAILWAY JOURNEYS SBS, 7.55pm

If you are a daily train commuter, chances are you may not spare much of a thought to the history of the tracks you're on when you're trying to squeeze in to nab a seat or wondering why your train is late again. But in Michael Portillo's (above) capable hands, railways are the starting points to exploring other worlds. Tonight's season 11 final is the last leg on his journey around 1930s Britain. Covering Attleborough to Skegness, viewers are whisked away to East Anglia where we are invited to imagine what life was like back then. Along the way, Michael visits the headquarters of a horse welfare organisation established in the 1920s.

MONDAY

BIG FAT QUIZ OF THE YEAR

SBS, 7.55pm

While it may be a year we'd all soon rather forget, this entertaining quiz show asks us to dig deep into the memory banks and recall just what went on this past 12 months. And of course, it plans to cover all the important topics. From politics (to which song did Donald Trump show off his dance moves?), royalty (what was Harry and Meghan's move dubbed?) and celebrity (what did Kanye give Kim for her birthday?), it will have us wishing we'd paid more attention. Quiz master Jimmy Carr is joined by a panel of celebrity guests including David Mitchell, Maya Jama, James Acaster, Stacey Solomon and Richard Ayoade. You are sure to

SATURDAY RED DOG WIN, 7pm

This feel-good feature is an endearing tale about man's best friend, based on the true story of the dog which united a desolate local community while searching the Aussie outback for his long-lost master. The film is brimming with local talent starring alongside US import Josh Lucas, including Rachael Taylor, Noah Taylor and Luke Ford, as well as Kiwi star Keisha Castle-Hughes. Taylor deserves special mention for playing Nancy, a refugee from the big smoke who struggles to get used to life in the bush. Geoffrey Hall's evocative cinematography shows Australia's red centre in all its magnificence, but it's the titular canine that evokes all the laughter and tears.

Climbing the Wall

ith blocks become smaller and people increasing opting for townhouse and apartment living, vertical gardens are becoming a popular alternative to traditional garden beds and pots, which can encroach on valuable living space.

Vertical gardens or green walls work well in courtyards, small decks and balconies.

The benefits are numerous from carbon dioxide reduction and cooling ambient temperatures to their humidifying effect and their ability to capture toxic gases from deodorants, carpet, paint, furniture and building materials.

Green walls can also reduce noise, capture water run off and increase biodiversity.

Officer couple Neil and Kris Holmes recently installed vertical gardens in their alfresco living area and on an upstairs balcony.

The couple employed a professional horticulturalist to install 5 vertical gardens and are thrilled with the results.

The gardens are equipped with their own watering systems and the only maintenance needed is the occasional prune and a good dose of fertiliser once a year.

Neil said the vertical gardens soften the upstairs balcony and provide a striking contrast with the Corten screens and industrial feel of the exterior of their home.

The individual pots can be moved and rearranged to create different planting patterns. They are potted with a mix of cascading varieties as well as those that grow upwards and out. Once vertical gardens are established (give them at least a year to take hold properly) they become very resilient and long living.

Your vertical garden can even become a source of food, with herbs particularly suited to pots and tubs.

According to choice.com.au simple plant pots stacked in frames or wire shelving that can create a standalone green partition wall are fine for individual herbs and edible plants, as well as flowering pot plants.

There are many tub type modular products on the market that hook onto a wall or into a supporting structure. Again, these often hold individual plants and each pot will require daily watering.

It is a good idea to invest in an automated irrigation system with a timer to ensure the plants never dry out. The amount of water needed depends on what you'll be growing – if it's an edible garden, you'll be fertilising and watering it a lot more.

Plants that work well in a vertical garden include:

- · bromeliads
- fuschia
 - agapanthus
 - · ferns
 - · anthuriums
 - begonia
 - · callisia fragrans
- · chlorophytum
- crassula
- · impatiens
- peperomia
- plectranthus
- spathiphyllum
- tradescantia

Perfectly prickly fun

solation has given us all the time to take up inventive new hobbies, and one clever mum has put the time to good use from the comfort of her home.

Kelly has been creating cute mini planters for succulent cuttings as a creative outlet with her daughter. They then fill the base with good quality soil or potting mix and pop in some cuttings from the garden.

Kelly said the mini pots look great inside the house or in the garden, and as they start to grow, the new shoots can be clipped off to make more. Plus, they can be easily adapted to individual tastes and spaces, and allow plenty of scope for the little ones to get creative.

Admitting that she's "no green thumb", Kelly said the idea was perfect for anyone to do.

Kelly said she was struck by the idea of something simple to do at home with her four-year-old daughter that was relatively cost free.

The pair uses old pots and recycled jars to house their succulent collection.

You could use cuttings from your favourite flowers, for example, or easygrowing vegetables like spinach or lettuce.

With the addition of a few toys or garden figures, they can be turned into little fairy gardens.

If you want to get really crafty, pick up some clay from the local hardware or craft store and encourage the kids to make their own mythical creatures to sit in the bottom of their new gardens. As many parents look for new ways to engage the kids in online learning, the mini pot plants could even form part of a lesson on science, biodiversity or art - far more stimulating than book work.

What are your best pool options?

eading into summer, the thought of having a backyard swimming pool to cool some steam and lounge away is a timely one. Thanks to ingenious creations that have resulted in backyard pools coming in all shapes, sizes and styles, it's easy to find the perfect match for your backyard. Better yet, you can also find one that suits your price range.

Before jumping into the intricacies of design detail, it pays to learn a thing or two about the different categories backyard swimming pools have. This way, you can narrow down your selection based on category, design, and price.

In-ground pools

Just as the name is self-explanatory, in-ground pools are the classic pool at ground level. They look great and have the advantage of lasting a long time. However, with beauty comes price and in-ground pools can be expensive to purchase with a higher maintenance requirement along with longer installation times compared to other backyard pool options. Typically made from concrete or fibreglass, concrete in-ground pools are constructed on-site making them extremely durable. On the other hand, fibreglass pools are usually manufactured beforehand and will take less time to install, although they aren't as resilient as concrete.

The process of building an in-ground pool is highly complex with requirements to rip up your entire backyard to get the job done. Not only will you have to undergo backyard renovations, but the future soil conditions of your yard may also be compromised when installing an in-ground pool.

To build a backyard in-ground pool, you will need to apply for council approval which can take the process (including construction time) anywhere from 3 to 6 months.

An alternative to in-ground pools, above ground pools, have become increasingly popular due to their versatility. Being cheaper and faster to install when compared to in-ground pools, above ground pools are also quite modular, which gives you the flexibility to resize according to your needs. You will need to make sure that the site in your backyard is flat and levelled before placing an above ground pool (unless you want a real shallow end on one side and real deep end on the other).

have been designed for easy DIY installation, making it straightforward to put into your home. As above ground pools aren't fixtures, you can simply take them with you wherever you go.

CUTE PICANTO DOMINATES

BY ALISTAIR KENNEDY, MARQUE MOTORING

KIA Picanto is the smallest car in the high-flying Korean brand's range. It has been on sale here since 2016 and currently, with more than 80 per cent of total sales, it dominates the – admittedly very small – micro car market segment.

Small city cars have historically been poor sellers in Australia which is a shame as these small and affordable economy cars are really all that many urban dwellers need.

The primary buyer profile for Picanto will be late-teen / early 20s females, with a smattering of baby boomers taking up the slack.

Those at the young end of the age scale typically have a three-point check list – cute styling, affordability and the latest in infotainment technology. The previous model ticked the first two boxes but missed out on the third, a problem which has now been fixed with this latest upgrade.

New Picanto is currently offered in two variants, S and GT-Line both powered by a 1.2-litre naturally-aspirated petrol engine and either manual or automatic transmission. A third model the GT is expected to be added towards the end of 2020. We don't have specific details at this stage but the outgoing GT was a 1.0-litre turbo-petrol. STYLING

Styling of Picanto (love that name, it sounds like it should mean something in Italian ... but doesn't) is fresh and contemporary. To our eyes the GT-Line variant that's the subject of this test is just about the cutest car on Australian roads. Given the number of admiring looks it got plenty of others share that view.

Although there are three rear seat belts shoulder space is limited, especially with three adult passengers abreast. Headrests are adjustable vertically, rare in this grade of vehicle. There's excellent and functional storage spaces including two adjustable cup holders and an alcove for a smartphone at the base of the front console with a USB port.

ENGINE / TRANSMISSION

The 1.2-litre four-cylinder engine in the Picanto S and GT-Line generates 62 kilowatts of power and 122 Newton metres of torque at in that they will learn to get into good observational driving habits straight away.

Parents buying Picanto as a first car for their children will be reassured by it achieving a five-star ANCAP rating.

INFOTAINMENT

New for the 2020 Picanto is an excellent 8.0inch infotainment touchscreen which, in such a small car, dominates the dashboard. It's easy to reach and operate with minimal distraction from the road ahead.

Apple CarPlay and Android Auto, both now

Sharp and agile in its urban natural habitat the little Kia had no trouble keeping pace with traffic over the undulating terrain of the M1 Pacific Motorway to the north of Sydney. Only in steeper hills in the semi-rural segment of our test route did it struggle.

With SUVs and utes now the focus of most of our road tests it was a real treat to be able to zip in and out of even the tightest of parking spots with ease both by the Picanto's size but also its excellent all-round visibility.

Fuel consumption is listed at 5.8 litres per 100 kilometres on the combined cycle. We averaged 6.8 L/100 km on our real-life test with fuel stops increased due to the 35-litre fuel tank.

Summing up

Kia Picanto is a very attractive five-door city hatch car that's loaded with standard equipment and comes in at a starting price of just $14,690 plus on-road costs with manual transmission.

It's pleasant to drive, works well around town and isn't too out of place in the country. Its low driveaway price is certainly appealing with its value equation topped up by Kia's industry-leading seven-year, unlimited kilometre standard warranty.

City car punters have clearly already made up their minds on the merits of Picanto with four out of five buyers in the segment heading for Kia dealerships.

If you're looking for a sportier performance the upgraded turbo Picanto GT isn't too

Although it's built in South Korea there is the European influence that is characteristic of all new Kia models penned by design chief Peter Schreyer.

An upgrade in June 2020 brought a new grille, projector headlights, new foglights, redesigned alloy wheels and rear bumper. INTERIOR

Picanto's tallish body means there is ample headroom both front and rear for averagesize occupants although its length limits boot space to just 255 litres. This is can be expanded to 1010 litres by folding the 60:40 secondrow seat backs.

50 - Carsmart, Thursday, 24 December, 2020

4000 rpm.

Both models come with the choice of fivespeed manual or four-speed automatic transmissions.

SAFETY

Standard safety equipment included six airbags; enhanced ABS brakes with emergency stop signal; autonomous emergency braking; hill start assist; vehicle stability management; torque vectoring; reverse parking sensors; rear view camera; dust-sensing headlights; rear fog lights; daytime running lights; and two ISOFIX child seat anchor points.

GT-Line adds halogen projection headlights; with both the daytime running lights and rear fog lights upgraded to LED.

Advanced features such as blind spot monitoring, rear cross-traffic alert and lane-keep assist aren't available but, for a first car for new drivers that's not necessarily a bad thing with wireless connectivity, are now available. DRIVING

Our test car was the automatic GT-Line Picanto in Astro Grey with red trim making it a real eye-catcher.

The tallish body provided excellent headroom and interior space that belied its small exterior.

The front seats were comfortable and supportive but the absence of telescopic steering wheel adjustment meant pushing the driver's seat back to compensate.

Performance from the 1.2-litre 62 kW / 122 Nm engine naturally-aspirated is pretty good with its limited outputs offset by a kerb weight of around 1000 kg.

Having only four forward ratios in the automatic can be a drawback in some country driving, but is generally fine around town. far off.

James Dunn, Nicholas Seager and Michael Sims provided some resistance and helped build the score to a defendable target, but at the end of the 40 overs South had made just 131 and had a big job ahead.

Jones did much of the damage with the ball, with figures of 3/26 off eight overs

Penola started a little shaky, with Jack Mullan out after facing just one ball.

However, from there Smith went to work with Jones and the total crept up to 40 before the latter was sent on his way, caught by Sims off the bowling of Jacob Opie for 14.

Jack Schulz also reached 14 before he was caught-and-bowled by Opie, while Waters added 23 before he was bowled by Waters.

Along the way Smith continued to find runs and build towards his halfcentury.

Few other batsmen made runs, but Smith's 83 came off just 76 balls and ensured a Penola victory, as the home side finished with 164 runs.

Vine finished with figures of 4/28 off 7.2 overs.

LCRL hopes to further develop the junior league in 2021 at both school and club level.

Around 30 youngsters participated in the two games held at Malseed Park and all appeared to enjoy the day.

Anyone interested in getting their child involved in Rugby League can contact game development officer Matthew Grubb on 0438 979 575.

Newcomer claims ham

BREAKING 100 for the first time helped newcomer Riley Sturgess amass 43 stableford points to lead the Mount Gambier Golf Club's Christmas competition on Saturday.

Playing off a 33 handicap, Sturgess had a mixed bag on the front nine, notching 21 points from four pars, four triple bogeys and a double.

But with Christmas hams, turkey rolls and line, he added anothe 22 points on the back nine after pars on the 15th and 17th holes, mixed in with three bogeys, two doubles and just one triple.

the stick on the front nine, compensating for a bogey on the third hole with birdies on the fifth and eighth.

He backed that up with 38 on the inward nine which included eight pars, his only blemish being a double bogey on the par-five 11th.

Patrick O'Donnell was one shot back in second spot after compiling 40 points, while club captain Peter Waters finished third with 37.

some advice from former touring professional Brian Huxtable in an effort to get closer to the magical scratch mark.

"His suggestion was that I needed to make sure my elbows were as close together as possible on my backswing and through the point of impact," Homberg said.

"Obviously it didn't work the previous week, but I sorted it out between the two rounds.'

Mother Nature chimes in

A LARGE field of 41 women planned to play a stableford round last Wednesday at the Mount Gambier golf Club but Mother Nature had other ideas and following a constant downpour, many decided not to play.

Only 14 remained in the field and the competition was reduced to a ninehole competition on the front nine.

Regular player Bernie Jennings, who enjoys the hot weather but does not mind the rain either was the winner for the day with 18 points, which included three pars on a sodden course.

Runner-up on a count-back was captain Faye Mainwaring, who recorded two pars and a birdie, while newcomer Vicki Clark finished third with 16 points.

Due to the wet conditions and small field, prizes including a ham were held overs

From now the competitions through to the end of January will be stableford only.

On Saturday 22 women competed in the stableford competition and high scores were recorded. Maxine Mc-Gregor's score of 38 points was enough to take the prize of a Christmas Ham. McGregor played a steady first nine before registering 22 points on the homeward holes, which included four threepointers and a four-pointer on the 17th hole.

Rosemary Martland was runner-up with 37 points, which included a birdie on the ninth hole.

She claimed a turkey roll, while Penne Saffin finished third with 36 points and took home the Christmas cake.

Helen McIntyre and Vicki Clark each scored a ball for their birdie.

Chris Morrison won the pro shot on the eighth hole while Chris Galpin was the winner on the 16th for nearest the pin.

Seven ball rundown winners required 32 points or better to claim a ball.

"I can hit it a fair distance, but not always straight," Sturgess, who was playing in just his fourth competition after only recently starting to play regularly, said.

"Putting definitely hasn't been my strength, but I don't think I had a three-putt on Saturday.

"I was pretty stoked to break 100."

Sturgess' 43 points gave him the Christmas ham in C Grade, four shots clear of Jack Jennings who took home a turkey roll, while Charlie Finch secured the Christmas cake for his 38 points.

Thaxted Park visitor Robert Baird took the honours in A Grade with a superb 41 stableford points.

Playing off a six handicap, Baird had 35 off

Jon Clayton took home the ham in B Grade after coming in with 41 points, Lachlan Rees taking second with 40 points and Kent Comley finishing third on 39.

Meanwhile a swing change helped Portland visitor Phil Homberg take out Thursday's stableford competition after signing for 38 points.

With rain and wind making life difficult for everyone in the 93-man field, the 55-year-old shot a superb 73 off the stick, bogeys on the fourth, fifth, sixth and eighth almost cancelled out by birdies on the first, third and 11th holes.

His points split of 17/21 gave him victory on a count-back from Bryce Wicker who managed an 18/20 split.

Homberg's round was in marked contrast to the previous week when he finished second last with just 20 points.

He explained that after being stuck on his handicap of three-or-four for "ages", he sought

Homberg has been a regular visitor to the Attamurra course over many years, although Covid-19 restrictions meant his trips in the past few months have been largely curtailed.

"A group of us usually come over at least six-or-seven times a year to play," he said.

"We think Mount Gambier is the best course within a couple of hours drive of Portland.

"Every hole has got something different."

In each of the past two weeks he has brought seven other players over, most of them shift workers at Portland's Alcoa aluminium smelter.

"For a few years there we used to hire a bus and as many as 20 of us would come over to play," he said.

"In all the years I've been coming the 73 off the stick on Thursday was the best round I've ever had there so I was pretty happy."

TOP SCORE: Maxine McGregor claimed the win in Saturday's Mount Gambier golf Club women's competition.

Big field contests early medal

THE Blue Lake Golf Club held its Monthly Medal on Saturday due to the upcoming Christmas break and a near capacity field of close to 100 players turned out to try and master the course.

With head green keeper Daniel Christian being relatively festive with his tee and pin placements good scores were the order of the day.

Taking home the biggest present was Matt Jennings with his score of 84-12-76.

Jennings was purring along nicely with his run of pars through the middle section of the front nine for 39 off the stick.

He dropped a cylinder on the 11th hole with a double bogey coming straight after a birdie.

He quickly diagnosed the problem, bouncing back with a succession of pars and a birdie on the 17th to close with a 37.

He finished two strokes clear of a chasing pack.

The scoring was hot in A Grade with the club's best golfers taking full advantage of the friendly setup.

Michael Dedonatis demonstrated his class with a 72 off the stick for the win, returning a nett 68.

Shooting one over the card on each nine Dedonatis showed his game is as strong as granite, putting aside two bogeys with follow up birdies on both the front and back nine in a welcome return to form.

Another player who is in form is Greg Cooper who took out second place with his round of 79-12-67.

Cooper's wheels were a bit wobbly early with a run of bogeys on the front nine but he then stamped his class with pars on the opening four holes on the inward nine.

Looking for a win he struggled from the tee on the last hole for a rare double bogey.

Rounding out the placings was Cameron Adams after an up-and-down round.

Combining shots of brilliance with birdies on the second and seventh holes, Adams also managed to throw in a double bogey on the fourth.

It was similar on the back nine, with two birdies mixed in with a double on the 13th.

Adams finished with a round of 72-4-68. In B Grade the the good scores continued, with Jamie Dunn (81-15-66) leading the way. Dunn played superb golf on the front nine, his only blemish a triple bogey on the fourth hole which cost him a perfect nine.

He still managed a respectable 38 off the stick which any golfer would take.

He could not quite maintain that form over the inward nine, falling away slightly with more trouble on the 13th and 14th holes for a 43.

Luckily for Dunn he had enough shots up his sleeve to see off the fast-finishing Barry Humphries.

Humphries (82-14-68) managed to keep all his ponies in a straight line on the front nine, keeping any red ink off his score card.

Unfortunately his game turned from a mustang into a brumby with two double bogeys on the 11th and 18th to slip into second place.

John Kamp held off David Adkins in a count back for third as both finished on nett 69. Kamp got the nod thanks to his birdie on the Kamp got the nod thanks to his birdie on the 16th.

Hot on his heels was Kevin Mansell who just ran out of puff in the sprint to the finish.

scores ranging from 69 through to 73.

Pro shots were won by Frank Pinneri on the fifth hole and Nick Wilson on the 16th.

Trevor Little won the novelty least putts event.

Strong and sure: Women up to the task

ALL SMILES: Michael Egan was all smiles after his round at the Blue Lake Golf Club on Saturday.

A STRONG field contested the women's competition at the Blue Lake Golf Club on Saturday, with a count-back needed to separate first and second.

Both Cherryl Hill (93-23-70) and Helen Myers (91-21-70) returned to the club house tied for the win.

Hill, thanks to a superb birdie on the 15th hole, got the nod by the barest of margins of just one stroke to take the spoils.

Both players showed their great form with closing 45's off the stick.

Two players who add elegance to the course every time they venture out, Lynn Annand and Jo Ashby, also tied for third.

Unfortunately there can only be one third place and Annand (104-31-73) got the nod thanks to her handicap advantage over Ashby (94-21-73).

Annette Ford won the the long drive prize, while Annand was closest to the pin on the fifth hole and Fiona Punton picked up the novelty prize with her prowess with the flat stick.

Meanwhile due to the inclement weather on Thursday only a small field turned out for the midweek Stableford competition but surprisingly, a count-back was needed to separate all three place getters. Curtis Coppetti, Dewain Barrett and Michael Egan all finished on 38 points which was a great effort in the persistent rain.

Coppetti was eventually awarded first prize with his 21 points on the back nine, just edging out Barrett with 20 over the same nine.

A Grade player Egan was a further one point adrift despite a birdie on the 10th.

ALL SMILES: The Peter Whitehead Memorial presentation at Tara Raceway.

Golly, a big day for local trainer

DAVID LEWIS

on the lure GREYHOUND RACING

A THIRD Christmas Cup win, another win in the Peter Whitehead Memorial, together with the Santa Sprint, made for a pretty fair day for trainer Tracie Price at Mount Gambier's Tara Raceway last Sunday afternoon.

Actually, it was a case of Christmas coming early for Price, wife Karen and the team out at the Compton greyhound kennels.

Not only was there success in three feature events but also later in the day a win in a grade six stake over 512 metres.

Golly Gumdrops's three runs at Tara Raceway since relocating from Adelaide had been solid - a win and two thirds, the last one in a Christmas Cup heat behind Rotate and Ask Me Now

As far as the final was concerned, her stocks received a further boost after drawing box one.

Raced by the Petar Jovanovic-managed Rovers Return Syndicate, the daughter of Worm Burner and Psychotic Gold dodged the interference going out of the first turn before setting out after the tearaway leader Ask Me Now.

Trained at Lewiston by Scott Feltus, Ask Me Now, after going down by a nostril in his heat the week prior, again gave it his best shot with another determined front-running effort.

But in the run home it was Golly Gumdrops who finished the stronger for a 11/2 lengths win in 29.95 seconds.

For Price, it was his third Christmas Cup win after Who's Doing What was successful in 2014 and Fear The Rascal the following year.

Last year Smart Knocka, a son of Who's Doing What, ran a two-length second to Squishy Pea in a race-record time of 29.63 seconds.

Price's fourth winner last Sunday - Slick Fernando in the Winmore Greyhound Kennels Stake (512m) in 30.16 seconds - is also a son of Who's Doing What.

SUCCESS: Tracie Price pictured with Williams Crane Hire Christmas Cup winner Golly Gumdrops at Tara Raceway last Sunday.

behind the running of the second Peter Whitehead Memorial maiden (400m) which was won by Sally Limes, owned locally by Bernie Bouchier who had also been successful in last year's inaugural event with Elle Limes.

In what was a keenly-contested affair, Sally Limes, a daughter of Peter Rocket and 2014 Winter Classic winner Stylish Moment, was always on the pace, finishing full of running in the home straight to defeat Saint Hannah by Bred by Karen Price, the winner was purchased as a pup by Bouchier and continued the successful relationship the owner and trainer have enjoyed over a number of years.

It is now three years since Peter "Spider" Whitehead passed away, his family keen to continue the running of the race in his memory.

Sally Limes's win was a fitting result given "Spider" at one stage actually stood in for Price as his acting trainer.

Falcon Heavy, a longshot Santa Sprint heat winner, followed up at good odds again with a win in the final when leading all the way from box one and holding out Galactic Zeus to win by a half-length in 23.24 seconds.

For Falcon Heavy it has been a case of returning to where it all began.

The son of Peter Rocket and leading local dam Headline was bred by Price before finding his way over to Keith and Lisa Hellmuth in Victoria where he was reared and subsequently began his racing career.

After a maiden win at Warragul earlier this year, the black dog returned to Compton in July and has now won a further six races.

Last Sunday night, litter brother Burn Time, also with the Hellmuths and a winner of 12 races for $42,000 in stakemoney, ran third in a heat of the Sale Cup (650m).

Meanwhile, it was a case of healthy dividends all round after the first four placings in the Christmas Challenge (600m) were filled by outsiders Dick Grayson ($16), Mick's Kimmy ($26), My Boy Bean ($34) and Compton Peggy ($41)

Dick Grayson, a daughter of Dyna Double One and West On Jorji, took 14 starts to win her maiden - back on August 23 over 512 metres at Tara Raceway.

However, since then she has raced on 12 occasions for another four wins.

Raced by Lee and Elysia Bartholomew and trained by the former at Worrolong, Dick Grayson was having only her second start over the middle-distance journey when leading all the way in the Christmas Challenge for a 434 lengths win in 35.58 seconds.

Last Sunday's Christmas Cup meeting was run in ideal weather conditions and the best attended since the Bourne Kennels Mount Gambier Cup on August 30.

Thursday meetings on December 24 and December 31 will feature heats and final of the Newman McDonnell Memorial (512m).

Weekly Sunday category 3 meetings will resume on January 3 and be complemented by

Classy: Track record a breeze for Shima

DAVID LEWIS

on the lure GREYHOUND RACING

CLASS won out in last Sunday's Rock's Tavern Masters Stake (277m) at Tara Raceway when Shima Breeze led all the way to defeat Bob Square Pants by 23/4 lengths and lower Magic Assassin and Dare To Do's 16.19 seconds track record to 16.00 seconds.

Owned by Tim Aloisi and Matt Lehman and trained at Allendale East by David Peckham, Shima Breeze's record came on the last day of racing over 277 metres at Tara Raceway

Within days trialling will commence over 305 metres in readiness for racing over the new distance.

Purchased by the leading SA owners early into her 50-start career, the daughter of Fernando Bale x Shimaguni had won more than $100,000 in stakemoney prior to sustaining a back leg muscle injury in June this year.

Subsequently, she found her way down to Bourne Kennels, Aloisi saying the plan was to mate her with Barcia Bale when she came in season.

"But later, when still not in season, and after David reckoned she was running up and down his runs quicker than his racing dogs, we decided to give her a couple of trials over 277 metres to see how she went," he said.

"So when she lowered the track record a couple of times on trial mornings we figured it might be worth trying for a record on a race day before racing over 277 metres finished at Tara Raceway.'

Aloisi said the fact she now had a track record to her name would only add to her already imposing performance record of 23 wins and 17 minor placings which includes Group 2 and Group 3 placings.

NEWS 61

COMING ALONG SLOWLY: It was always going to be a slow process but Mount Gambier racing club track manager David Shepherdson is pleased with the progress of the course proper as we await the countdown for the resumption of racing at Glenburnie.

Perfect Christmas finish

on the rails david.gilbert@tbwtoday.com.au

JUST when it seemed local apprentice Jacob Opperman would not get the Christmas present he sought, it arrived in time for the teenager to celebrate Christmas and look forward to 2020 with plenty of optimism.

Two applications had been lodged for Opperman to get his ticket to ride in the metropolitan area and stewards saw fit last week to give the tick of approval for him to take that next step.

His metropolitan licence will come into effect on January 2, but we will not see Oppeman riding at Morphettville until later that month.

These days the Morphettville track is given a well-deserved rest during January and its first meeting in the new year is Saturday, January 30, with metropolitan meetings in the interim at Gawler and Murray Bridge.

Will Opperman make the move and transfer to a city stable?

"I will remain based down here and will think of moving up there in the winter," Opperman said.

"The tracks down here are often closed during that time and I may look at joining the Tony and Kelvin McEvoy stable at Angaston." TRACK UPDATE

WITH 2020 coming to a rapid close, it is an opportune time to provide an update on the course proper (main track) out at Glenburnie.

From the highway it looks a million dollars, so who better to ask than track manager David Shepherdson who has been in charge of operations since early September.

BELIED HIS ODDS: The easy 10-metre win by the Terry Glynn trained Samara Cash at the Greenwald Paceway last Saturday evening belied the gelding's huge odds ($81).

Not so this year, as it seems the Nhill club has succumbed to the lure of the mighty dollar and will race the following day on Sunday, December 27.

Victorian racing authorities have reportedly offered the Nhill club a five figure sum to race on Sunday with TAB status and no crowd (only racing industry people in attendance).

Yet the Penshurst club, which also races once a year on Boxing Day, will be racing this Saturday with the public permitted to attend.

Furthermore, the Nhill meeting will now clash with the Limestone Coast meeting here at Naracoorte.

History has shown that the Nhill club has relied heavily on South Australian stables supporting its meeting.

TOP JOCKEY HELPED

WHEN a trainer utilises a top jockey the improvement in a horse can be immediate.

It can also mean the odds of the horse winning being much shorter than you might expect as Glenburnie trainer Robert Schultz discovered on Sunday at Horsham.

His galloper Solaazem had been at big odds ($16) at his previous two runs when unplaced at Bordertown and Strathalbyn.

On Sunday, he was heavily backed ($2.60-$2 fav.) to win the 1800-metre BM 58 handicap at Horsham and Schultz opting to use top country jockey Dean Yendall would have been a prime reason for that.

Yendall played his role to perfection and brought Solaazem with a well-timed run to formula in the NR 42 pace at his third run this campaign.

Samara Cash was an $81 chance last Saturday and belied those odds to win by 10 metres. although his chances were helped by interference to several runners early in the race.

Then the $1.30 favourite Burning Hot galloped when trying to wrest the lead from Samara Cash with 1300 metres to run.

Yahl trainer David Phillips notched his first winner of the local season when the consistent Badluckbaz ($3.10-$2.40-$2.80 fav.) broke his maiden status at start number 11.

At two previous runs this preparation, Badluckbaz had finished second and the result was never in doubt once driver Mark Phillips was able to lead from the pole position.

The black booker from the meeting is Remain Anonamiss who ran home strongly from last at the 400 metres for third.

It is back to the Tuesday evening format for the next local meeting on January 4.

THIRD SUCCESSIVE CHRISTMAS CUP

NARACOORTE trainer Greg Scholefield and the local owners of pacer Emain Macha could not have wished for a better Christmas present.

Uncharacteristically, Eman Macha had been out of the winner's stall since January, and he picked the perfect race to regain that winning touch by scoring in the $10,000 Christmas Cup at Globe Derby Park last Sunday in brilliant fashion for the third successive year.

An excellent Mark Billinger drive enabled Emain Macha (from the outside of the second row) to briefly be in the one/one sit before parking outside the leader for the final two laps.

Billinger surged Emain Macha ($7.50) to a winning 15 metre lead at the 400 metres and was untroubled to chalk up career win number 33 from 61 starts. "Schoey has done a very good job to get him back to his best with the problems he has had, as a lot of other trainers would have given up with him," part owner Peter Lamond stated. COMING UP

"It is a slow process and we are not in a rush and I believe we are in a good position.

"The roots are going down and the kikuyu has reappeared which is good.'

It has always been the intention by club management that a decision will be made in late summer as to when racing will return to Glenburnie.

BOLD MOVE BY NHILL

THE far western Victorian club of Nhill race once a year, normally on Boxing Day.

It is always extremely popular with over 1,000 people generally filing through the gates, mainly local families who make it a picnic occasion with siblings who have returned home for Christmas.

Being the day after Christmas, it is always a relaxed atmosphere and a meeting I have always looked forward to and enjoyed.

Last year, for example, all six runners in the Nhill Cup came from this side of the border.

Of the 45 runners for the entire day at Nhill, 55pc were from South Australia with 33pc from the Limestone Coast.

This Sunday, the prize money being offered is roughly the same (Nhill $115,000 and Naracoorte $113,600).

Over the years, I have noticed South East trainers have always remained loyal to local meetings whenever there has been a rare clash.

It will be extremely interesting to see how the fields for both meetings stand up and whether the Nhill experiment is a success.

At the time of going to press, the final fields for Naracoorte and Nhill had not been released.

LEADERS HAD THE ADVANTAGE

PACERS who led won all three races at the final meeting for 2020 for the Mount Gambier Harness Racing Club last Saturday evening.

The stand-out pacer at the meeting was the David Drury trained-and-driven Plutonium in the NR 51-58 pace.

Considering the four-year-old gelding had led all the way to win at Melton last start, the $1.60 bet about his chances at Mount Gambier seemed rather tempting.

Those odds looked even more appealing after Drury was able to cross and lead from gate six and Plutonium was untroubled to win and register the fastest mile rate of the meeting (1.58.3).

The Terry Glynn trained Samara Cash had not won a race for exactly 12 months and the six-year-old gelding again found that winning

Top results for Open teams

MOUNT Gambier RSL Bowls Division 1 Red and Blue teams played off in Saturday's Open pennant comeptition.

While scores were tight, Red claimed the win by eight shots - 70-78.

The Blue team was able to win one rink to gain two points, with the Red team claiming 14 points.

Michael Fox skipper the Red team and had a 26/20 win over the Blue skipper Chris Waugh

Red skipper Strawb Masters had a 31/15 win over Blue skipper Ron Ploenges but Red skipper Deane Wilkinson had an uncharacteristic loss 21/35 to an on-fire rink skippered by Ralph Stafford.

The Red team remain on top of the ladder and the Blue team still remains in the top four.

In Divison 2 Mount Gambier RSL hosted Naracoorte RSL and gained a 10-shot victory and 14 points for the day.

Ian Moulden 29/20 and Graeme Smith 29/27 skippered the winning rinks but skipper Wayne Legutko narrowly went down 24/25.

The win keeps them in third position on the ladder.

Divison 3 continued its climb up the ladder with a resounding 97/65 victory over Penola at home.

The win gave them the maximum 16 points and lifted them into second position on the ladder.

Skippers Noel Miller 40/16, Des Moulden 26/20 and Alby McIntyre 31/29 did the damage.

Division 4 travelled to face equal-third placed Beachport Blue and dug deep to come away with a 78/62 win and 14 points to push themselves over their opposition into outright third.

Illness to one of their players saw RSL play one rink with only three players but they came through with a good victory.

New skipper Ron Cook led the charge with his rink gaining a 29/16 win.

Alan Coulsen kept his rink on winning ways with a 28/18 victory but a Tony Freeman 23/28 rink loss was the only slip up for the day.

The women's and Open pennants now go into remission until the end of January 2021.

CONCENTRATION: Kevin Mott sends down his bowl in the Division 3 tussle with Penola.

Rain impact

THURSDAY'S RSL Bowls Club Mens' Aggregate drawn competition had 24 bowlers attend in what turned out to be a reduced program due to persistent rain.

The games were in a 2-4-2 format played in pairs.

The winning pair was Ron Edlington and Alex Heesemans who managed to win their game with the largest margin being 27 points. There is no Men's Aggregate today but it will return on New Year's Eve. Meanwhile Saturday social bowls was played and the winning team was David Burge TOP JOB: Thursday's RSL Bowling Club Aggregate Men's Pairs competition went to Ron Edlington and Alex Heesemans.

Christmas pairs cheer

THE Mount Gambier RSL Bowling Club held its annual Mixed Pairs Ham and Turkey day on Sunday.

It consisted of three games of 10 ends but played in three different formats.

The first game was two and walk, the second 2-4-2 and the third was a straight three bowls.

Ten couples took part in an enjoyable day with the weather ideal.

The overall winners for the day were the young pairing of Keisha and Zak Pearson who with three wins narrowly defeated Graeme Smith and Merna Whitehead who also had three wins for the day by 82 shots to 79.

Bowls teams bounce back

FRIDAY'S pennant bowls saw both RSL Bowling Club Division 1 teams recover from last week's defeats, registering strong wins against good opposition.

The Red team hosted Mount Gambier and showed its determination with a resounding 64/36 victory to attain 14 points.

Joy Bilney's rink came out firing after last week's shock defeat and registered a 41/16 win which was backed up by Jennifer Bowering's rink recording a 23/20 win.

The win puts them back into finals contention lifting them to fourth place on the ladder. The Blue team travelled to Kingston and came away with a 54/33 win, recording 13.

Time called on prolonged compe holico om

DUE to COVID-19 intervention, the 2020 Night Owls competition which started in February at the RSL Bowling Club did not complete and a decision was taken by the club this would be completed prior to the 2021 Night Owls starting in the New Year.

Teams completed the competition last week and the final games saw an overall narrow victory to the 2018 and 2019 runners-up team of Darryl Cameron, Alan Hill, Frank Cronin and Tony Burch who aptly named themselves the DAFT team.

TIME CALLED: The RSL Bowls Club hosted its final Night owls competition for the season after a prolonged run due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Carmel McQuade led her rink to a 31/10 win and a tight rink skippered by Eileen Cruise resulted in a 23/23 draw.

The win lifts the Blue team into fifth on the ladder, poised for a finals push.

Not so good news for the Division 3 women who were unable to overturn last week's defeat, going down 38/46 to a strong Mount Gambier team at home.

A spirited performance by Liz Schroder's rink saw them get a deserved point with an 18/18 draw, but Helen Moulden was unable to back it up and her rink unfortunately went down 20/28.

The team remains seventh on the ladder with only two games remaining.

Sykes and Smith claim victory

THE Robe Bowls Club held its Mixed Pairs Championship last week with 10 teams competing with mixed results.

Jo Sykes and Ken Smith defeated Helen Dawson and Dean Burgoyne in the final to claim the honours. Social day Thursday was the annual Ham day sponsored by Valma and Errol Jennings and won by Rob Lawrie, Bill Cook and Kerrie Boyd with 56 points.

Runners-up were David Robinson, Nola Peel and Valma Jennings on 41points.

The Christmas raffle was drawn and won by Baxter Kennett, second prize went to Dean Nankivell and third to Peter DeLaine.

The last women's pennant before Christmas was a good one for Robe with both divisions winning.

In Division 2 Robe (14 points 66 shots) defeated Lucindale (0, 31). Judy Bermingham, Barb Brown, Pam Robinson and Helen Dawson won 36-12 against Shirley Tregoweth's team, while Valma Jennings, Bronwyn Matthews, Ann Moore and Lorraine Dening won 30-19 against Chris Watts' team.

Central in clear control

AT the halfway point of the Mount Gambier and District Baseball Division 1 season, Central remains undefeated after a big 11-3 win over South Indians on Friday night.

Central drew first blood against South in the top of the first inning, with consecutive safe-hits to Kyall McClean and Nathan Meinck.

McClean scored on a hit from Dylan Gull which resulted in a wild throw and Koby Chant batted in Meinck.

Gull was batted in by Ethan Chuck who hit safely to left-field.

In response South could only manage to peg back the score by one.

Hayden Battye picked a base-on-ball and scored on Jesse Balshaw's sacrifice fly to right-field.

The Indians tightened the score-line in the fourth adding one more.

In his 400th game and after hitting a twobagger, Bruce Morale was batted in by Brian Whitwell when he hit safely for his first of three safe-hits for the game.

The Magpies added runs in the fifth and sixth innings, both unearned, when Chant in both inning found himself at first after his hits created errors and he was batted in on both occasions. Two more were added in the top of the eighth, again both unearned.

With two out, McClean's hit to left-field was dropped and Meinck was hit by the pitcher. Dylan Chuck's hit into the infield created an error which saw McClean score and Meinck added the second on a wild pitch.

South added their third and final run in the bottom of the inning when Morale, from his third safe-hit of the game, finally scored on Steve Isaccson's hit into an infield error.

Central rubbed salt into the wound in the top of the final inning adding four.

Jordan Aston singled, Ethan Chuck drew a walk and Alex Ridding's hit to centre-field was put down.

Aston crossed home-plate on a wild pitch and McClean also drew a walk.

Meinck's hit to right-field scored both Ethan Chuck and Ridding and Dylan Chuck's safe-hit to left-field scored McClean.

After having bases loaded with none out in the even inning the Central defence held tight not allowing one of those runners to add to South's score.

Millicent claimed an impressive 10-3 win over Federal at home on Saturday.

Federal was first on the board in the top of the second inning, as Alex Reppin drew a base-on-ball and Matt Nicholls' flyball to centre-field was dropped.

Reppin managed to steal home and Nicholls was batted in by Jack Howard's hit into an infield error.

Kial Poole led off for the Bandits in the even inning and hit first base after an infield error and was batted in by Saxon Altschwager.

The Bandits added two more in the next inning to take the lead, when Jack Hateley and Darcy Pink both hit into infield errors.

Hateley crossed the plate on a wild pitch and Pink scored on a wild throw.

Federal hauled one back in the fifth when Alex Pearson picked a walk and was given the free run on a pitcher's balk.

Not to be outdone, Nick Pink hit safely to centre-field for the Bandits and crossed the plate on another wild throw from the Federal infield.

In the next inning Millicent took the game by the throat.

Anthony Mutton singled and Jesse Altschwager found himself at first on another infield error.

Nick Pink's hit to the infield caused another error which saw both Mutton and Altschwager score. Pink crossed home-plate on Jack Hateley's infield out.

Tim Nieuwenhuizen picked a walk and was batted in by Saxon Altschwager's right-field safe-hit.

Millicent's final two runs came in the bottom of the eighth.

Pink scored on Darcy Pink's sacrifice fly and Hateley crossed the plate on Nieuwenhuizen's double to left-field.

The Demons made no impression on the scorebook in their final at bat.

Tight games highlight tough final clash

THE first clash in Round 7 of Mount Gambier softball saw rivals Wanderers and Concordes White go head to head.

Wanderers was the only team to beat Concordes in the first round and Concordes looked to even the scorecard heading into the Christmas break, but a draw was the final result.

They got the jump early, scoring four runs in the first inning thanks to safe hits to lead off Jo Hopgood, Maddy Sutherland and Megan Wombwell.

Wanderers took some time to get going but came back hard, forcing some errors from the Concordes field and scoring two runs in the second innings.

Dana Jones and Emily Sutherland both got on base with safe hits for Concordes and Hopgood then timed it well to clear left field's head for a double, scoring both runners. Wanderers were not done though and scored three in the next to bring the score to 6-5 Concordes way at the start of the last innings.

With Concordes needing to hold Wanderers to win, they got the first two batters out and nearly won the match when Daniela Waters almost pulled in a screamer at right field off the bat of Em Hart.

Hart took advantage and made her way to second, where she was then scored by a hit that fell right in the gap by Fiona Finch, which tied up the scores at six a piece with Finch on second and young gun Lily Clifford-Finch up to bat.

Clifford-Finch then smoked one to second base, but she could not quite beat the throw by Emily Sutherland, which saved the game for Concordes as Finch would have scored had it not been for the out.

CONTACT: Allison Schultz looks to score during Saturday's softball round at Blue Lake Sports Park.

FINAL CHANCE: Lily Clifford-Finch had the final chance to score for Wanderers and did manged to put bat to ball with a strong drive to give her side a chance of victory.

The second game was also a close tussle between ladder leaders Warriors Blue and Concordes United, with Blue claiming the honours 10-8 in an exciting contest.

Warriors looked well on top early, scoring five runs in their first at bat thanks to safe hits from Daena Wombwell and Bec White.

However, in the second innings, with two down, Concordes started a rally and scored five of their own, thanks to safe hits by Angela McDonough and Dana Jones, along with some uncharacteristic fielding errors by Warriors.

Warriors regained the lead shortly after thanks to a double from White and a bomb from Leyna Bruggemann which scored them both in one hit.

Concordes scored one in the next innings, plus then two in the following and all of a sudden they were up 8-7 and the pressure was unexpectedly on Warriors to score in the last innings to win.

They showed why they are top and rose to the challenge, scoring three thanks to a string of safe hits including terrific pitch selection and hitting by Kirsty Young and Alison Schultz.

In the field both Bruggemann and Dana Jones pitched consistently for their respective sides and Young had a ripping game at third base, making a number of strong throws to first to get the outs.

For Concordes Sarah Thomson took two impressive over-the-shoulder catches, one of which resulted in a double play for her side.

Best with the bat were Dana Jones with four safe hits, plus Bec White and Daniela Waters with three.

JAMIE COATES

on the water FISHING

THE weekend's weather was just about perfect for most fishos heading offshore.

We saw the swell lay down and the winds ease enough to get most boats out of the shed.

Plenty headed for the shelf down off Port MacDonnell and Carpenter Rocks in search of blue eye and hapuka and from all reports, just about everyone came home with a nice feed.

Hayden Sneath, Adam Sims, Colby and Justin Munro found a nice mixed bag of hapuka, blue eye and pink ling, while most other boats found the same.

The fishing was not flat out, but there are plenty of fillets for Christmas.

In a little closer, the fishing along the 60-100 metre line saw a bit of everything caught.

I saw pictures of flathead, nannygai, snapper, morwong and sharks all from in that zone.

Baits and jigs have both been productive, so everyone has been sharing the action.

The shark fishing in close has been surprisingly good considering the clear calm water.

Danger Point and Green Point have fished well. The kelp beds and broken bottom sections seem to be the hot spots at the moment, but the deeper ledges out wider will also continue to produce.

Corey Auld fished Cape Jaffa from his fishpro jetski over the weekend and managed two nice big school shark and released a couple of others

The boys also reported plenty of mackerel in the bay there too, which is great for those targeting some bait.

There has been a huge amount of snapper caught as by-catch this week again which is still very exciting as we get closer to being able to take a couple home for a feed.

Whiting numbers have been excellent right along the coast.

I have seen some nice fish from inside the breakwater at Port MacDonnell, Cape Douglas and Carpenter Rocks.

Ash Sturges gave Cory Broad a towelling late last week on some big whiting to 46cm around the rocks area, but Cory did well to keep all the eagle rays and Port Jackson sharks away from Ash's baits.

The Port MacDonnell breakwater has not had fish to quite that size, but some good fish of around 40cm have been caught and plenty of those 32-38cm fish mixed in too.

The silver trevally that are often caught in the same spots have been great again, some over 40cm and nudging that 1.5-2kg mark.

We are supposed to get a bit of a stir this week, so I would imagine it will stir them up again.

Gar numbers have been pretty decent again this week.

Steady trend: Mount Gambier and District Baseball results

Our usual spots around Cape Douglas and ary. Livingstons Bay have continued to produce, while the Petrified Forest, Hutt Bay and inside the breakwater have all seen some nice fish.

The boat guys and land based guys have all shared in the success across most places, so it is very accessible for most people.

Tommy ruff, mackerel, salmon trout and mullet are all fairly common by-catch when you burley up, so you will have fun with those guys too.

Since border restrictions were lifted we have seen some nice fish coming from Lake Charlegrark.

While most are between 40cm and 80cm. there are some fish in there that are nearing one metre long.

Adrian Finch and his young fella fished up there over the weekend and managed four between them, all on baits from the bank.

There have been a few nice redfin and trout caught from the Koonongwootong Reservoir at Coleraine over the past couple of weeks, but anglers have kept lures/baits quiet.

Soft plastics are always productive over there, as are trout nuggets, so mix it up a bit.

The Glenelg River has started producing some nice fish this week.

I have seen bream, perch and mulloway caught in the last week or so, so that should get everyone excited for the Christmas break.

Mulloway news has been spread out, with fish caught from Dry Creek down to the estu-

There has not been any exceptional size yet, but legal fish are legal fish.

There has been a massive amount of clean blue sea water pushing up river and with it has come some unusual species for the river.

Just this week I have heard of gummy shark, silver trevally, Port Jackson shark, eagle rays and gurnards.

You never know what you might catch next. The perch have been hungry this week.

Local fly fishing guru Gordon Jeffrey has been catching some beauties just off the landings in the Nelson township, taking a fish or two for the table and letting the rest go.

The bream are happily taking lures and baits, with the bigger fish coming from the bait guys using live crab.

It has been a whirlwind year for everyone, but I think as a whole, us Southerners have been very lucky and have dodged the worst of things

Our neighbours over the border in Victoria have done a great job and all deserve a pat on the back for the sacrifices they made this year.

The team here at Spot On Mount Gambier would like to wish all of our customers, old and new, a very merry Christmas and a safe new year.

Let's put 2020 behind us and hope 2021 is bigger and better.

Until next week, safe fishing.

68 SPORT Thursday, 24 December, 2020 BORDERWATCH.COM.AU Numbers swell for Christmas race

A BIG field of 30 riders contested the Mount Gambier Cycling Club's Christmas race, held over 30km on Sunday.

In a rare sight in 2020, several riders came across the border from Victoria to bolster the numbers.

With 30 riders greeting the starter, the stage was set for fast times and enjoyable racing.

The first group of Jason Buckland, Damien Buckley, Heath Riley, Hayden Riley, Shane Fiegert and Matt Fiegert began one minute ahead of the next group of Nikki Menzel, Jen Buckland, Pam Menzel and Pru Riddoch, a further minute ahead of Michael Dethmore, Harry Opperman and Riley Hill.

Six minutes after the first groups had left, the next groups were ready to depart.

John Cranwell, Spek Peake, Mike Bakker and Mark Wight took off in pursuit, followed three minutes later by Paul Brooker, Bruce McLaughlin and Malcolm Tirabassi.

One minute later Rob Mann, Colin Weatherill and Dean Menzel joined the fray.

They were followed one minute later by another large group of Matthew Opperman, Rhyan Menzel, Ash Herrewyn, Rohan Garfoot and Niel van Niekerk.

Finally, two minutes later, and 16 minutes behind the front markers, Nick Kidman and Dave Bryant set off in pursuit.

At the front of the race, the first three groups had merged together by the 8km mark and worked well together as a group of 11 riders, rolling through turns and allowing plenty of rest in the bunch.

As the riders approached the turnaround the foot was firmly planted on the go pedal, where a couple of riders were caught napping and spat out the back.

It was then an opportunity for the riders to see how well they were tracking against the other groups and gauge the possibilities of either catching or keeping away.

With the lead bunch working hard together, it was clear the other groups would have to work extremely hard to try and catch them.

The groups continued to work like well-

Harry Opperman received the Christmas race trophy from last year's winner Dave Bryant.

Cranwell was crowned the series victor.

There will be a short break from road racing until February, when the Summer Series will begin.

The MGCC now looks forward to January 2 and 3, 2021 when it hosts two days of track racing at the Blue Lake Velodrome, welcoming visitors from around the region and Adelaide.

Headwind on outward ride

TOGETHER with the Christmas club race for seniors, the Mount Gambier Cycling Clbu junior riders also enjoyed a 10km race along Caroline Springs road and back.

It was tough for the riders going out into the wind, but they enjoyed a nice tailwind back to the finish line.

Emma van Niekirk led the charge out, followed two minutes behind by Eddie Buckland, then Molly Opperman a further three minutes adrift.

Hamilton's Lucas Riley joined the group for the race and started one minute behind Opperman, with Jamo Buckley and Elmer Buckland starting a further two minutes back. By the halfway mark, Opperman had caught Eddie Buckland, and Riley had been caught by Buckley and Elmer Buckland, with both groups working well together to try and rein in van Niekirk out in front.

As the riders powered along Caroline Springs Road toward the finish line, the front groups were caught. Buckley finished first and fastest, with an elapsed time of 26:55, followed by Opperman and Elmer Buckland.

Eddie Buckland, Riley and van Nierkirk rounded out the field.

JUNIOR PODIUM: Second place Molly Opperman, first and fastest Jamo Buckley, third place Elmer Buckland.

Ideal conditions to round out year

NEAR perfect conditions of flat seas and gentle to moderate winds from the south greeted sailors at the final Port MacDonnell Sailing Club event of the year on Saturday.

Officer of the day Robin White set and interesting course of just two buoys but with a gate positioned between them to keep the skippers on there toes and the fleet in constant contact with each other.

Race one on club handicap went to Windy Fred, ahead of Freycinet and Farr-Mer.

Class handicaps saw Farr-Mer first, Freycinet second and Windy Fred third.

There was close racing all around and visiting boat and crew from South End, Imagine, claimed line honours and kept the Port MacDonnell boats on their game.

Race two was the same course and yet again tightly contested from all boats.

Commodore Morris Dickins and crew sailed well with first over the line to start, first to finish, first on club handicap and first on class basic as well, which does not happen often.

Second on club handicap was Papillon, ahead of Sandrine, while Sandrine was second on class handicap ahead of Farr-Mer.

The club held its annual Xmas dinner in the clubhouse to finish off the day.

Sailing at Port MacDonnell has a break over the Christmas/new year period with the calendar recommencing on the Saturday January 30.

IN THE SPIRIT: David Jones donned his Santa suit for the final race of 2020 for the Port MacDonnell Sailing club.

Club project manager Peter Clark said it was an exciting time for the club, after many negotiations with council and largely thanks to one generous donation.

"The project was stimulated by a member - Bob Cranwell - offering to pay two-fifths of the cost," Clark said.

"It was a significant donation of $200,000.

"We borrowed $200,000 and got a $100,000 grant from the government to complete the works."

Clark said the overall benefits to the club were many and varied.

"It will have roll-up doors on the side we can raise or lower and will allow us to play bowls all year round, even in wet weather," he said.

"The other benefits of having the sides enclosed is we won't have sunlight destroying the carpet.

"The carpet breaks down in UV light, so we also get the benefit of extending the carpet life from 10-12 years to 20-24 years, which is a $180,000 replacement cost."

Construction of the roof began back in November, with the structure then shipped to Geelong to be galvanised.

Erection has taken place over the past two weeks.

Clark said he expected the final product to be a "pretty" building, with mist grey Colorbond roofing and dark blue sides and trim, sitting six metres above the green.

A total of 35 LED lights will provide the lighting, with no skylights built into the structure, which Clark said would be up to the international standard.

He said other clubs in Queensland had installed similar structures over their greens to protect members from the sun, but of course in the South East this is for the opposite reason.

Warrnambool has recently completed a similar structure, with the benefits coming almost immediately.

"Warrnambool started three months after us and within six months had their greens covered," Clark said.

"They have increased their membership from 200 to 700.

"We are not expecting that but we expect some benefits in that sort of form.

"This is not an investment that is a white elephant and doesn't pay for itself.

"The facility will generate funds, so we can increase our income and can pay off the cost."

Clark said the facility was primarily for bowls, but with suitable footwear, it could be utilised for other events.

"It gives the community 1600 square metres of covered space," he said.

"We can plan for people to come to the club for social events and the facility will be guaranteed."

Overall Clark said it was an exciting time for the club, which he hoped to share further as the construction phase is completed in the new year and the official opening date approaches.

"This is the way bowls is going all over the country where clubs can afford it," he said.

"It has been three years to get to this stage and has been a major project for

Two other scheduled events are the Guichen Bay challenge at Robe on January 16 and 17 of and the Milang to Goolwa race on January 23 and 24.

Old dogs come out to play

A FULL field is ready to hit the McNamara Park circuit for the upcoming SA Historic Road Racing Championships.

Practice kicks off on January 1, with more than 115 riders entered and over 170 bikes set to hit the track.

Some doubt lingers due to the COV-ID-19 outbreak in NSW, which has seen three riders withdraw due to border restrictions.

However, all is set for a top weekend of classic racing.

Last year a couple of track records were lowered and with the right conditions further improvement could be expected.

The older bikes - Pre-1945 - sees a good field of 12 broken into Period 2 and Class C, so if old WL Harleys and Indians are your thing you will not be disappointed.

The Period 5 250 class boasts a grid of 23, while three Ducati 500 V twins line up among seven Yamaha singles, along with others in the Period 5 500cc race with 17 starters.

The roar at the start of a single cylinder race never can be bettered.

With 20 starters all on single cylinder bikes, the Bob Jolly Memorial race will be one to experience.

After more than 35 years, the cut off date for the Ken Blake Memorial Race has been moved to now include Period 5 machines.

This event will have over 40 bikes vying for a grid position based on their qualifying times, with 35 on the grid for a bumper race.

With it being holiday time the Historic Motorcycle Racing Register of SA is again expecting a good turnout of spectators.

Saturday January 2 includes qualifying rounds to begin at 9am, with racing to follow after the 18 qualifiers.

Sunday racing starts at 9am.

In all 18 qualifying sessions and 39 races is sure to provide close to non-stop action over the two days of racing.

AFTER a successful opening round, the Borderline Speedway roars back into life on Monday, December 28 with another bumper meeting.

The night includes Sprintcar action, Round 2 of the MJS Street Stocks, Modlites and Super Sedans.

A big field is expected for the Sprintcars, with numbers set to increase from the opening round.

Club president Cary Jennings said around 35 cars are expected, with nominations close to that number early this week.

He hopes Glen Sutherland can be back on track after an accident last meeting ended his night prematurely.

"He will certainly have the crowd behind him," Jennings said.

Also on the list is Daniel Petska in the Starks car out of Port MacDonnell.

After his podium finish in the A Main feature event last meeting he would hope to go better for the local team. fans who would be well and truly in holiday mode by Monday night.

More action for speedway fans

The MJS Street Stocks will provide plenty of interest for Limestone Coast fans, with a big contingent of local drivers in the mix.

Jayden Edwards is fresh off a victory in the opening round at the Riverland Speedway and will look to go back-to-back but will have plenty of opposition from some of the best in the business.

The likes of Jason Duell, Mark Jennings, Steve Gartner, Jeremy Weston and Hayden Jolley will fly the local flag, along with Megan Cheeseman as she looks to take on the boys.

"All the locals will be represented," Cary Jennings said.

"Corey Crafter has just built a new car and hasn't raced for a few years.

"He had a practice after the last meeting and was happy with how it went so it will be his first time in the Street Stock competition.

"We expect about 30-odd cars in the field."

Super Sedans will provide another good support category, with four Victorian drivers crossing the border to compete.

"The likes of Ash Bergmeier and Lucas Rob see the girls mix it with the men."

A class which has not been seen at the Borderline Speedway for many years is the Modlites.

Similar to a Formula 500 but with a body of sorts, the Modlites run a motorcycle engine and according to Jennings always provide close and exciting racing.

"We haven't had Modlites here for about three years," he said.

"The likes of Michael Miller has been around for a long time in different classes.

"Trevor Knuckey used to race Speedcars and Ryan Alexander is nominated for Super Sedans and Modlites, so he will have a busy night.

"They have boosted their numbers and are looking good.

"They are a nice little car and will put on some real good racing."

At the time of going to print patrons were again limited to 1000 through the gate - which includes drivers and crew - due to COVID-19 restrictions, but Jennings said the club hoped to increase that number to 2000 if possible.

However, patrons are urged to get in quick

A couple of names will be missing from the list due to the coronavirus outbreak in NSW, including Marcus Dumesny.

However, some Victorian cars and drivers are expected to fill the void and the field promises to provide plenty of action for speedway erts are always at the pointy end of the class,' Jennings said.

"Ryan Alexander from Adelaide always makes them work hard.

"A lot of the guys raced at the Australian title and Sarah Pope is listed, which is good to to secure a spot on the grass around the clay oval.

Tickets are available online - check the Borderline speedway Facebook page for a link. Gates will open at 4pm, with racing to start from 5pm.

CLASSIC: Some classic machinery such as W-series Harley Davidsons will be on track in January for the SA Historic Road Racing Championships.

IT was the worst possible way to round out 2020 for North Sportman's Cricket Club on Saturday with a demoralising defeat at the hands of West Gambier.

Round 5 of the Hoggies Wines Barber Shield competition was set down as a one-day fixture, with North at its home of Marist Park, but West paid little respect to the venue.

Having won the toss, the visitors sent the hosts into bat and the carnage began almost immediately.

With just five runs on the board opener Brad Robinson was caught by Justin deJong off the bowling of Kyal Chapman for two runs.

Four runs late Aiden Thatcher was bowled by Sam Willis, also for two and the Roos were up and about.

Elliott Fisher joined opener Jake Schutz at the crease and steadied the ship somewhat, but runs were hard to find.

With the total on 21 Schutz fell to a Willis catch off the bowling of Lachlan Brown and the Tigers were in real trouble.

Michael Johnston came and went without bothering the scorers, another victim of Brown, while Jordan Hollitt also recorded a Roos began to find some runs. duck, caught by Connor Prior off Chapman.

When Mitch Lewis and Declan Kenny went for ducks it was all-but over for North.

Fisher was finally caught behind off Richard Crute for 10 and North had slumped to 8/33.

Just a further nine runs were added to the total, with North all out for 42 in just the 24th over.

West began in similar fashion, with Niall Easterbrook out for a duck, caught by Hollitt off Tim Young

But from there the innings settled and the Prior and Jake Blackwell put on 37 before the latter was run out by Kenny for 18.

Prior went for 23 when the victory had already been locked away and the double-figure scores continued.

Crute contributed 19, Sam Coxon 14, Willis 24 and Chapman 13 before a string of failures rounded out the innings.

West batted out its 40 overs, finishing the day at 9/128.

With the ball Crute was best for the visitors with the impressive figures of 5/4 off 4.3 overs.

WHILE it was meant to be a home game for Mil Lel, Round 5 of the Hoggies Wines Barber Shield cricket season was played at Scott Park, with East Gambier enjoying the home turf yet again.

In the end it was a comfortable victory to the Bulldogs as the Mil Lel batting lineup collapsed under the pressure of some quality bowling.

Mil Lel sent East into bat and as with the other two games, the first wicket came early.

Darren Whitehorn faced five balls for a duck, caught by Tim McInerney off the bowling of Jack Miller with just one run on the board.

However, from there East began to dig in, as Alex Hentschke and Emerson Marks compiled a handy 83-run partnership.

Marks was caught by Craig Lock off the bowling of Darcy Williamson for a handy 36 runs, while Hentschke went just one run later for 40, caught by Carey Megaw off Mitchell Little.

PENOLA rounded out 2020 with a comfortable Hoggies Wines Barber Shield victory over South Gambier at McCorquindale Park on Saturday.

The win came on the back of an impressive captain's knock by Mark Smith, who finished unbeaten with 83 runs.

The opener scored at better than a run a ball, as Penola was all out in the 31st overs of the run chase, but with a comfortable lead by that stage.

The home side won the toss and sent the visitors into bat, which paid dividends immediately.

With just one run on the board Daniel Loupos was caught behind by Smith steadied the ship and took the score along to 120 before the former also fell to Williamson, with 16 runs to his name.

Thomson contributed 26, while Travis Younghusband was the only other Bulldog to reach double figures.

However, East finished its 40 overs at 8/172 to provide a tough run chase for Mil Lel.

Megaw and Williamson both finished with two wickets.

Mil Lel began in positive fashion, with openers McInerney and Lock looking settled at the crease.

However, runs were hard to come by and when Lock fell to Liam Turley he had faced 29 balls for his 15 runs.

Megaw and Jonathan Allcock failed to reach double figures, while Daniel Justin off 62 balls and when losh Smith fell for 11. bowled by Marks, Mil Lel was in trouble at 6/75

To add to the drama two wickets followed in quick succession, with Miller and Brodie Glynn both failing to bother the scorers.

Logan Gibbs pushed the run rate along, with a handy 27 off 34 deliveries, but in the 33rd over Mil Lel was all out for just 101 runs. Thomson did the damage with the ball, with figures of 3/18 off six overs.

The Barber Shield now has a short break over Christmas, with the next round set down as a one-day clash on January 9.

HUNGRY: Liam Turley claimed two wickets in East Gambier comfortable victory over Mil Lel in Round 5 of Barber Shield cricket on Saturday at Scott Park.

off the bowling of Michael Waters for no score

David Somerfield joined Robert Drenthen at the crease and the pair began to compile a partnership.

They added a further 26 to the total before Drenthen was also caught behind, this time off Lachlan Jones, for 17.

Josh Thompson was bowled by Waters for a duck with just one more run added to the total and South was struggling.

David Vine was unable to add any extra runs to the total, bowled by Jones for a duck soon after and when Somerfield was caught off the bowling of Conrad Slabber for 32, South had slumped to 5/57.

DRIVING past the Mount Gambier Bowls Club it is hard to miss a big crane sitting down near the clubhouse.

A major construction has been underway, with a roof going over the top of the middle green.

The roof will cover seven rinks and allow the club to play bowls even in persistent rain.

Tim Pietsch

0407 187 767

Some three years in the planning, the roof was expected to go up this week, but some delays have pushed that date back until mid-January, 2021.

With a $500,000 price tag, the roof is expected to cover its cost over its 40-year lifespan, simply due to more bowls being played and a possible increase in membership, as has been seen at other regional clubs around the country.
