Woods protests federal fund cut

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Grosse Pointe Woods stands to lose as much as $21,000 in 1982 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds, and possibly more in state and federal funds, based on disputed 1980 census figures.

At its November meeting, the Wayne County CDBG Advisory Commission voted to use the 1980 figures, even though the Woods has disputed them, according to Terry Jarvis of the Wayne County Office of Intergovernmental Affairs.

"If the final figures come out showing the city has less than 20,000 population, it would be the action of the commission to give the city $99,000," Jarvis said, rather than the $120,000 it received in past years.

In a letter dated Nov. 6, Woods administrative aide Gerald McNamara wrote, "we have cross-checked every enumeration district in our city and produced the name of every man, woman, and child in our city.

"Any action to reduce our CDBG allocation on the basis of population," the letter continued, "would be an orror"

The census saga began in October, 1980 when the U.S. Census Bureau released its final preliminary figures, showing the Woods with a 14 percent decrease in population, to 18,663 persons and a drop in housing units to 6,630.

A challenge of the figures filed by City Administrator Chester Petersen claimed the census bureau missed over 2,000 people and 102 housing units when it conducted its count.

Petersen's challenge, which used the city's tax rolls to count houses, and park permits and other methods to count people, found the city had a population of 20,689 and 6,732 housing units.

Petersen could not put a total dollar figure on the amount of CDBG, federal and state funds the city would lose, but pointed out that state and federal revenue sharing allocations are based at least partially on census figures.

The city is already facing cutbacks in state and federal revenue sharing, Petersen said, but for a different reason, since both have begun budget slashing in those areas.

"The governor has already cut back state revenue sharing by executive order," Petersen said, and the new formula has yet to be devised, leaving the city in a position of not knowing how much will be lost.

Federal revenue sharing has already begun to dry up because of budget cuts by the Reagan administration, Petersen said

Most of the CDBG money was being used for sewer and street work, and Petersen said the cut would mean that the city "would do that much less" work.

The loss of the money won't mean budget woes for the city, however, Petersen stressed, since the city has already made reductions in spending.

"It's not going to effect our operating budget," Petersen said, "because it's not a part of our operating fund."

Park budget -- so far so good

The city of Grosse Pointe Park's financial condition "looks pretty good" for the first three months of the year, despite continuing cuts in state and federal revenues, according to the city's top financial officer.

Clerk-Comptroller Nunzio Ortisi told the Park council last week that he expects the city's $4.2 million budget to remain balanced for the 1981-82 fiscal year. Last year the city ran a $119,000 deficit and was forced to reduce its police force and other departments to stay in the black.

Ortisi said revenues from the state may be reduced by $20,000 more than earlier anticipated because of the Michigan budget crunch. The decline in revenues to cities reflects the loss of revenues generated by the state single business, gas and weight and sales taxes. In 1980, the city budgeted for more than $700,000 in state revenue. This year that figure was cut to $591,000, and still may be reduced more.

But Ortisi told the council that he hopes revenue from higher interest rates on city investments will offset the cuts from the state. Ortisi said he expected about 12 percent interest on city investments when the budget was drawn up and he later invested some funds at rates as high as 17 percent.

Ortisi's report to the council covered three months ending Sept. 30, 1981.

Park tax rates were raised to 18.10 mills last year in order to balance the deficit budget. (A mill equals $1

DSO premieres Hartway's Cityscapes

By Tom Greenwood

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra's New Year season will include the premier performance of "Cityscapes," a concerto for jazz quartet and orchestra, written by and featuring Grosse Pointe composer Jim Hartway.

"Cityscapes," a fusion of symphonic literature and sophisticated progressive jazz; suggests aspects of city life and pulls the audience into the piece.

"Some say the marriage of jazz and symphonic music can't be done," said Hartway, professor in the Department of Music at Wayne State University. "One is so free, the other very set in its approach. However, Gershwin proved it with 'Rhapsody in Blue.' I have high hopes for this piece, but I'm still crossing my fingers."

"CITYSCAPES" came into existence when Detroit Symphony Orchestra conductor Kenneth Jean approached Hartway about providing the DSO with a totally new piece combining a jazz combo with a symphony.

Robert Semple, Chairman of the DSO, was approached and enthusiastically backed the project emotionally and financially. Hartway has dedicated the piece to Semple, as a

"patron of the arts, with fondness and much thanks and respect."

According to Hartway, "City-scapes" is divided into three major movements. "The first, entitled 'Sunday Morning' is a sacred sound picture of Sunday religious activities," he said. "The church bells and brass chorale are only briefly developed and commented upon by full orchestra and quartet."

"Weekdays' gives a more secular view of city life with bustling, positive forceful activities contrasted by a more lyrical outlook," continued Hartway.

The jazz quartet takes the lead in introducing the melodic materials that the orchestra restates. Improvised jazz solos with orchestral background predominate the main body of the movement, with both quartet and orchestra repeating the main theme together at the end.

"The third movement, 'Saturday Night,' constitutes the uptempo finale of the work," said Hartway. "This movement depicts city residents in a light-hearted, lively mood. Jazz solos and orchestral background form the middle of the piece."

Played without pause, the total duration of "Cityscapes" is flexible, (14 to 20 minutes) depending on the length of the solos.

Arts lose friend in M. Diamond

By Tom Greenwood

"Patron of the arts and music,"
"fashion leader" and "astute businesswoman" were some of the phrases used to describe Margaret Diamond, an elegant and soft spoken woman loved and respected by all who knew her.

Mrs. Diamond, 60, of the Shores, died Tuesday, Nov. 24 in Houston, Tex., of complications following heart surgery.

Born in Sydney, Australia, Mrs. Diamond moved to America after marriage to husband James in 1946.

For the past 10 years, she had operated the Margaret Diamond Shop on Fisher Road, a meeting place for fashionably dressed socialites and celebrities from around Michigan and the United States.

In connection with her status as a fashion leader, Mrs. Diamond was a regional director of the Fashion Group of Detroit.

SHE WAS ALSO heavily involved with the art world, serving last summer as a patron of the War Memorial's Summer Festival Series. Mrs. Diamond was also a trustee of the Michigan Opera Theatre and served as a patron of the Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Grosse Pointe Symphony.

Although her time was always heavily in demand, Mrs. Diamond seldom missed an opening night or benefit dinner. Other interests included volunteer work for the March of Dimes, Project Hope and Salvation Army. She also devoted much of her time visting the sick and the aged.

Blessed with a gift for recognizing and cultivating talent in others, Mrs. Diamond was also known for her artistry as a sculptor and pianist.

Mrs. Diamond is survived by her husband, James and three sisters and a brother, all in Australia.

Prayer services were held Friday evening, Nov. 27, at the Verheyden Funeral Home. Funeral services were held Saturday at the Cathedral Church in St. Paul, Detroit.

Memorial tributes may be made to the Margaret Diamond Memorial Fund of Assumption Greek Orthodox Church, 21800 Marter Road, St. Clair

Kids and sex education

Learning about the birds and bees after school

By Joanne Gouleche

You're in the kitchen peeling potatoes or in the garage fiddling with the carburetor and, out of the blue, your pubescent child wanders up and asks if unmarried people can have children and what causes twins. Don't stutter, turn pale-faced and say the stork is responsible for the world's twins. Breathe easy and continue peeling your potatoes.

The Grosse Pointe Health Education Council in cooperation with Grosse Pointe's public and private schools has been educating youngsters the last several years after school about that mysterious three-lettered word — sex.

According to Julie Bourke, chairman for GPHEC's sex education program, student participation is very good amid the giggles and shyness kids display about their young bodies.

"Parents are glad it has reinforced what they are teaching at home," Mrs. Bourke said. "Some kids, though, don't have parents and many come from single-family homes, so it really halve."

The GPHEC program began in the 1960s when parents came to school officials to assist them in teaching sex education to their children. Back then school nurses and girl scout leaders taught some sex education only to girls, but the program was eventually phased out.

Now, fourth grade girls, and fifth and sixth grade boys and girls focus on anatomy and physical education with the aid of booklets, lectures and films like "Naturally a Girl," "There's a New You Comin' for Boys" and "A Growing Trip." Mrs. Bourke said sixth grade youngsters discuss responsibility for their bodies. All participants need parental consent to attend the classes.

Fourth grade girls meet once a year, while fifth and sixth grade boys

Community Chorus sings

The Grosse Pointe Community Chorus, directed by Richard Johns and accompanied by Frances Wilson, will present its 30th annual Christmas Concert on Sunday, Dec. 13, at 3 p.m. in the Parcells School auditorium, Mack at Vernier.

The concert will feature musical selections of various ethnic origins ranging from sacred-traditional to folk songs. Highlighting the concert will be the Song of Christmas, story of the nativity, by Ron Ringwald.

A reception for the audience and chorus will follow the concert. Tickets are $2 for adults, 75 cents for children and students and are available at the door. For information call 886-0710 and girls meet separately twice a year in classrooms in each school. Trained volunteers, including nurses, physical education teachers and even ministers, discuss the plain facts of puberty.

A workshop for teachers and principals to show what goes on in the classroom will be held at Monteith school Dec. 7. In January a similiar workshop will be sponsored for parents at University Liggett School

"We are very pleased with the cooperative relationship we have had with the council," said Dr. Alfreida Frost, public schools' director of elementary curriculum.

Dr. Frost admitted it would be hard for some public school teachers to get up in a roomful of kids and openly discuss sex and added the Birmingham schools have contacted her about the program in Grosse Pointe.

The kids may squirm in their seats, Mrs. Bourke says, but they have "lots and lots" of questions about sex and their bodies "You wouldn't believe it, but many kids are street-wise about sex," Mrs. Bourke said.

While fifth and sixth grade boys and girls are separated, sixth grade classes do eventually see a film together. There are no scheduled classes for fourth grade boys because they are not mature enough to understand sexual concepts, Mrs. Bourke said.

Classroom booklets are frank about sex organs and their functions, sexual intercourse and how a baby develops from conception to birth. The GPHEC has not had any complaints about the openness, except recently about toxic shock syndrome through the use of tampons.

"Some mothers were concerned about the accuracy of our information," Mrs. Bourke said.

The GPHEC receives much of its material through sex education consultant Dr. Mary Panessa of Clawson and through Dr. Guy and Marilyn Doyle of the Educational Resources Clinic in St. Clair Shores, Mrs. Bourke said. The schools also provide some films.

In addition to the sex education program, the non-profit GPHEC, founded in 1945 to serve as a link between the home and school in providing programs of health education, also sponsors CPR and breast self-examination classes.

Detroit Symphony Orchestra premiers Cityscape

Primary soloist of Hartway's creation will be saxophonist Larry Nozero, a skilled jazz musician with 20 years of diversified experience.

"It was an easy choice to make," said Hartway. "Larry is not only an old friend, he's one of the most expressive, sensitive and gifted jazz players on today's music scene."

In the past Nozero has performed with Henry Mancini, Sergio Mendez and recorded several albums of his own. He represented Detroit with his quartet in the 1980 and 1981 Montreaux Jazz Festivals in Montreaux. Switzerland, and performed concerts with the quartet at the 1980-81 Montreaux-Detroit Jazz Festivals.

"I couldn't ask for a more versatile soloist around which to build a piece," added Hartway.

Hartway began work on "Cityscapes" in May of this year and fin-ished it in October. Technically he devoted four to five hours a day on the project. "Actually, it was in my

Graham makes appointments

The Park's new mayor Douglas Graham made several committee appointments at the council's Monday, Nov. 23 meeting.

The Beautification Commission, chaired by Susan S. Callahan, will get three new members, Frank Romano, who has served on the group's architectural-historical committee, Ann MacDonald, former city council member, and Carroll Evola, current council member.

More vacancies on the Beautification Commission still exist, Graham said. He is accepting recommendations, he added.

The Ordinance Review committee will be headed by Councilman John Prost as chairman. Mark Valente, recently elected to the council will also serve on the committee along with Graham, its past-chairman.

Graham, citing promises made during his November campaign for the mayor's seat, also appointed Councilman Patricia Forster to study the formation of a new citizens advisory commission on parks and recreation. Mrs. Forster, who during her recent campaign for office proposed a family fee for park passes, accepted the appointment.

Councilman Evola also was appointed to study communication with citizens in the Park, including how to improve the city's use of cable TV, newsletters and local newspapers. Mrs. Evola accepted her appointment.

Earlier last month Councilman Anthony Spada was re-appointed the Park's representative on a committee studying Grosse Pointe's possible conversion to a district court system. Former Councilman John Fildew was also re-appointed to represent the Park on the Grosse Pointe-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority.

as time goes on." After January, Hartway, who lives in the Park, plans to promote the piece and to perform it out of state. "I have high hopes for "Cityscapes," he said. "I feel it'll be popular. It's one of the most exciting projects I've ever been involved with. I can't wait until it's performed."

"Cityscapes" (featuring Hartway on piano), is scheduled Jan. 7, 8 and 9 at 8:30 p.m. at Ford Auditorium. Ticket prices are $15, $12.50, $11, $9.50 and $7.

The city expects to receive about $3.2 million in general property taxes this year, $590,000 from the state, $42,000 from licenses and permits, $100,000 from fines and forfeitures, $76,000 for charges for services, $112,-000 from interest on investments, $60,000 from collection fees, $8,000 from the federal CETA program and $40,000 from parking meters. Total revenues equal over $4.2 million.

On the expenditure side, Ortisi told the council it will spend about $641,-500 on general government, $1.3 million on police, $746,000 on fire, $1 million on public works and $232,000 on parks and recreation during 1981"Motor City Sequence" and the score to "Ebeneezer," which will be performed by the Harbinger Dance Company at the Music Hall Theatre Dec. 9 to 12. A spokesman for the Census Bureau said final figures for Grosse Pointe communities will be available after the first of next year.

Three other Grosse Pointe cities also showed population declines in the 1980 census. While they lost some tunding from state and federal sources which are distributed on the basis of population, they did not fall into lower CDBG classifications as the Woods did

Final preliminary census figures show the Park dropping from 15,641 persons in 1970 to 13,297 in 1980 (15 percent decline), the City from 6,637 to 5,910 (11 percent), the Farms from 11,701 to 10,556 (9.8 percent).

The Shores was the only Pointe to grow in population during the last decade. Census figures show a 3.4 percent increase from 2,907 to 3,006 persons.

The 1980 population of all five Pointes is 51,641, according to the census bureau's most recent figures. That number represents a 12 percent drop from the 1970 total population of 58,764.

Mandatory sentencing bill goes to Senate

By Mike Andrzejczyk

State Sen. John Hertel can't say how many signatures he has collected so far on his petition drive for mandatory sentences for persons who commit felonies against anyone over 60 years. But he credits the drive with recently getting the bill out of the Senate Judiciary Committee, where it has spent the last four years.

Hertel said the growing support for his petition got the Judiciary Committee to vote on the measure, the first vote since it has been in committee, moving the bill on to the full Senate.

The committee's vote was four in favor, two opposed and one not voting.

"Criminals purposely select older people as victims because they are less able to defend themselves, Hertel said. "Something must be done to deter these crimes, and I believe certainty of punishment is the Further, the prison term could not be suspended, and the person would be ineligible for probation or parole during the first five years of the sentence. In addition, it would run consecutively rather than concurrently with any other sentence im-

"We must tell criminals in no uncertain terms that singling out older citizens is dangerous rather than a safe bet," Hertel said. "We owe our senior citizens at least that much."

This is Hertel's second effort at mandatory sentencing. The first, cosponsored by his brother Dennis, who later moved on to Washington, D.C. as Congressman, resulted in a two-year mandatory sentence for crimes committed with a firearm.

That legislation, Hertel claims, has resulted in lower rates of murder and gunshot wounds.

CITING FIGURES compiled by the Wayne County Prosecutor's office from January, 1978 to January, 1980 Hertel said murders with firearms were down 30 percent. Also, Detroit General Hospital, over the same period, reported the number of gunshot wounds treated down 52 percent,

Hertel said he was frustrated by the inaction of the Judiciary Committee which had failed to vote on the measure since its introduction in 1977, and decided to take his bill directly to the voters.

"I've now come full circle," he said at a September local city council meeting, "and decided to put together a petition drive.'

"crime against the elderly has much greater physical, psychological, economic and social impact." "Oftentimes the elderly victim becomes permanently disabled, is unable to recover economically, or is forced to change his or her life style as a result of criminal attack." Hertel's district has the highest average age in the state at 38 years. Presently, six states have laws aimed at curbing crime against the elderly. Three states, California, Louisiana, and Tennessee, have mandatory sentences for crimes committed against senior citizens, 65 or older. The California law has been upheld in that state's Supreme Court. Mandatory sentencing for crimes committed with a gun have been upheld in the Michigan Supreme Court, adding precedent for the constitutionality of stricter penalties against criminals who commit crimes against the elderly, since the gun law was

In addition to protection for the elderly, Hertel said the number of convicted criminals who aren't sentenced to prison is the other major reason he pushes mandatory sentences.

"If you take a look at the crime figures, you'll find that one in 10 people convicted of kidnapping never served a day in prison," Hertel said. "And that's of those convicted. I believe there should be a mandatory sentence for every violent crime."

Social Security tax increase

Both Social Security tax rates and the maximum amount of earnings taxed will rise Jan. 1 under provisions of the 1977 Social Security Amendments, according to James T. Moslener, district manager of the local Social Security office.

Moslener said the maximum Social Security tax on wages will rise by $195.75 to $2,170.80. This is a result of increases in the Social Security tax rate from 6.65 percent to 6.7 percent, and in the maximum taxable earnings base going from $29,700 to $32,400. Employers' contributions will rise by the same amount.

An average worker earning $13,729 in 1981 and paying $912.98 in Social Security taxes will pay $1,008.02 in 1982 based on an estimated salary of $15,045. Low-income workers earning $6,968 in 1981 and paying $463.37 in Social Security taxes will pay $511.61 in 1982 based on an estimated income of $7,636. Employer's contributions will rise by the same amount, Moslener said.

For self-employed persons, the 1982 tax rate will rise from 93 percent to 9.35 percent next year, resulting in a maximum possible Social Security tax of $3,029.40 on the new maximum taxable base of $32,400, a tax increase of $267.30 over this year.

Other changes will also become effective Jan. 1 as a result of the automatic provisions of the Social Security Act. Among these changes are:

• The maximum amount of earnings that a beneficiary under age 65 may earn in a year without losing any Social Security benefits will increase from $4,080 in 1981 to $4,440 in 1982.

 The exempt amount for beneficiaries aged 65 to 72 will increase from $5,500 in 1981 to $6,000 in 1982.

• Beneficiaries who are aged 72 or over may earn any amount without losing benefits, beginning with the month in which they are 72.

The 1982 increase in the maximum taxable earnings was determined under automatic adjustment provisions in the law. These provisions specify a formula which automatically keeps the earnings base up to date as wage levels increase.

More information about the changes can be obtained either by contacting the Social Security office located at 17420 Mack Avenue, or by calling the Social Security information number at 493-1111,

Five hurt in Shores crash

Five people were treated and released at St. John Hospital the night of Friday, Nov. 27, after they were involved in an auto accident at Lakeshore Road and Woodland Shores at the southern limits of Grosse Pointe Shores.

Shores police and EMS units were called to the scene about 7:30 that night, after reports from a resident that an accident had occurred. Upon arriving at the intersection, officers found James Thompson, 22, of Detroit lying on the traffic island, complaining of pains in his right ankle and right shoulder.

The other injured were the driver, Anthony Crittendon, 27, injured in the jaw; his brother Raymond, 26, who complained of a sore back; and Jessica Mitchell, 21, whose right palm was cut. All are from Detroit. The fourth injured person was Chris Chronopoulos, 20, of St. Clair Shores, who suffered various cuts and bruises.

Reports indicate that Crittendon and the others were riding in a 1978 Ford Mustang, traveling south on Lakeshore in the outside lane when, approaching Woodland Shores, a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Catherine Goulder, 23, of Grosse Pointe Woods, made a right turn onto Lakeshore from Woodland Shores,

Police reports indicate Crittendon applied the brakes, skidded 70 feet before making contact, flipped, and then slid another 100 feet before coming to rest on its top in the center island:

Crittendon's car struck Goulder's car in the driver side door, slid along the front of the car, and blew the left front tire. Goulder's car came to rest just past the cross-over on Lakeshore in the left hand lane.

Reports indicate that all Crittendon could remember of the accident was "someone cut him off."

Goulder told police she was eastbound on Woodland Shores and had waited at Lakeshore for two cars to pass and then made a right turn onto Lakeshore. The next thing she remembered, reports indicate, was something hit the side of her car and blew the tire.

Goulder then put her car in park, turned off the engine, and waited for police to arrive.

No tickets were issued to the drivers, Public Safety Director Joseph Vitale said, and alcohol was not involved.

Woodward Avenue will close down Scarab Club and Your Heritage

House.

The new 1½ year Flex-Rate

Available for the first time, right now. A new high interest Retirement Savings Plan for the investment of Individual Retirement Account funds. If you are eligible for an IRA, it allows you to shelter up to $1,500 from your Federal Income taxes in a brand new way. And, the Flex-Rate plan is fully insured by the F.D.I.C. It's new and different because its interest rate changes weekly with the auction rate on 13-week U.S. Treasury Bills, which means it keeps pace with the short term money market. After 18 months it can automatically be renewed.*

No Restrictions

Open a NBD Flex-Rate Retirement Savings Plan with any amount of money; and add any amount to it any time during its 18-month lifespan. Any deposits you make during this time will also mature at the end of that 18-month period.

Member FDIC

At NBD, retirement savings can get you a tax deduction, a tax deferment and a whole lot more.

Any eligible contribution to your retirement savings plan is deductible from your income the year it's earned. The beauty of a tax-deferment is that, when you are taxed, at retirement, you probably will be in a lower tax bracket, and therefore you'll be taxed at a lower rate. But at NBD, you get a good deal more... because Retirement Savings Plans are part of The System and a balance of $1000 qualifies you for a no service charge Unibank Checking Account; a $5000 balance qualifies you for a no-service-charge Unibank Interest Checking/Now Account; and a deposit of $2000 or more qualifies for a waiver of the service fee on your NBD MasterCard/Visa.

More Information

If you want your hard-working money to work even harder for you, come into your nearest National Bank of Detroit office and find out more about the variety of retirement savings plans we have for you.

*Contributions to your 1981 Retirement Savings Plans can be made when you file your 1981 Federal Income taxes. The deadline is April 15, 1982, Federal regulations require substantial interest penalties for withdrawals made prior to maturity. IRS regulations provide for substantial penalties for withdrawals before age 59%.

Woods man foils robbery

A Woods man apparently foiled a robbery at his home the night of Tuesday, Nov. 24, frightening the robbers off before they had a chance to pick up the items they had stacked in front of an open door,

The owner and his mother returned to their Hawthorne Road home about 9 p.m. After entering the home, the owner told police he heard noises through the side door of a stairway leading to the kitchen. The dog was barking when it was let out of the kitchen, police were told, and when the man opened the door leading to the dining room, the dog ran through the house, out the open door in the sun porch, and to

TAX-FRE Here's what the one-year All Savers Certificate can mean You can exclude up to $2,000.00 interest from federal

GIFT OFFER ENDS FRIDAY, DECEMBER 18

- income tax on a joint return ($1,000.00 on an individual return). The amount excluded is also not taxed by the State of Michigan.
- Your All Savers Certificate is insured to $100,000.00 by the FSLIC.
- Your interest rate is guaranteed for the full term of the certificate, unlike other investments such as money market funds where rates fluctuate daily.
- You can participate with a deposit of $500.00 or more.
- Funds in your Standard Federal 26-Week Money Market Certificate can be transferred to an All Savers Certificate without any early withdrawal penalty on the transferred

If you elect to receive interest at maturity there is no compounding and the interest rate on your All Savers Certificate will be 8.34%. If you wish to have interest payable monthly or quarterly, the annual simple interest rate on your All Savers Certificate will be 8.010% and interest retained in your All Savers Certificate will be continuously compounded for an effective annual yield of 8.34%. These rates are available for All Savers Certificates opened through December 24, 1981. Rates for accounts opened after December 24, 1981, will be announced later. However, the rate established at the time an All Savers Certificate is opened is the rate in effect for the full one-year term of the account. You should also know that in the event of early withdrawal from an All Savers Certificate federal law and regulations require a substantial early withdrawal penalty and loss of the interest exclusion for federal income tax purposes. The All Savers rate of 8.34% is equivalent to the yields for taxable investments shown in the table. This table demonstrates how the All Savers Certificates can provide you with a higher after-tax yield than you may be earning from a money market mutual fund or on other investments. The deposit needed in your All Savers Certificate to achieve the maximum allowable deduction is $23,980.82 for a joint return and $11,990.41 for an individual return.

Compare the Tax-Free All Savers Rate of 8.34% with Yields on Taxable Investments.

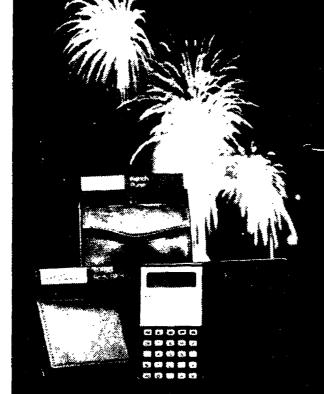

TAXABLE INCOME ON A JOINT RETURN	COMPARABLE YIELD ON TAXABLE INVESTMENTS	TAXABLE INCOME ON A JOINT RETURN	COMPARABLE YIELD ON TAXABLE INVESTMENTS
$10,000.00	10.17%	$ 70,000.00	18.13%
20,000.00	10.97%	80,000.00	18.13%
30,000.00	13.24%	90,000.00	20.34%
40,000.00	14.63%	100,000.00	20.34%
50,000.00	16.35%	110,000.00	23.17%
60,000.00	16.35%	120,000.00	23.17%

The yields shown in this table are based on 1981 tax rates but do not reflect the effects of any tax credits that may be available in 1981, nor do they take into account the 50% maximum tax rate on salary and wages. If lax-free interest is received in 1982, the comparable yield on taxable investments should be calculated using 1982 tax rates. In addition, the yield for the Alt Savers Certificate actually will be somewhat higher because the amount excluded from federal income tax is also not taxed by the State of Michigan.

Shoplifters pinched at Penneys

Two Detroit women were arrested the afternoon of Saturday, Nov. 28 at J.C. Penney, 19251 Mack, in the Woods, after they allegedly left the store with $83 worth of clothes they hadn't paid for.

Police were called to the scene around 3 p.m. by store security who said they had two shoplifters.

Upon arrival police found three store security people clustered around a green 1973 Dodge, inside of which a woman, Adrena Johnson, 23, had locked herself.

Police ordered Ms. Johnson out and handcuffed her after security guards identified her as one of the supposed shoplifters. The other, officers were told, had fled and was wearing a gray

Store security police said they saw two women walk into the store's restroom carrying merchandise. When the two came out, however, security police saw no merchandise, but noticed that a brown leather-type bag that one of the women had been carrying now appeared full.

The two were stopped and asked to go to the security office for further questioning. Then, police reports state, the two asked to see the store manager, and while he was being summoned, they fled.

Math students to state finals

Nearly 40 students from Grosse Pointe South and North high schools have qualified to participate in Part II of the Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition Dec. 9.

The competition is sponsored by the Michigan Section of the Mathematical Association of America and is designed to foster a wider interest in mathematics, to focus attention on the necessity for mathematical training in most professions and trades, and to identify and provide scholarships for capable mathematics students in the state of Michigan.

Competition funds include contributions from the Burroughs Corporation, Michigan Bell, the Kuhlman Corporation and the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics. North students qualifying this year include Julie Blake, Tom Cobau, Kim Cooper, David Fobare, Grant Gilezan, Margaret Krolikowski, Craig Pascoe, Ronald Pascoe, Mark Przeslawski, Glenn Rayos, Alex Rothis, Kemal Saglik, Kenneth Sanders, Michael Skaff, Dean Stevenson, Karen Thomas and Dennis Werthman.

South students advancing to the finals are Scot Allen, Cathie Axe, Louis Charbonneau, Ranya Dajani, Emile Ettedgui, Michael Fellows, Kenneth Fromm, Janet Garza, Thomas

Gentile, Michael Hershey and Elizabeth Hirt.

Other qualifiers were Shigeo Kotake, David Lyons, Paul McCarthy, Sara McLeod, Nigel Orton, Mary Skewes, Bruce Thomas, Michael Voy-danoff, Mark Walker, Christopher Whitney and Warren Whitney.

The examination, based on the subject matter of the high school mathematics curriculum, is in two parts. The first part, a multiple-choice examination, is designed to test the general mathematical background of the contestants. The second part is of a written character, and is designed to measure the mathematical ingenuity of the students.

Scores on Part I and Part II are combined in a 40 to 60 weighting to determine the prize winners. Last year $12,000 in scholarship prizes ranging from $1,000 to $150 were awarded to 49 students.

State wants lawyer's home

A Woods attorney is the target of lawsuit filed Monday, Nov. 16, in Wayne County Circuit Court by the State of Michigan which is seeking to recoup almost $12,000 in taxes allegedly owed by the attorney. William E. Bufalino II allegedly owes $11,980.61 in personal income and single business taxes for 1976-1980, the suit claims, and the state is seeking to foreclose on Bufalino's Woods home.

Bufalino's attorney Richard Lustic said the allegations stem from a time when Bufalino was working with a restaurant chain full time and as an attorney part-time.

Lustig said the state claims Bufa lino owes money on the revenue and other related benefits he earned a an attorney, even though he was ones working part-time and called the fore closure "merely a threat

ARTS presents women in jazz

Of all the moments captured during the Golden Age of live television, one of the most touching occurred on a 1957 program called "The Sound of Jazz." The scene has been eloquently described by jazz critic Nat Hentoff in his book "Jazz Is." The main characters are the great jazz singer Billie Holiday and the legendary tenor saxophonist Lester

"Perched on a high stool, she faced a semicircle of musicians who were all standing - except one - Lester Young. Prez (as Billie nicknamed him) . . . was slumped in a chair, his

". . . It was time for Prez to solo. Somehow he managed to stand up and then he blew the sparest, purest blues chorus I have ever heard. Billie, smiling, nodded to the beat, looked into Prez' eyes and he into hers. She was looking back with the gentlest of regrets at their past . . . Whatever had blighted their relationship was forgotten in the communion of the music. Sitting in the control room I felt tears, and saw tears on the faces of most of the others sitting there." tory of jazz and television will be seen again when ARTS, the Alpha , vidual styles. Repertory Television Service presents a three-part series entitled "Women In Jazz — The Vocalists," Monday, Dec. 7. On Grosse Pointe Cable, ARTS is on Channel 24.

Carmen McRae, the singers' singer, is host for this chronicle of the most important contribution of women to jazz — the art of jazz singing. Billie Holiday's memorable 1957 performance of "Fine and Mellow" is the climax of Part One — "From Bessie To Billie," a history of jazz singing (Monday, Dec. 7). Part Two-"Scatting" (Wednesday, Dec. 9) is a look at the unique style in which a singer emulates the sound of a horn player. Four contemporary jazz vocalists, Dakota Staton, Jean Lee, Sheila Jordan and Jay Clayton are showcased in Part Three - "Yesterday and Today" (Saturday, Dec. 12) which

Asthma program meets at St. John

The American Lung Association's Family Asthma Program will meet Wednesday, Dec. 9 at St. John Hospital in meeting room A of the Educational Complex, 22101 Moross Road in Detroit, at 7 p.m.

Robert Wetmore, Pharm. D., will discuss the newest methods for the treatment of asthma. Ron Harvey, R.R.T., and Carol Vick, R.R.T., will use "Superstuff," a brand new educational, self-help kit, to talk with the asthmatic children about their feelings on asthma to help them cope with the disease on a daily basis.

"Superstuff" is an 86-page, fully illustrated book with riddles, rhymes, puzzles, a game and t-shirt iron-on that teaches children about asthma with humor and fun, and is offered free to Family Asthma Program members.

The Family Asthma Program is a free service of the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan (ALASEM) made possible through the generous support of Christmas Seals contributors. Meetings are held monthly the second Wednesday at St.

Dentists' charges differ

There is some disparity across the nation in dental rates. In 1980, an initial oral examination that cost $14 in Detroit could be had for $6 in Minneapolis and was $23 in Los Angeles. Root canal work varied from $82 to $135, coast to coast.

Each show features a generous amount of excerpts from performances by such jazz greats as Ella Fitzgerald, Peggy Lee, Anita O'Day, Dina Washington, Sarah Vaughan, Helen Humes, Lambert, Hendricks and Ross, plus the first film ever made of a major jazz singer, the Empress of the Blues herself, Bessie Smith singing "St. Louis Blues" in

As a preview to "Women In Jazz— The Vocalists," here are several of the greatest ladies in jazz (or for that matter, all of music) talking about their careers.

BILLIE HOLIDAY on starting out:

'I stopped in at the Log Cabin run by Jerry Preston . . . I asked Preston for a job . . . told him I was a dancer. I tried it. He said I stunk. I told him I could sing. He said: sing. Over in the corner was an old guy playing piano. He struck 'Travelín' All Alone' and I sang The customers stopped drinking. They turned around and watched . . . Jeez, you should have see those people-all of them started crying. Preston came over, shook his head and said, "Kid, you win.' That's how I got my start."

ELLA FITZGERALD: "It was a dare from some girl friends. They bet I wouldn't go on (At the amateur night at the Harlem Opera House). I got up there and got cold feet. I was going to dance. The man said since I was up there I had better do something so I tried to sing like Connee Boswell - 'The Object of My Affection' . . . And that's how I got started winning all these shows."

ANITA O'DAY: (On how she got her name) "It was pig Latin for dough, and I wanted to make some." BILLIE HOLIDAY, on style: "I don't think I'm singing. I feel like I'm playing a horn. I try to impro-vise like Les Young, like Louis Armstrong or someone else I admire.

What comes out is what I feel." CARMEN McRAE: Lyrics are more important than melody to me. Some guy took a long time, maybe months or years to write it, and I figure that's the way he'd like to hear it.'

DINAH WASHINGTON: "I like to get inside a tune and make it mean something to the people that listen. Something more than just a set of lyrics and a familiar tune. And I can sing anything, anything at all."

ELLA FITZGERALD: "Mostly I like pretty things. I like the type of songs that are relaxed and tell a

PEGGY LEE: "If a lyric doesn't say something, it doesn't help you to love the music. People today want to feel and hear the sense of the lyrics."

Nutrition comes to day care

The Department of Family and Consumer Resources of Wayne State University has just completed a three-year program for day care centers to develop and in corporate nutrition learning and activities into their programs. The project was funded by a federal Nutrition Education Training project grant from the Michigan Department of Education

Under the direction of Melissa Kaplan of the FAC Department, the staffs of 17 day care centers serving 500 children were trained. In addition, over 100 day care providers received special nutrition educa-

Stressed throughout the project was the use of actual mealtime in the center as learning laboratories about food for the children. The participants received basic information about nutrition, why nutrition is important and how it relates to the child's social development, energy and ability to learn.

Kaplan discovered that sometimes in the centers there was absolute silence or chaos at mealtimes. The adults were not sitting with the children and thus were losing valuable opportunities to teach.

"Children learn best when they have actual physical contact with something. When apples are served, the adult can point out how and where apples grow," Kaplan said.

Parents can make mealtimes at home learning times also. Science skills can be taught by showing the difference between raw and cooked foods. Math skills can be developed as children learn to count the silverware needed and spatial skills developed as they learn to place the glasses, napkins and plates properly.

Parents can teach children how to share their food and how to make choices about food. In this way the children become involved in their own health and learn about themselves in relation to food.

"One must pay attention to food in order to eat properly and satisfy daily requirements," said Kaplan. "Eating is an important activity in itself, not something you do when you are doing something else."

-Prime Time-

-For Senior Citizens-

By Marian Trainor

Among the reports of gloom and doom emanating from the economic gurus is one that seniors cannot afford to retire. The gurus claim unless you have saved and invested substantial sums of money throughout your working years to supplement Social Security and pension, the retirement years will be somewhat lean.

But families struggling with mortgage payments, high utility bills and the costs of rearing children are not in a position to sait away a lot of cash or invest in securities. They like their parents will probably retire from work rich but not in money. Their wealth will be walking around on two legs in the persons of beloved sons and daughters with whom they are well pleased.

But the fact remains that traditional sources of retirement income do fall short of providing the same standard of living enjoyed during the working years.

Present generation retirees are finding it so. To postpone a readjustment in life style there are many who opt to remain in the work force until age 70 rather than getting out at 65. Although government regulations have provided for that option, many companies have found ways to make it almost impossible, or at the very least uncomfortable, for the older worker to stay on the job. If an older worker decides to get out in the hopes of finding employment elsewhere, he finds difficulties to that alternative also.

Such conditions put the over 65 citizen who wants to work or who needs to work in a Catch 22 situation. Retirement benefits are not sufficient to maintain an accustomed standard of living, they have marketable skills, the government has legislated their right to work until age 70, and yet it is difficult to remain on the job or to find a new one.

BUT THERE ARE ways of fighting back, through legislation, pushing for creative work schedules that allow for parttime assignments, or shared timed schedules timed schedules.

In accordance with the times, when litigation is called upon to settle problems in every field, increasing numbers of seniors are resorting to the law to rule on the right to work. In the two years since the Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) took over age discrimination cases from the Department of Labor, the number of complaints filed has more than doubled—from 3,097 in fiscal 1979 to 8,779 in fiscal 1981.

Age discrimination cases now account for one quarter of all the work done by the commission which also investigates race and sex discrimination.

Some of the testimony given by those facing age discrimination is truly revealing in the light that it sheds on excuses given by prospective employers to older citizens seeking work.

Some of the subtle and not so subtle excuses include: "you're overqualified" or "there's a freeze on hiring for that department." The hidden barrier in most cases was age. Age was not mentioned but the date of graduation from high school was unexpectedly thrown into questions concerning credentials. Responses to blind ads where applicants were directed to send resumes to a post office box were discarded on the basis of age.

Because of these practices, hiring discrimination cases that come before the EEOC are hard to prove. The bulk of the cases being brought to court and won by older job applicants involve layoffs or firings. The obvious reason is these cases are easier to win since a clearer record and basis of comparison exists.

Another force working against age discrimination in employment is the National Association of Older Workers Employment Services (NAOWES).

In a message to the current White House Conference on Aging, the group which is composed of private, nonprofit and public agencies, recommended that employment and the older person be addressed as a separate and high priority. This recommendation was based on discussions which asserted that American society cannot afford to squander the skills and experience possessed by older persons and that Social Security benefits and other unearned income does not provide sufficient income ent income.

NAOWES was formed to:

Collect and disseminate information on all aspects of voluntary employment services to older workers. Give guidance, leadership and help to existing older worker employment serv

City trees brighten Mack Avenue

If you're driving along Mack Avenue near Grosse Pointe City limits and spot Honey Locust, Crimson King Maple and Marshall Seedless Ash trees hovering over the skyline, you can thank city officials for their green thumbs.

Funded with Wayne County Community Development Block Grant monies, Grosse Pointe City planted some 77 trees along the Mack median and on the City side of the street last month, according to Chris Szej-Bach, administrative assistant and coordinator of the project.

Ms. SzejBach said plans for the project were drawn up by the city and approved by the Wayne County Road Commission earlier this month to improve the appearance of Mack.

Greater Detroit Landscaping Company planted the trees, including 280 on city right-of-ways, Ms. SzejBach Aging conference convenes in Washington, D.C. The 82 Michigan delegates to the Over 3,500 people participated Executive Director of the Luther Control of National White House Conference on Aging have a common goal: to assist in the development of a 10-year national agenda for aging. The commonality ends there.

The delegation, which participated in the Conference from Nov. 30 to Dec. 3 in Washington, D.C., is as diverse as the Michigan populous itself. They include union activists, clergy, minorities, housewives, liberals and conservatives. Fifty percent of the delegation is women, 29 percent is from rural areas. Most of the delegates are aged 55 or older.

Representatives from the Pointe include Woods Mayor George Freeman and Margheritta S. Allardice.

Each of the delegates is an individual, says Kenneth E. Oettle, Director of the State Office of Services to the Aging and one of the delegates to the Conference. "They all have particular issues which are of importance to them. But, they also are aware of the problems of Michigan's elderly," he pointed out, "and, I hope work for adoption of recommendations covering the state's top three concerns, which are economic security, health, and housing."

ing 1,500 official observers. Michigan has 35 observers which will also attend the Conference. Twenty of the delegates were elected at the State WHCoA last April, 16 were appointed by the Governor, 21 were Congressional appointments, and 26 were National Conference appointments.

Each of the Conference participants has been assigned to one of 14 committees which will be adopting resotions that will become part of the national policy statement an aging.

The 14 areas which will be studied are: Implications for the Economy of an Aging Population; Economic Well-Being; Older Americans as a Continuing Resource; Promotion and Maintenance of Wellness; Health Care and Services; Options for Long-Term Care; Family and Community Support Systems; Housing Alternatives; Conditions for Continuing Community Participation; Education and Training Opportunities; Concern of Older Women; Growing Number, Special Needs; Private Sector Roles and Structures; and Research.

Freeman has had plenty of contact with senior citizen's groups through his work with older people at the Lutheran Center.  Provide opportunities for the exchange of ideas by means of national and regional conferences and seminars.

 Assist in employment and increasing older worker employment services by working closely with appropriate organizations and government agencies.

• Improve older worker employment services through applied research.

• Develop and advocate public policy positions related to the needs and interests of older

An example of the dissemination of information is a description of Connecticut's employment services provided by the organization.

Connecticut's older worker employment services have a variety of techniques to capture the attention of employers and prospective clients. A slide show on the value of older workers and the range of successful placements is shown to community groups.

Experts in employment, education, volunteer work and recreation meet every six months in West Hartford to counsel job applicants in identifying their skills and setting goals. New Haven's Sage Advocate Employment Service sponsored a luncheon for New Haven Business and Industry leaders who were addressed by the district Congressman and industry spokespersons. Results of the meeting were job orders, a periodical listing of older worker applicants mailed to area businesses by the Chamber of Commerce and an announcement about the employment service enclosed in the billing statement of the water company.

An example of a public policy position which the NAOWES promoted was the joint resolution by the U.S. Senate to authorize and request the Presiden to designate the week of Sept. 6 to 12, 1981 as "Older Americans Employment Opportunities Week." Written into the Congressional Record, June 22, 1981, the resolution urged our Nation's employers to give special consideration to older workers with a view toward promotion of expanded career and employment opportunities for older workers.

NAOWES presented a resolution to the National Council on Aging at a conference outlining the need to provide information on the organization of older workers employment services. Of particular concern were answers to such questions as where to go for money to start an employment program and what alternatives there are to the too few jobs and too many unemploved problem.

There are indications that such measures are influencing attitudes about older workers particularly when it comes to filling temporary positions. At Travelers Insurance in Hartford, Conn., retired employes help fill the 60 odd positions vacant each day because of illness or vacations. There are 269 employes on the payroll at Continental Illinois National Bank in Chicago who celebrated a 70th birthday. And, at Honeywell in Minneapolis, retirees are often called in to work on special projects. Travelers was so satisfied with its Older Americans Program that it is expanding it to provide permanent part-time jobs to retirees. The firm has identified 300 positions which could be shared by two retirees.

DR. HAROLD SHEPPARD, director of the National Council on Aging, says he is encouraged by the growing consciousness among employers that the elderly can be a valuable resource.

Last January, Robert Richardson founded the Retired Executive Craftsman's Guild, patterning it after the Junior Achievement program for youth. Under the program, retired craftsmen recondition multiple drill spindles for such firms as Deere and Company and Caterpillar. They can recondition the spindles and return the unit for about onefifth the cost of a new one. So while the companies are providing work for the retirees, they in turn are providing them with a product that equals a new one and cuts costs.

A study made at the University of Pennsylvania's gerontology department showed that older workers as a group have a lower rate of absenteeism and lateness, are more reliable and as productive as younger workers, except in the cast of heavy manual labor.

In Chicago an Illinois bank is taking part in an experiment that allows secretaries to work at home. At present the women involved are young, but older men and women could do the same work. Work at home is very suited to the older worker.

Water rate hearing is Dec. 18

The Detroit Board of Water Commissioners will hear comments from the public about proposed adjustments in water supply and sewage disposal rates and charges at a heating Friday, Dec. 18, at 9:30 a.m. in the Detroit Public Library, 5201 Woodward Avenue.

New rates are scheduled to be put into effect for Detroit and suburban customers on July 1, 1982. Water Board representatives will discuss the factors that led to the adjustments in rates and how the new rates will affect individual billings.

Individuals and groups may make oral presentations to the board on Dec. 18, or may submit prepared statements to Charles Beekham, director, Detroit Water and Sewerage Department, 735 Randolph, Detroit

The Grosse Pointes, along with more than 90 other suburban customers of the Detroit system, are fighting the water rate increases in court with a class action suit.

Their buttle has been led by Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara, who said last week that the group continues to "regard the imposition of , vene a meeting in mid-December of all higher water rates for non-Detroit residents ... as unnecessary, unfair and illegal." McNamara said suburban residents now pay two-thirds of the total revenue for the water-sewage system in Detroit.

McNamara, a former Water Board member, also said the plans to conmayors and executives of 96 suburban communities to inform them of recent legal decisions and future courses of

Corrado Joseph Parducci

World renown Italian-American architectural sculptor Corrado Joseph Parducci, of Colonial Court in the Shores, died Sunday, Nov. 22, in St. John Hospital.

Many of the most prestigious buildings in Michigan bear testimony to his talents, including the Detroit Public Library, Fisher, Penobscot and Guardian buildings, Shrine of the Little Flower Cathedral in Royal Oak and the Masonic Temple.

Born in the Province of Pisa in west central Italy's Tuscany region, he immigrated to New York City in 1904, where he served as a sculptor's apprentice.

In 1924, he moved to Detroit at the urging of architect Albert Kahn. His mastery of a variety of designs, including Roman, Gothic, Grecian, Romanesque, Byzantine and even American Indian kept him in demand for the next three decades.

Active and productive until shortly before his death, Mr. Parducci's final project was the cutting of stone sculptures he modeled for the state capitol in Albany, N.Y.

Mr. Parducci is survived by a son, Allen; two sisters; seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

'Arms and the Man' at Marygrove

"Arms and the Man," a comedy by George Bernard Shaw, is the second season offering of the Theatre Company of the University of Detroit, and will be presented at The Theatre, located on Marygrove College campus, 8425 West McNichols, Dec. 4, 5, 11 and 12, at 8 p.m.

The story Shaw tells is of a practical minded soldier who appears to be an unheroic military man, prefering to carry chocolates instead of bullets in his cartridge belt. When this reluctant soldier meets the overly zealous and idealistic daughter of the enemy's commanding officer, the ensuing complications satirize both ro mance and war. This production will be an American College Theatre Festival entry, an event won twice nationally by the Theatre Company, in 1978 and 1976, and will showcase the company's B F.A students.

"This play is a delightful war between the ideal and the real," director Arthur Beer said.

Ticket reservations and informaiont may be obtained by calling The Theatre Company Box Office at 927-1130 during regular office hours. Admission for students and senior citizens is $4.00, and general admission is $6.00. Group rates are available,

Dance, drama foster growth at Montesori

As a special feature in its afternoon program, the Montessori early school at the Grosse Pointe Academy holds half-hour classes in creative movement, creative drama and in creative approaches to geography.
"These programs help the children to grow intellectually, socially and emo-tionally," says Camille De Mario, S.S.J., principal of The Early School.

The Creative Movement Program is conducted by Academy faculty member Reva Davenport, who is a member of the Nonce Dance Company. Mrs. Davenport says that creative movement, "explores the basic elements of dance with joy, involvement and challenge. It fosters the child's personal and artistic growth. While experiencing a variety and range of movements, the child develops a dance vocabulary."

Self-awareness is further developed through creative dramatics taught by Maureen Pettit. "Creative dramatics can be defined as an art for children, a group experience in which every child is guided to express himself as he works and plays with others. This interaction results in the joy of creative, improvised drama," Mrs. Pettit "Through this program, the child's imagination is developed in a special way, because there is no script, costume or stage."

A geography program designed and conducted by Becky Frontera is also offered. Student creativity is fostered through a study of selected countries, combining activities such as creative cooking, mapping, art forms and a variety of hands-on and multi-media approaches.

"For example, the unit on American Indians before Thanksgiving included cooking kahneeta (Indian bread), mapping the land occupied by Indian tribes, learning Indian sign language and symbols, and learning and creating the ancient Indian art of sand painting by using food-colored cornmeal," Mrs. Frontera said. The unit will culminate with each child making his own book of American Indian activities done in Principal De Mario said that through the programs and activities, children develop hand-eye co-ordination and motor skills, which in turn, strengthen academic readiness. "We aim through our Montessori program to give our children a solid background and a love of learning which will carry over as the children move across campus to our Lower School," Mrs. De Mario said.

Beatitudes focus of Star juniors

By Gina Giardini

Star of Sea "The opportunity for students to put into practice, in a service way, what their religion means," is a clear description of what the Beatitudes class focuses on at Our Lady Star of the Sea High School, according to class instructor, Sr. Martha Goode,

The class was introduced into Star's curriculum five years ago, by Sr. Martha, as an alternative to the already existing religion class for Beatitudes gives each student an opportunity to try to live as Christ lived. A minimum of two hours of volunteer community service and one half hour of private reflection time in church each week are required.

Although volunteer community service is the major focus of the class, time is spent in studying each of Christ's eight Beatitudes in depth.

The class also allows each student to become involved and to understand love, vocation and the way to become the best person she can be. "Some of the girls don't think they're very worthwhile and the service they do gives them a feeling of being needed and appreciated," Sr. Martha said. Sixty-four of Star's juniors volunteer in the following areas: day-care work, handicapped swimming, tutoring and candy-striping. The girls volunteer their services at St. John's and Bon Secours Hospitals, Star's Elementary School, Brownell Middle School and the Foundation for Exceptional Children.

Time to rethink tax cuts

ing Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, are among the public officials who are distressed by the Reagan administration's cutbacks in federal aid. It is small wonder, then, that they have proposed cuts in the U.S. defense budget to make more federal funds available for meeting state needs during the recession

It is unlikely, however, that they will get much support from the administration. Secretary of Defense Casper W. Weinberger already has said flatly the defense budget could not be cut to help the states cope with their problems. "The decision to improve defenses cannot really be contingent on passing fluctuations in the economy, he told the Republican Governors Association in Washington last week. "There's far too much at stake, and, frankly, the economy is always going to be in a state of flux, advancing or retreating.

While President Reagan now has embarked on a new attempt to seek arms control with the Soviet Union, he contends that U.S. willingness to increase its defense spending, and thus strengthen its military capabilities, accounts for the Soviet Union's new interest in limiting or even reducing nuclear arms. So that doesn't indicate much sympathy with the Midwest GOP governors who have been seeking more state aid at the expense of the arms budget.

GOV. JAMES R. Thompson of Illinois did take issue mildly with Secretary Weinberger by contending that a sound economy, including jobs and a workable transportation system, is also part of defense. "My notion is that if the federal government does less than its share in contributing to the soundness of prosperity," he said, "then we are weakening our national defense internally as much as it weakens our national defense to adopt a policy of famine in external military hardware or systems."

Both positions make a good deal of sense. A strengthening of U.S. defenses is needed, despite the demonstrations against nuclear war and demands in some quarters for unilateral disarmament. But many states do need help in dealing with their economic and social problems. And Gov. Thompson is correct in emphasizing that the internal strength of a nation is an essential part of its national defense.

Nobody is suggesting the federal government should go further into debt to finance aid to the states, the cities and other governments needing help in coping with the recession. But the strong claims by the defense department and the states

Keep 'em working

Television, a New York Times reporter discovers, has increased the use of the "morning hour" in the U.S. House of Representatives but that may not be all bad.

The "morning hour" is the period during which members of the House are given permission to make one-minute addresses on any subject of their choice. The purpose is to get their words into the next day's issue of the Congressional Record. That means they also can make reprints and send them to their constituents as proof of their effectiveness in Washington.

Now that television records the proceedings of the House, it is also possible for House members or their political supporters to buy film clips and offer them to local TV stations as news items in the same way that news releases are distributed to the print media.

House rules prohibit members from using such TV recordings for political purposes which means they are excluded from campaign commercials on radio or TV. But such rules do not affect non-members of the House and anyone can buy the film clips. In fact, foes of incumbents have been known to buy them to emphasize the negative, rather than the positive side of the practice.

SO WHAT'S THE possible good in all this? In the Senate, which has not yet approved the televising of regular sessions, attendance during the routine morning business is even less than it is in the House even on a proportional basis. And one argument in favor of televising the Senate sessions is that it will increase attendance and participation as it has in the House.

TV. in other words, helps keep our U.S. representatives on the job even when the job is simply seeking more coverage in the Congressional Record and on local TV stations back home.

That is true, of course, although Houston and cther Sunbelt cities don't have jobs for everyone, as some refugees from Michigan have found. But the use of the phrase, voting with the'r feet, to

The dangerous 'traffic lottery' at North High School

To the Editor:

On Thursday, Nov. 12 at approximately 3 p.m. another young person won one of the minor prizes in the traffic lottery run by Grosse Pointe North High School with the aid and comfort of the Grosse Pointe Woods Police Department.

Apparently only a wrist or arm was broken this time. However, if the situation remains as it is, there will be a grand prize winner at this corner just as surely as there will be a million dollar winner in the Michigan Lottery.

When I asked one of the police officers at the scene of the accident (on Vernier at entrance to North High School) when this senseless destruction of people getting hurt and damage to property was going to stop, and would someone have to be killed before the school and police would do something about it, I was told that the police could not patrol one corner and that perhaps we could pay "higher taxes" to see that this

We do not intend to pay "higher taxes" for a corner that school and police officials are responsible for. I do believe it is time that school and police officials work a little closer together.

Fault for this situation is easily apportioned:

• The street layout is wrong. The entrance to a 2,000 student body school with high automobile usage should not be from a main county thoroughfare between I-94 and Lakeshore Road. Such entrance should be on Morningside Drive. When this school was first proposed we were led to believe that the entrance would be on Morningside.

• Given the layout as it exists, traffic planners have done their best. A school crossing over Vernier Road has been designated on the east side of the school drive entrance. The traffic lights accommodate this arrangement. The problem is that no one-students, the school or police-pay the slightest attention to this arrangement. Most young persons coming from the west on Ver-

St. Clair Shores and other areas have it. Upon contacting Grosse Pointe Cable I was told it was not available. On my last contact I was told to contact the Grosse Pointe Council of Churches.

In that CBN is available 24 hours a day, I don't see why this network is being withheld from our area. It consists of both educational and spiritual interviews and "Another Life," which is a Christian soap opera. Recently I heard of a soul being won to the Lord through this very story. It is clean meaningful telecasting, a breath of pure air in our present day, something that is good, family-oriented and is fast becoming a fourth network.

As a CBN, 700 Club member I would like to have it available in our area.

If you feel as I do, I ask that you express yourself in writing to the Grosse Pointe Cable Company or this newspaper.

Senior housing at 389 St. Clair

To the Editor:

The proposal described in "Task force seeks school for senior housing site" (Nov. 12 issue) is good, but a site is already waiting.

The St. Clair School building (currently used for board offices) should be converted or torn down and used for senior citizen housing. It has failed to sell and is only a burden to the school system. It provides enough space and an excellent location for apartments. The Neighborhood Club Senior Citizen Center and Bon Secours Hospital are nearby, and the residents could walk to city hall. the fire station, The Village shopping center and to the Kercheval or Jefferson bus routes. nier Road, cross Vernier from the private driveway west of the school entrance. From this side, the traffic lights are an invitation to disaster for foot traffic. Pedestrians must cross one lane of traffic (west on Vernier Road) where the light controlling that lane is hidden from them; and a second lane (east on Vernier Road) and right into the school which never is heeded.

• The students are at fault for not obeying the posted crossing rules.

• The police are at fault. This corner is never patrolled during peak driving hours into and out of the school.

• And to my mind by far the greatest fault lies with the school administration and faculty of North High School. They know the situation and they do noth-

We have made repeated phone calls to the police and to the school as to all of the above mentioned faults. The answer is always the same: "There is nothing we can do."

There is too much of this apathetic attitude. There is always something that can be done if people would take the time to do it.

We are tired of seeing mangled young people in front of our home. Cars driven onto and over our lawn. Bicycles lying in the street. Accidents occurring regularly; some slight enough not even reported to the police. The responsibility does lie with both police and the school. And also with parents of these young people who drive their cars to

If these parents would spend one-half hour in the morning from 7:45 to 8:15 a.m. and 15 minutes in the afternoon from 3 to 3:15 p.m., we do believe that they would really cringe when they see how some of those cars are driven.

We also question in this day of high cost and energy consumption why it is necessary for so many young people to drive to school. There are buses available for those that need them. If these young people are going to drive, then they had better learn proper driving manners and control their speed when coming in and cut of the school entrance. This is most definitely an area that school and police officials have a responsibility to enforce.

The students at North have a responsibility, too, and they must learn to respect other peoples' lives and property. They, too, will grow up, but some of them may not make it.

Eventually the odds on any situation do catch up and before long there will be an accident where a life is lost. The person responsible for that accident will remember it for the rest of his or her life, as well as the members of the family of the person killed. Then, we will wonder if the police and the school will again tell us: "There is nothing we can do."

have unemployment."

A rash of crime stories in last week's issue of the Grosse Pointe News should have served as a reminder to all Pointe residents as the Christmas season approaches. It is that crime does not take a holiday even in the Pointes and, in fact, may even increase in frequency because of the increased opportunities the buying season creates for those with larceny in mind.

One story reported on the fact that one car was stolen every 28 seconds in the nation last year. The rate obviously was lower in the Pointes but records show that 112 cars have been stolen in the Pointes to date this year. Many were taken by professional thieves who cruise streets, parking lots and parking decks to find specialty cars which are "stolen to order."

While the average car owner probaly cannot protect his property from theft by a professional. he can take common sense precautions that might balk the amateur thief. Police recommend that people lock their cars, pocket their keys, park in well-lighted lots, lock groceries and gifts in the trunk and take other precautions to avoid an easy rip-off.

OTHER STOR'ES reported the escape of an armed robber who took $60 from a Woods restaurant; the arraignment of a Woods man allegedly involved in as many as 13 armed robberies in the Woods, East Detroit and Detroit, and the molesting of a jogger on Lakeshore Road. There have been other stories in recent weeks reporting additional cases of breaking and entering at both private home and business places and recounting evidence of shoplifting, which tends to increase in stores everywhere during the holiday period.

There is no "crime wave" in the Pointes but during the holiday season - and especially in a year of deep recession in Michigan - common sense requires precautions by private homeowners as well as businessmen.

From Another Pointe Of View By Janet Mueller

Christmas Walking, courtesy of the Detroit Symphony League (formerly) the Junior Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra) is one of the nicest ways to start off a holiday season. It's been that way for 22 years, ever since the first group of metropolitan area homes, their halls suitably decked with boughs of holly, opened their doors to visitors in early December.

Christmas Walk proceeds then, as now, benefitted the Detroit Symphony. Ticket donations then, as now, were nominal: the current charges are $7 advance sale, $8 at the door for the Grosse Pointe Christmas Walk this coming Sunday and Monday, ditto for the Birmingham/Bloomfield Area Christmas Walk the following Sunday and Monday.

If you've Walked before, you'll notice there's something different about that Sunday/Monday schedule. In past years, the Christmas Walk ran only one day in Grosse Pointe, one day in Birmingham/Bloomfield, and those one days were weekdays. Times change: women are working, and can't get away to go Walking on a weekday—and men aren't ashamed to admit they get a kick out of looking at the way other people decorate their homes for Christmas, out of seeing how other people live. Call it what you like (the Liberation Fall-Out Effect is one name we came across recently that struck our fancy); it's a nice phenomenon.

So . . . the Detroit Symphony League, in this year that it renamed itself, decided it was time to re-schedule, and expand, the Christmas Walks. Each will run two days this year, and one of those days will be a Sunday, so that everyone who wants to Walk can be accommodated. The League does request, however, that any children under 10 be left at home. It's just too much Walking for them.

Now for a bit of practical information before we give you a preview of the stops on the 1981 Christmas Walk in Grosse Pointe: hours for both Walks are noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday: shoes must be removed while in the homes (bags will be provided in each home); on the East Side, the numbers to call for further information or to order tickets are 882-7901 and 882-6930.

The Grosse Pointe Christmas Walk

Karen (Mrs. Arthur) Schaupeter and Ann (Mrs. Melvin D.) Rousek are co-chairmen for the Grosse Pointe homes to be open to Christmas Walkers this Sunday, Dec. 6, and Monday, Dec. 7.

Among them is a French Normandy Colonial, built in 1936, on Middlesex Boulevard. It's filled with collections that will delight antique buffs and paintings done by the artist homeowner, including the self-portrait in the living room that depicts said artist homeowner as a 17th century heroine. There's a charming kitchen, with hanging copper utensils, straw baskets and antique iron pots used as containers for staple items. There'll be no less than three Christmas trees in place here.

The decorations going up at a 50-year-old French chateau on East Jefferson Avenue, once the home of the French Consulate in Detroit, now owned (and decorated with contemporary art) by a local artist, are nearly all handmade. One tree has dough ornaments and snowflakes (Continued on Page 4B)

Christmas Tea at Memorial Church . . .

Everyone is welcome to welcome the holidays at the Women's Association of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church's annual, traditional Christmas Tea. It will be presented next Tuesday, Dec. 8, at 1 p.m. at the church. The Sweet Adelines will be on hand with their harmonious melodies, and all are invited to join in a Christmas sing-a-long. Tea cookies and sandwiches will be served, along with tea and coffee.

A kaleidoscope of quilts

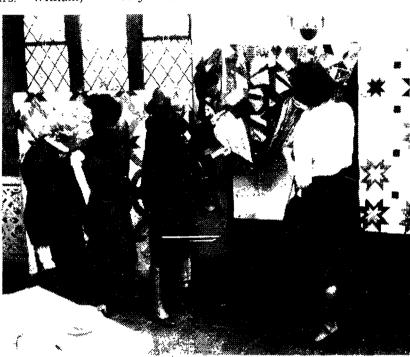

You think of quilting as a dying art? Not if you were present at the Christ Church Seniors Quilt Show and Luncheon the Thursday before Thanksgiving! The show was organized by Seniors member LAURA (Mrs. William)

The Quilt Show Luncheon was preceded by a lecture and slide presentation on the Art of Quiltmaking. Lecturer Candy DiMaggio, who teaches quilting in the Grosse Pointe Community Services program, is a nationally known authority on Seminole patchwork. She has participated in quilting seminars across the coun-

Candy's program was very good, but let's face it: the quilts themselves stole the show. Note how avidly the group on the right is examining one of them. Among those invited to display their quilts were Marilyn Tudman, Donna Aldrich and Sue Senkowski who, along with Laura, have made quilts for Christ Church Fairs.

Also present and enjoying the lecture, luncheon and display were Robert Christian, chairman of the Senior Group, and The Reverend William Tudor, rector of Christ Church, Grosse Pointe, where, in the Undercroft, all the fun took place.

made of doilies interwoven with baby's-breath and ribbons. The foyer features a slate and marble floor and a winding, turret staircase. The living room has a pegged wood floor and a beamed ceiling. There's even a gen-u-ine garret studio for the artist!

Brick was brought from Williamsburg, Va., to Irvine Lane in 1952 so that the Williamsburg Colonial under construction there, according to authentic specifications, would be in correct colors. The home retains a traditional flavor. Recent renovations added a "keeping room," or combination kitchen/family room, decorated in navy blue and red. All of the Christmas ornaments' were handmade by the homeowner. The den will feature a small tree decorated with plaid soldiers. The main tree in the kitchen will be hung with cookie cutters, bows and dough ornaments. The dining room tree will feature wooden toys and ornaments collected by the homeowner's children through the years. The living room will contain a more formal tree, trimmed with small packages, candy canes and bows, all done in

One of the two Lakeshore Road residences included on this year's Grosse Pointe Christmas Walk is a sprawling brick, situated on two acres of land, designed by Wallace Frost. In its expansive living room facing Lake St. Clair there is a bas relief of horses above the fireplace, designed and executed by the home's original owner, George Washington Trendle, creator of the "Lone Ranger," "Green Hornet" and "Sergeant Preston of the Yukon" radio programs. The interior architecture reflects the original owner's interests and is complemented by the present (third) owner's art work. A 30-foot travertine marble foyer leads to a step-down living room and a winding staircase to the second floor. Bookshelves enclosed in glass are built into the back of a handcrafted Chippendale couch, made in Yugoslavia, in the library. The parquet floor is highlighted by a custom Buchara carpet.

The green tile roof and front entrance pillars of a three-story French Colonial, built in 1913 and situated on six acres overlooking Lake St. Clair, can be seen a bit farther down Lakeshore Road. Its entry foyer has been farther down Lakeshore Road. Its entry foyer has been refurbished with wood panels salvaged from Rose Terrace; the colors of antique green and gold leaf follow the theme of the famous Buckingham Palace waiting room. There are magnificent ornamental plaster ceilings and cornices along with carved wood panels, also from Rose Terrace, in the upstairs hall. The Music Box Boutique, the Symphony League's fund raising shop, will offer items for Christmas gift giving on the third floor.

A Bonus: the Grosse Pointe Academy

Grosse Pointe Christmas Walkers are also invited to visit the Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday. The chapel is a perfect example of French Gothic architecture. It features beautiful wood carvings and 12 large, stained glass windows, designed and executed in Munich, Germany, depicting scenes from the Life of Christ. A fleur de lis motif is stenciled in gold leaf against a blue background on the ceiling above the sanctuary. In 1930, through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Briggs, the chapel was renovated and expanded to connect the "new" academic building (the Tudor-Gothic wing, now the Academy's school building) with the original building constructed in 1899 by the Religious of the Sagrad Heart by the Religious of the Sacred Heart.

Refreshments will be served in the "old" building's reception parlor. The Detroit Symphony League's Choraliers will perform in the chapel on Monday, at 11 a.m. and again at 1 p.m.

There will be an old-fashioned, candle-laden tree in the parlor. The stairs will be festooned with garlands, halls and doors trimmed with wreaths.

It is the headquarters of the Detroit Garden Center, which traditionally holds Christmas Open House early in December. The program will feature such holiday-inspired works as "Winter Dreams" from Tchaikovsky's First Symphony, the Dream Music from "Babes in Toyland," excerpts from Stravinsky's "Petrushka" and the Galop from Khachaturian's "Masquerade Suite."

The Mime Ensemble first appeared with the DSO at Meadow Brook Music Festival in 1976. Their second and most recent appearance with the Detroit Symphony was at a Young People's Concert at Ford Auditorium

Gross, who joined the orchestra in 1980, was born Nov. 8, 1955, in Buffalo, N.Y., attended the Interlochen Arts Academy and studied piano and composition at the New England Conservatory of Music, concurrently teaching music theory and clarinet at the Lighthouse Music and Art Camp until 1975, when he entered the musical program at Oberlin Conservatory. He holds Master of Music in Conducting and Bachelor of Music in Composition degrees from Oberlin.

He also studied with Charles Bruck at the Pierre Monteux Domaine School for young conductors and attended a workshop with Michael Tilson Thomas, sponsored by the Buffalo Philharmonic. He has received numerous awards as a composer. Faces are a first source of fascination for babies

When babies are five to seven months old they are very loveable because they're social with everyone. They smile and gurgle at the sight of a face. Why? According to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, babies are fascinated with faces because they are learning how to develop a concept or idea.

This concept is a kind of picture in a baby's mind of what something is like. A baby starts out with an impression of his mother's face, which has certain features in certain places.

When a new face comes along it has the same general form, but with little changes here and there that make it look different. Is the new thing a face? The baby must study the pattern to make sure. He probably looks at the main landmarks, eyes, nose and mouth, to see if they conform to the pattern he has seen be-

If they do, he may give a little smile. It seems to be his wordless way of saying, "I know what that is it's a face!" And of course a face has great significance for him.

The concept of "face" is developed in infancy, not through the repetitious exposure to one face but from experience with a large number of varying faces. A baby's looking preferences suggest that he actively seeks variety so that he can try out his new concepts on the world. If there is the right amount of discrepancy between the old and new he will carefully study and absorb the new into the old, thereby broadening and enriching his conept.

If there is too much discrepancy, he may have to form a new concept ... or at least make sub-divisions of the old

That is why baby is interested in so many different people and their faces, between five and seven months. He is digesting variations on the theme of his parent's faces so as to build one of his first permanent conceptions of an object in the world. This forming of concepts is an important principle in learning.

Greenfield Village ready for a Victorian Holiday

The candy cane and holly traditions of Christmas took shape in the 19th century. Advances in manufacturing and mass communications turned a predominantly religious observance into the secular and family holiday we celebrate today, and Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village will illustrate these origins of the modern Christmas with a Victorian Holiday running Saturday, Dec. 5, through Sunday, Jan. 3.

The modern Christmas is rich with traditions that have little to do with the Christian observance of Jesus' birth. The year-end, winter holiday we celebrate is part religious, part Dickens' warmth, a dash of Moore's and Nast's Santa Claus, a variety of ethnic dishes—and quite a bit of commercial enterprise. It took its present form in the 19th century.

Greenfield Village's 19th century buildings are a set for this colorful Christmas. The homes, shops and industries all contribute to the Victorian Holiday festivities.

At the Village Print Shop, visitors will see an exhibit of Thomas Nast's famous Christmas pictures. It was Nast, a noted political cartoonist, who created our vision of Santa Claus in numerous drawings for Harper's Weekly. A printer will use a steamoperated press to print a guide of the Christmas tour at the Print Shop, as well as a 19th century ad for candy (available at the Heinz House) and candy labels.

The steam-operated gristmill will make cornmeal for holiday cooking at the Ford Home, where recipes will be discussed and available for visitors. The traditional rural Christmas of the 1870s is the focus of activity at the Ford Home. The period is shortly after the 1876 centennial; the cooking reflects an interest that developed at that time in Early American cooking, from cornmeal dumplings and muffins to various kinds of sausage. Decorating themes are patriotic, including a tree festooned with flags. Family activities reflect Scotch-Irish traditions.

The Wright House, by contrast, is an urban home of the early 20th century, when Christmas is becoming standardized. Decorations are from the "Ladies' Home Journal." Christ--mas cards decorate a table and holiday music is played on a cylinder recorder. Activities include tree decorating with popcorn strings, strudel making (reflecting the German background of the home) and household chores of the period.

Canadian and English traditions are illustrated at the Edison Homestead, representing Grandpa and Grandma's house. The period is the 1870s in Canada. Decorations include a kissing ball'and Christmas lamps.

ing plum pudding and grandfather whittling a Noah's ark for the grandchildren.

The roots of Christmas traditions are explained at the Foster House, while preparations are made for a party. The period is the 1840s in the Pittsburgh area. Clement Moore's "A Visit from St. Nicholas" is discussed. The German tree and the English yule log also are exhibited and explained. Flute and guitar music is performed.

Cookies are the center of attraction at the Adams House, an 1870s home with decorations from the period. The making of gingerbread and springerle cookies for use as food and decoration is demonstrated. Egg shells are gilded for tree decorating; other decorations are made of popcorn balls and paper.

In addition to home activities, the Village shows other aspects of the holiday season. At the Heinz House a commercial operation demonstrates the making and packaging of various kinds of confections. At Menlo Park the year is 1879, and preparations are underway for the first incandescent lighting demonstration on New Year's Eve. The power system is operating and the early lighting system demonstrated.

Down Christie Street is the Sarah Jordan Boarding House: the first home to be lit with incandescent lamps. Here this early lighting is in operation. Activities include fancy work and dress making on a sewing machine.

The McGill Shop, formerly a jewelry store, has been turned into a late 19th century millinery and fancy goods shop. The front window features lavish holiday dressing. The building has been renamed Mrs. D. Cohen's Millinery and Fancy Goods

Christmas came late to many states as an official holiday. It was official ly designated as a holiday in most states soon after the Civil War, but wasn't national until well into the 20th century. This theme is presented at the Scotch Settlement School, where a "teacher" discusses the fact where a "teacher" discusses the fact that 19th century students were required to go to school on Christmas.

Many of our traditional Christmas carols are also a product of the late 19th century. A comic rehearsal of organist and choir demonstrates this theme at the Martha-Mary Chapel.

Preparation of a holiday feast is underway in the Colonial Kitchen of the Clinton Inn. Foods include roast turkey, sauces and soda bread. Visitors may sample free cider and buy cookies at the Town Hall.

Henry Ford Museum will continue the theme of 19th century Christmas with a wide variety of activities.

The Creative Life Planning program is designed to stimulate introspection, re-awaken latent talents and trigger impetus for self-discovery. It is a process of self-assessment to identify one's current abilities, assess the need for future skills and set goals and objectives.

Creative Life Planning recognizes that at some point in life every woman needs employment, whether for financial needs or personal satisfaction. Significant life work, a "career," may be paid or unpaid.

The program encourages participants to concentrate on a single area of interest and to increase knowledge and skills in that field, thus enabling them to exert considerable influence on their chosen careers.

This process of self-assessment is valuable for every woman, professional volunteer or paid worker, interested in increasing her effectiveness. It is especially valuable for a woman entering the work force or one considering a mid-life career change.

JOHN HARRISON, of Vendome Court, chairman of the Macomb County Osteopathic Auxiliary Ball, outline their party plans for DR. MAYNARD AMELON, president of the Michigan Osteopathic College Foundation. A "Charles Dickens Story" will unfold this Saturday, Dec. 5, at the Detroit Athletic Club, where the University Liggett Singers, under the direction of James Honmeyer, will greet arriving ball guests with Old English carols. There'll be poinsettias—over 100 of them-and candlelight, villages-in-winter and exquisite wine goblets, plus entertainment by The Four Lads. Proceeds from this elaborate evening will help support student loans and medical research through the Michigan Osteopathic College Foundation. Wayne Women see Ford House

A visit to the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House was on the agenda for the Grosse Pointe Chapter of Women of Wayne in early November, and the day was made to order for the occasion: full of balmy breezes and Wine and hot hors d'oeuvres in the drawing room preceded luncheon in the gallery, at tables centered with flowers donated by Charvat's. Chapter President Cynthia Bargiel acknowledged the presence of several national members and reported the chapter's donation of $500 to the Wayne State Incentive Scholarship Fund.

Post-luncheon, the ladies were invited to tour the grounds of the Ford Estate, visiting the pool, poolhouse, rose garden and playhouse. It was, participants agreed, a delightful way to celebrate autumn.

Plans are already underway for the Grosse Pointe Women of Wayne to celebrate spring, via a luncheon and program on Investments at Lochmoor Club in early April.

Children's Aid seeks support

Buying Christmas presents for over 1,000 children is a big and very costly task; that's why the Children's Aid Society of Wayne County is seeking contributions for its Christmas gift fund.

The annual project insures that each CAS child, infant to teenagers, has a gift at Christmas. This Christmas fund is separate from the nonprofit agency's annual budget. This year, the Christmas Project is being coordinated entirely by volunteer workers.

A contribution of $15 will provide gifts for two children who otherwise would have nothing special on Dec. £25 Contributions are tax deducible.

Checks should be made payable to the Children's Aid Society Christmas Project and sent to 7700 Second Avenue, Detroit, Mich. 48202.

The Children's Aid Society, which had its beginnings in the 1860s, provides programs to Wayne County residents in adoption, services to single parents, foster family care services, emergency shelter care, pre-ventative outreach services and child sexual assault counseling. The private, non-profit agency is partially supported by the United Foundation.

Children's Aid's priority is to keep the family together but, when necessary, CAS serves children who must be placed outside of their own homes.

Healing powers of plants receive new recognition

By Thomas Harney Smithsonian News Service

The Kenyan medical practitioner examining the wailing baby did not wear a white jacket or a stethoscope. His garments were cowhide, and he wore a necklace with an engraved bone talisman to exorcise the evil convirte

His consulting room in the thatched hut bore no resemblance to a hospital examining room. It was outfitted simply with a cooking hearth, a bed, a few chairs and a table with an array of tins, boxes, bottles and bowls containing herbs.

Not that it mattered to the baby's desperate mother. When her child's chronic debilitating colic failed to respond to treatment at a nearby hospital, she turned to a local herbalist, one of thousands of healers in Africa whose knowledge—passed down orally from generation to generation—of the medical properties of local plants equips them to handle medical problems ranging from the simple to the sophisticated.

The herbalist questioned the mother closely about the baby's symptoms, went out into the field behind his house and returned a few minutes later with the leaves and roots of a plant

Placing the plant in a bowl of water, he added some herbal powder and liquid from his arsenal of pharmaceuticals and proceeded to boil up a tea. When the concoction was ready, he recited an incantation to drive off the evil spirits afflicting his patient, then fed the tea to the baby.

Within a few minutes the baby stopped crying. After continued doses of the tea over the next several days, the cure was complete.

This story is told by Dr. Edward S. Ayensu, a Smithsonian plant biologist who was born and raised in Ghana. In a lifetime of travel across Africa and other continents, Ayensu has seen many such "cures." In West Africa he once witnessed the rigorous and lengthy religious indoctrination of a tribal healer, which included taking the student into a forest to learn to identify the names, medicinal uses and locations of various trees and shrubs.

"Unfortunately, because many of the traditional healers in Africa, Asia, the Caribbean and other parts of the world claim to employ magic and spiritual forces to aid their herbal cures," Ayensu says, "they have been branded 'witch doctors' and 'voodoo priests' by Westerners, and the value of their medicinal remedies has been questioned if not dismissed out of hand."

But this attitude is changing. Fostered by such scientists as Ayensu and Dr. Richard E. Schultes, director of Harvard University's Botanical Museum, interest in herbal/medicine is undergoing a renaissance. Scientists, drug companies and public health experts at the World Health Organization are studying the herbalists' methods and analyzing their herbal teas. And WHO has recently initiated a program to promote and encourage traditional medicine throughout the developing world.

This interest is well founded; Western doctors are coming to realize they have much to learn from reputable herbalists. Studies show that a surprising number of the prescription drugs sold every year in the United States are derived from plants which have long been included in the pharmacopoeia of traditional healers. Two examples:

•Reserpine, a drug used in the treatment of high blood pressure, is extracted from "Rauwolfia serpentina," a plant native to Southeast Asia. Hindu healers have used this plant for thousands of years to treat nervous disorders.

◆Diosgenin, a drug used as the foundation material in the manufacture of birth control pills, comes from the Mexican yam, a climbing vine that Mexican Indians have used as a general cure-all.

Sadly, the folk pharmacopoeias possessed by many traditional societies are in dafiger of being lost forever, Schultes and Ayensu warn, with potentially grave consequences. Approximately 20,000 flowering plant species are threatened with extinction because of the cutting and burning of tropical forests and development; as a result, many useful drugs may never be discovered.

At the same time native peoples

At the same time native peoples also are being irrevocably changed through contact with modern civilization, setting in motion a vicious circle: with the arrival of aspirin pills and other Western medicines, herbal remedies often are abandoned and forgotten. Increasingly costly drugs are imported in their place, straining the already fragile economies of these developing nations.

As director of the Smithsonian's Office of Biological Conservation, located at the National Museum of Natural History, and a member of the National Academy of Sciences Board on Science and Technology for International Development, Ayensu has been at the forefront of efforts to prevent what he terms a "tragedy."

Botanical exploration, he says, should be accelerated in the tropics, where the world's most diverse plant communities live. Ayensu himself has been working to identify and publish data on medicinal plants in a systematic manner: information that will be useful to the scientific community and the general public.

Three years ago he published the first authoritative sourcebook on "Medicinal Plants of West Africa," listing the botanical characteristics, names and traditional medicinal uses of 187 species of West African plants. Last month a sequel, "Medicinal Plants of the West Indies," was published. (Both volumes are published by Reference Publications Inc., of Algonac, Mich.)

Ayensu's own interest in medicinal plants dates back 20 years to field research trips to Antigua and Dominica. There he was surprised to learn that many familiar West African medicinal plants had been introduced to the Caribbean by slaves as early as the 1400s. In Dominica, for example, he found the well-known castor oil plant (Ricinus communis), a native of Africa, whose leaves and roots are used in that nation to treat stomach disorders — and in fact could have been the herb that cured the baby's colic.

Ayensu believes that the escalating costs of important Western drugs make it imperative for the Caribbean nations and other developing regions of the world to achieve "drug independence."

This cannot happen, however, unless they become familiar with medically valuable plants growing right in their own backyards. A dramatic example is the case of the Madagascar periwinkle (Catharanthus roseus), which flourishes in certain areas of Antigua, and is all but ignored. Long used by traditional healers on other Caribbean islands to treat bronchitis and other ailments, this plant is now the basis of a leading drug for the treatment of leukemia. One pound of the alkaloid vincristine extracted from periwinkles currently sells for $100,000 on the world market.

In the People's Republic of China, he continues, where herbal medicine is employed side-by-side with modern medicine as part of a comprehensive health care program in cities and the countryside, literally all available soil suitable for the growth of the periwinkle plant is under cultivation.

"It seems obvious," Ayensu says, "that the complexion of the world's health situation requires that other developing nations follow China's lead. It is just not possible for us to place Western health systems in developing countries before the year 2000. The fact is: healers will be the only health care available in this period in a large part of the developing rural world.

"Plants with valuable medicinal properties must be identified and cultivated in these countries. Heaters should be officially encouraged, so that as much professionalism as possible is injected into their work. We must acknowledge the empirical value of the traditional heater."

Teaching Papillons to fly . . .

Twice a week, members of Les Papillons Liturgical Dance Company meet at the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church for class sessions and rehearsals under the direction of EUNICE WHITAKER; added to this are on-location rehearsals at churches where performances are scheduled, in order to adapt spacing and timing to varying proportions of different chancels and aisles. Mrs. Whitaker is pictured above demonstrating a gesture during a recent rehearsal in a Royal Oak Church.

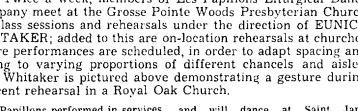

Les Papillons performed in services at five area churches in November, and look forward to an equally busy December. Several new dances have been added to the company's already extensive repertoire and are scheduled for program performances during the holiday season; among them "The Vine and the Branches," based on St. John 15, and "The Shepherds and the Angels," the Christmas Story as told in St. Luke, plus an intricate sequence based on the Eighth Chapter of Romans. Les Papillons are unique in that they dance to readings from Scripture as well as to music.

The company presented a program for the Detroit Presbyterial Association at the Redford Avenue Presbyterian Church Wednesday, Dec. 2, and will dance at Saint James Lutheran Church's Christmas Concert next Wednesday, Dec. 9.

They will perform at the annual Christmas Tea hosted by the Grosse Pointe Chapter of the American Association of University Women on Thursday, Dec. 17. The tea is to be held at Les Papillons' sponsor church, Woods Presbyterian, where on Christmas Eve, "the butterflies" will perform "The Shepherds and the

Pointer of Interest

By Peggy O'Connor

Somewhere deep inside James Webers beats the heart of a serious artist, yearning to be free. That heart is held captive by Webers' whimsical spirit and, as nearly everyone knows, whimsy beats serious any day.

Webers' whimsical side has enabled him to become the Pcinte's leading manufacturer of pottery pigs, Pigs? Yep, pigs, and not just ordinary pigs, but pigs in any and every situation imaginable. Relying heavily on his vast capability for one-liners and plays on words, Webers has produced such unforgetable pig scenes as the nautical "Bay of Pigs," "Pigs for Sail," "Pork and Starboard" and the ever-popular "Oinkers Away."

Ice skater Peggy Fleming owns two of Webers' "Piggy Flemings," and the list of pig possibilities just goes on, Webers can create a "Porking Lot," a "Swinal Column" or "The Days of Swine and Roses" for interested pottery pig collectors.

"The whole thing started out when somebody asked me to make a clay pig. I made one just for practice and somebody wanted to buy it, so I sold it for 25 cents," Webers says. He soon realized he had no pig in a poke when he managed to sell 800 of the porking creations at his first art fair.

Webers says he sells trays of the things. But "nobody will ever take me seriously," he mourns, "There are some big things I like to do.'

ALTHOUGH HIS particular emphasis seems to be on animals, Webers' all-around pottery capabilities are great. He has done some beautiful porcelain and stoneware trays, jars, large pots, vases and cups and plans on some very serious attempts at furniture and even a clay house "Not a big one, just a

All of that seems to point to the conclusion that Webers is very serious about his craft but, like a popular comedian, "don't get no respect" from his contemporaries.

"I suffer with the label of nonartist," Webers says jokingly. "People can't believe that one person could be so diverse." The funny thing is, Webers says, "I sell most of my stuff to artists, yet artists are the ones who criicize because of the pigs

It's especially tough to dodge criticism from artists, Webers adds, "when you're standing there selling 400'50-cent pigs and the next guy is trying to sell one $150 pot."

But Webers is very, very serious about his art, despite the fact that he is relatively new to pottery, having made his first piece in 1970. The Racine, Wis., native had already spent some time in the service, taken a degree from Lawrence College, taught in Wisconsin and forged a career teaching English and art at Farcells, where he'd been since 1954, before he decided to "fool around with clay."

And even then, it was a chauvinistic, rather than artistic bent which turned him toward pottery. "I saw a gal in the art room making pots and I thought I could do better. I started working on the wheel and it got to be an obsession . . . now it's driven me out of house and home. Every corner of my life has dust in it."

JAMES WEBERS, OF LAKEPOINTE AVENUE

house has pottery on it. Pigs sit on the dining room table awaiting a trip to the kiln Webers built in his garage. In that garage, rows of finished pigs and pots await the trip to the mar-

Finished pots and a vast assortment of pottery supplies crowd the basement, forcing Webers' wife Rachel to build a barrier around her small corner of the room. "There are pots everywhere, because I have three shows in two weeks."

One of those shows is the Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice's 1981 Holly Mart, set for tomorrow, Friday, Dec. 4 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the War Memorial's Crystal Ballroom, Admission is $1; children are admitted free.

It will be Webers' first time at the Holly Mart, although he says he has thought about exhibiting there before. Webers will join an eight-person con-signment Pottery Gallery there. which includes the works of Pointer Ken Thompson, Sue Bolt, of Charlevoix, Barbara Dalton, of Birmingham, Dick Hoeft, of Saline, George Joumas, of Royal Oak, I. B. Remsen, of Ann Arbor, and Ed Risak, of Marquette.

Getting ready for the Holly Mart has meant a lot of work, for. Webers, but he doesn't mind the work when he considers what selling his art means to him. "Primarily it's for your ego. In teaching, you never know if you're doing a good job —when you sell a piece you know right away.

LEST SOMEONE GET the idea that Webers thinks only of the money, he points out that he can't believe some of the stuff that sells. "Some you like and other people don't, and some you can't stand. You look at the stuff you did last year and say: "I sold that?" Webers says that he's thrown some pots he hated out in the garbage, only to see them reappear on a neighbor's porch or mantel. "If you want to throw one out you've got to break it, because somebody is going to like it."

The truth of the matter may be that most people, other than pig-hating artists, aren't nearly as hard on Webers as he is on himself. "I'm a beginner, almost everybody I know has gone through art school — I did it backwards.

"There's so much I don't know. It's a real hindrance, but in some ways, it's a help. It's dumb luck and lots of things don't turn out but someone loves every piece." Actually, many people do, including the judges who cited Webers for his work in the Grosse Pointe Artists Association shows in 1978 and 1980 and the Warren Cultural Commission Show in 1979,

Despite that, Webers refuses to pat himself on the back for his artistic successes. "I'm humble because I've got a lot of reason for it. I know I can look back at that first pot—it's heavy and clumsy but I thought it was Webers has come a long way since then and, all kidding aside, he produces some beautiful work. One does sense, however, the yearnings of an artist who wants to move on to greater things-something Webers plans to do very soon.

CANDIED ORANGE OR GRAPEFRUIT PEEL

This is the candied orange or grapefruit peel to end all peels. Crystallized on the outside and yummy soft on the inside - and all this goodness costs nothing! Save the skins from your breakfast grapefruit or oranges which were originally cut in half crosswise. After the fruit sections have been eaten, remove the pithy section dividers and membranes from inside the peels. Refrigerate peels in a plastic bag until you have accumulated beautiful, unblemished peels from at least 2 grapefruit or 3 to 4 oranges (depending on

Because orange peels usually become tender before grapefruit peels, keep them separated during cooking and the entire process. If larger quantities are desired, repeat recipe as many times as you wish.

If the outer skin of the grapefruit seems hard, grate the surface before cutting into stripes or petals with a kitchen scissors. Add enough water to peel to cover it. Boil 15 to 20 minutes. Drain and repeat with fresh water twice more: 3 times in all. Measure the drained peel, and for each pint of peel add 2 cups of sugar, 11/2 cups of water and a pinch of salt. Cook slowly in an open kettle until syrup is quite heavy. Do not let it overcook or carmelize.

When done, remove from heat and for each pint of peel and syrup add 1/2 envelope unflavored gelatin that has been softened in 2 tablespoons of cold water. Stir well to dissolve gelatin. Let peel stand until thoroughly cool. Then drain and roll individual pieces in granulated sugar. The addition of the gelatin keeps the peel nice and soft inside. Makes about 100

Permit the peel to dry at least 1 hour. To store, place wax paper on bottom of canister with airtight lid. Layer pieces with a sheet of wax paper between each layer and cover tightly.

Blue Devils come down to earth in '82

By Peggy O'Connor

It's back down to earth this year for South varsity basketball coach George Petrouleas and his Blue Devil troops. After last year's exciting 19-3 season and a trip to the state regionals, South must face the reality that graduation has robbed the squad of no less than six lettermen.

Coach Petrouleas jokes that in a similar situation in football, he'd be forced to "punt."

"Really though, we've got kids who are working hard. We'll have five lettermen back, but in terms of playing time, their experience is limited."

Those lettermen didn't get much playing time last year because the starting five were leading South to its best season in more than a decade. The Blue Devils were ranked No. 9 in the state, finished in a two-way tie with Mt. Clemens for the Eastern Michigan League title, and earned a 19-3 record before losing to third-ranked Highland Park in regional Guard Glenn Piche averaged 14 points and seven rebounds on his way to All-Suburban and All Metro East team selections; forward John DeBoer was good for 16 points and 10 rebounds per game as an All Metro first-teamer and 6 foot 10-inch center Stark Langs, playing his first full season of basketball, averaged 10 points and nine rebounds per game as a member of the Detroit News' All Metro third team.

But those three, as well as standouts Dean Graham, Pete Stavale and Tom Emmerich, have taken their basketball talents elsewhere and a new cast of characters is set to lead South in this year's title quest.

Petrouleas calls sophomore Brian Rathsburg a "pleasant surprise" so far in the preseason. The 5 foot 10inch Rathsburg has had to fill in at practices and scrimmages for senior point guard Dan Shine, who remains on the injured list with a bruised upper leg. Shine has been unable to participate in contact drills.

Six foot 1-inch senior Bill Winzer will most likely get the other starting job at guard. Fighting it out for the forward spots are team captain Tom Gentile, a 6 foot 3 senior, 6 foot 1 Jim Schaafsma and 6 foot 5 Chris Cruthis. Senior Dave Meagher, at 6 foot 6, will man the center position.

"We don't have a real big man, like Stark Langs, but we're comparable overall in size. We're also not as quick as last year, but this team can set a tempo. I think they're disciplined and a good shooting team," Petrouleas says.

Petrouleas points to the lack overall team speed as the basic difference between last year's squad and this season's entry. But he adds that this year's team looks to be strong in defensive and offensive rebounding. "If we can maintain that, we'll be in every ball game. You can't third shot and expect to stay in the game.'

Despite the lack of experience, Petrouleas says he feels he's got a good group with the ability to put the ball in the basket. "Teamwise, we're playing together very well. It's the type of situation where as we get more playing time, more experience, we'll know how we stand up."

The new-look Blue Devils should find out right away how they stand up-South is faced with four straight tough games beginning with a visit to perennial power Highland Park tomorrow night, Dec. 4. They then host Notre Dame and Utica Ford before going on the road again for a contest with Warren Cousino. "We'll have a good idea of the things we have to do after those four games," Petrouleas says.

Things don't get easier after Christmas, as the Blue Devils will face Mt. Clemens twice in a show-down for the E.M.L. title. "Mt. Clemens is probably going to be one of the top teams in the area—they're big and fast and have a lot of lettermen returning.'

Petrouleas notes that a number of E.M.L. teams are in the same position as his: starting the year with un-proven talent. The two Port Huron schools may have the most problems after a year's layoff because of tax millage difficulties. Roseville will return nine team members with playing time and East Detroit, Petrouleas says, is always competitive. Down-trodden L'Anse Creuse North, which is talking positively, should in reality cause the Blue Devils little trouble.

Known as a man who doesn't like to make predictions, Petrouleas says, "In all honesty, if after those first four ballgames, we are fortunate enough to have split the games, there's no telling how far we can go-if we stay away from injuries."

"These kids possess a lot of desire: they're not as talented a group of athletes as we had last year, but they're working hard."

Even if it is a brand new season, last year's accomplishments may still be having an effect on this season's down-to-earth Blue Devils. "They may be making mistakes, but they're coming to play and starting to believe some of the things we're telling them they can do," Petrouleas says.
"The spirit of last year is carrying over to this year.'

Academy, Liggett attend conference

Educators from Grosse Pointe Academy and University Liggett School joined nearly 700 other educators and schools Nov. 4, for the Third Annual Conference at the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Bloomfield Hills.

Featured speakers included Paul Butler from ULS who spoke on "I Do, I Learn," a hands-on technique to increase understanding of difficults math concepts.

South varsity basketball coach George Petrouleas is going to have to do without the likes of Stark Langs (No. 54), John DeBoer (No. 24), Dean Graham (No. 30) and Tom Emmerich (No. 10) this season. The four—major components in South's drive to the regionals in 1980-81—were lost to graduation.

All Pointes swimmers swamp favored Dearborn Dolphins

By Earl Duignan

For coaches Les Roddis and John Temrowski and their All Pointes Swim Club, Christmas arrived unexpectedly more than a month early. The gift was a surprisingly lopsided 279-135 win over the usually talented Dearborn Recreation Dolphins. The victory was the second in as many dual meet outings this year.

The Dolphins were runners up to 1980-81 Michigan Metro Winter League Champion Clarenceville last spring, and were expected to be strong once again this year. On this day, however, the Dolphins arrived with less than a full complement of swimmers, and as a result were unable to field entries in seven of the 42 events staged, and had only single entries in many other events.

All Pointes had no such problem. however, and as a result captured 32 of the 42 events contested. Scoring was evenly divided among the four age groups, with six firsts in both the 8 & under and 10 & under age brackets, seven wins in the 12 & under age groups, 11 victories in the 13 & up group, and victories in both age group medley relays.

Perhaps the most notable performance of the day was recorded in the 8 & under class as Becca Suzor established a new All Pointes club record in the 25 yard fly with a time of 17.8. The new record was established in a virtual dead heat and eclipsed by 1/10 of a second the 1976 standard set by Amy Bertoszewicz. Becca also captured the 25 yard free style with a time of 16.5.

The 8 & under class had still another double winner as Andrew Bucciero recorded firsts in both the boys' 25 yard back stroke (22.8) and free style (18.8) events. Other winners in this age bracket included Sarah Peslar (26.1) and David Arbury (23.7) respectively in the boys' and girls' breast stroke events.

The 10 & under class also had a pair of double winners. Nora Brooks swam to victories in both the girls' 50 yard breast stroke (40.2) and free style (32.5) events. Mike Bucciero captured the boys' 50 yard fly (47.1) event by edging Scott Redding (48.3), and was also victorious in the 50 yard breast stroke with a time of

The remaining individual 10 & under victory was recorded by Eddie Suzor in the 50 yard free style event with a time of 36.9. All Pointes was also victorious in the 200 yard mixed free style relay event as Suzor was joined by Dan Shanle, Denise Vittiglio, and Anne Llewellyn to record a winning time of 2:35.1.

There were also several outstanding individual performances in the 12 & under age group. Jeff Williams recorded two individual firsts in the 50 yard fly and back stroke events with times of 33.7 and 37.1 respectively Brigid Brooks took the girls' 50 yard breast stroke event with a time of 38.9 and then teamed with Williams, Bill Dingell, and Helen Mikelic to capture the 200 yard mixed free style relay event with a time of 2:04.9. The remaining 10 & under victories were recorded by Meg Perterson (38.3) in the girls' 50 yard back stroke and Dingell (33.7) and Anne Connell (31.9) in the boys' and girls' 50 yard free style events.

As a result of Dearborn's failure to field swimmers in many of the 13 & up age bracket, all 10 events fell into the All Pointes win column. Regardless of the lack of competition, there were still some noteworthy performances for the locals. Sue Benoit recorded two individual event firsts and contributed to a relay victory. The individual victories included the 50 yard fly (31.1) and the 100 yard individual medley (I.M.) with a time of 1:08.3. John Bourget also contributed two wins in individual events with firsts in the 50 yard fly (29.0) and 100 yard free style (59.9) events.

Other firsts in this age bracket included Bryan Mistele (37.3) and Amy Abram (33.6) in the 50 yard back stroke; Curt Mistele (1:18.1) in the 100 yard I.M.; Paul Sweany (34.3) and Sarah Gerhardstein (37.4) in the 50 yard breast stroke; and finally Denise DesRosiers (1:05.3) in the 100 yard free style. The team of Peterson, Benoit, and Kevin and Curt Mistele accounted for the remaining victory in this bracket by swimming to a 2:01.1 in the 200 yard mixed free style relay.

The final All Pointes victories were recorded in the uncontested age group medleys. The boys' team of Dingell, Sweany, Bryan Mistele and John Ledyard recorded a time 2:33.4 in their winning effort, while Pam Horn, Brigid Brooks, Llewellyn and Heidi Cartwright were victorious for the girls with a time of 2:39.8.

All Pointes returns to dual meet action on Thursday, Dec. 10, at Livonia Stevenson High School for a league encounter with the Livonia

North's job: try to win close ones in Bi-County race

By Peggy O'Connor

The fact that North High compiled a 6-15 varsity basketball record and still finished third in the seven-team Bi-County League last year should reveal something about the caliber of play in that league. But a Bi-County championship is still a championship, no matter how poor that league may be.

Despite the graduation of seven seniors, including his entire starting lineup, long-time North coach Ray Ritter possesses what could be called cautious optimism about this year's chase for the Bi-County crown.

"I think we'll be better," Ritter says. "We have two starters, Chris Neal and Dan Sheridan, coming back, plus a player who sat out with an

Neal, at 6 foot 6 the biggest starter, will play one forward position. The multi-sport athlete will be paired with six foot one-inch Dries Van Landuyt. Six-footers Dan Sheridan and Andy Pflaum will start at the guard spots. Manning the center position will be 6 foot 4-inch Keith

Those five will have to take on Bi-County members Lakeview, Lake Shore, Clintondale, L'Anse Creuse, South Lake and Roseville Brablec. "The best team seems to be Lakeview, they have three starters back and they had a good J.V. team. Also, the juniors who didn't play much last year should be ready."

The real competition, however, will come from North's non-league opponents, beginning tomorrow night with Sterling Heights. "They lost a lot to graduation, but they have a good program," Ritter says. "They're aggressive; it should be a good opening

After Sterling Heights, the Norsemen take on another good team -Utica Ford, then it's two tough ones during the Christmas season. River Rouge is the pre-Christmas opponent and after the holiday, North will face Highland Park and despite the season, the Parkers won't be giving any gifts, "Some people rank them No. 1 in the state," Ritter says.

The key to any North improvement will be better performances in close contests. Ritter's squad lost seven of 15 games last season by less than five points. "We'll probably be in a lot of close ones and if you can win those close games, you can turn things around.'

Two factors which might make a difference in those close games, speed and experience, will be missing from the 1981-82 edition of the Norsemen. 'Our weaknesses are that we lack team speed and experience. Some of the juniors don't have a great deal of experience.

The squad will gain some of that experience quickly, especially in that rough holiday stretch. Hopefully, those will be good experiences and the squad can get off to a better start than it did last season.

"I don't usually set goals for wins and losses. It's really hard to tell how good we'll be this year," Ritter says. 'It depends on whether we get off to a good start - the kids need to have that confidence in themselves.'

A couple of wins over the likes of Lakeview or River Rouge sound like perfect confidence-builders.

G.P. Bruins win turkey tourney

Displaying mid-season form, the Grosse Pointe Bruins captured the Bantam AA Hockey Turkey Tournament at Fraser last week. Playing with tremendous skill and enthusiasm, the Bruins disposed of Sarnia, 4-1, Fraser, 6-1. Chicago, 3-1, and Port Huron, 3-1. In sweeping the tournament, the Bruins held their opponents to four goals, while scoring 16 and running their overall season record to 15-2-3.

Opening the tourney against Sarnia, the Bruins encountered a strong physical effort from the Canadians. Only the great goaltending of Dino Masella kept Grosse Pointe in the game until the Bruin scoring power provided two second period and two third period goals.

Pacing the victory was captain Stacey Rickert, with two goals and an assist. Tom Davis and John Russell scored the other goals. Two assists were earned by Chris Luongo, with single assists to Davis, Mike Brykalski and Tom Madden.

Scoring balance prevailed as Grosse Pointe defeated Fraser, 6-1, by scoring two goals in each period, Marty Sanclemente notched the first two goals, with assists going to Russell, Brykalski, Keith Barich, Russell, and Rickert rounded out the scoring. Madden, Rickert, Davis, John Hirschfield, Jeff Garrett and Rankin Barker drew assists. Goalie Peter Muer backstopped the victory.

The Bruins then faced Chicago and won, 3-1. After falling behind, 1-0, Grosse Pointe produced three third period goals to earn the decision. Wood tied the game after passes from Barich and Hirschfield before defenseman Luongo scored what proved to be the winning goal from Davis and Eric Grant, Madden added an insurance goal, unassisted, with three minutes to play and goalie Masella made the margin stand up.

The championship game pitted the Bruins against Port Huron. Despite the outstanding goaltending of Port Huron's Roger Beedon, the Bruins' Brykalski scored two third period goals to clinch the title, 3-1. Outshooting their opponents, 27-11, the Bruins needed the late heroics of Brykalski for the triumph.

Davis scored the opening goal from Russell and Madden before Port Huron tied the game 1-1 early in the third period. Both of Brykalski's goals were assisted by Rickert, with Davis and Madden drawing one assist each. Muer provided the goaltending in the championship game.

Coach Tom Costello and his Bruins will not have long to reflect on their good effort as the Silver Stick tournament at St. Clair Shores begins this Saturday, Dec. 5.

A celebrity wheel-chair basketball game, pitting professional athletes against the Detroit Raiders and Oakland Spinners wheelchair teams will be held at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 9 at the Matthaei Building, Wayne State University.

The public is invited and tickets will be available at the door at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children. For tickets or additional information –the Rehabilitation Institute. The event is sponsored by the Rehabilitation Institute Wayne State University, the Michigan Physical Therapy Association — Eastern District and the Metro-Detroit Therapeutic Recreation Society.

'Christmas star' at Cranbrook

December visitors to Cranbrook Institute of Science can journey 2,000 years into the past during planetarium demonstrations entitled "Holiday Skies and the Christmas Star."

December demonstrations — included in mu-seum admission of $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students and senior citizens - are given at 4 p.m. Wednesdays (beginning Dec. 9); 2, 3, 4 and 7:30 p.m. Saturdays; and 2, 3 and 4 p.m. Sundays, In addition, there will be demonstrations given at 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. Dec. 28, 29 and 30. Further information may be obtained by calling 645-3200.

In a search for clues about the nature of the Christmas star viewers can see how the planetarium's recently acquired special effects projector simulates celestial phenomena.

A series of sky events that might explain the Christmas star will be shown. Included will be demonstrations showing the planet Venus, the dazzling "star" most often believed to be the object that guided the wisemen to Bethlehem.

Other events to be explored are a comet and fireball, plus a conjunction (planet grouping) and nova, an exploding star that appears as only a bright point of light.

Cranbrook Institute of Science, 500 Lone Pine Road, is the Detroit area's natural history museum, open daily except major holidays.

Pee Wee A Blues 'dazzle,' 9-3

The Grosse Pointe Pee Wee A Blues, rebounding from a slow start, dazzied the Port Huron Bucaneers last week, 9-3. A quartet of goals from the stick of Linc Bessert gave the fans plenty to cheer about. Mark Mostek, Brink Cawley, Jason Bessert and Mark Warezak netted the other five goals.

Forwards Andy Lightbody, Pat Verbison and Dave Grundman contributed assists and defenseman John Henchel added two assists of his own. Keeping their opponents at bay

The 10th annual Grosse Pointe Community Rink Turkey Tournament played to large crowds over the Thanksgiving weekend and produced winners from Windsor, Southfield, Missassauga (a suburb of Toronto), and Southgate.

The event was not without its problems, however, as less than three weeks prior to the tournament, it was in a shambles. Many of the age brackets did not have enough teams to stage the competition. Much of the credit for the tourney's success should go to the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association, which, while having no official role in the annual event, was responsible for obtaining half of the 25 teams entered.

The GPHA's women's club staged a fund-raiser on Nov. 28 in the GPCR community room; beer and pizza were served to the tournament fans. Club president Wanda Warezak noted that sales were brisk and people seemed to have a great time.

Unfortunately, Grosse Pointe teams didn't fare as well in the tournament, with the exception of coach Dick Bohan's. Pee Wee AA team, which lost a tiebreaker to Southgate, 3-2, in overtime in the championship game.

Grosse Pointe's only entry in Bantam A competition was eliminated by one the final round of competition. With five teams entered in the Bantam level, Grosse Pointe was placed in a three-team bracket, which faced a two-team bracket, instead of in a traditional round-robin set-up.

Although Grosse Pointe beat the eventual winners from Missassauga, the Pointe's net goal accumulation was not enough to sustain play beyond the preliminary rounds. Missassauga won the championship by beating Riverside, Ont., 1-0, with 20 seconds left in the game and with a disappointed Grosse Pointe group cheering for them from the stands.

Missassauga, which billeted team members in Grosse Pointe homes, reached the final round with earlier wins over Taylor and Essex.

Final championship results included: Squirt B — Southfield 6, Fraser 4; Squirt AA — Windsor 3, Redford 1; Pee Wee A — Southgate 4, Sterling Heights 1; Pee Wee AA — Southgate 3, Grosse Pointe 2 (overtime); and Bantam A — Missasauga, Ont., 1, Riverside, Ont., 0.

Enter now for annual New Year's run

One of Detroit's largest and most unusual running events is set for Dec. 31 when Hughes and Hatcher, with the cooperation of the Belle Isle Runners and the Detroit Recreation Department, sponsors the 12th annual New Year's Eve Run.

Although it's scarcely past Thanksgiving, organizers of the popular run encourage runners to register early. Entry forms are available at all Hughes and Hatcher stores in the Detroit metropolitan area. The entry fee (which includes dinner and a champagne toast) is $7 for the fourmile run and $5 for the children's run. Extra dinners are $5 each.

The four mile event has become a New Year's tradition for many Detroiters. No matter what the weather, unseasonably warm or snowy cold, thousands turnout to run or walk the course, sip the traditional champagne toast and eat a spaghetti dinner. This year's event has some new twists. The course has moved from Belle Isle to downtown Detroit along East Larned and East Congress and the spaghetti dinner will be held in Cobo Hall.

All participants will receive T-shirts and all youngsters in the special one mile children's run receive trophies Commemorative awards will go to the first 1,000 finishers in the four-mile event, and trophies are given to the first male and female finishers, the first male and female finishers over 60 and the first male and female

"We want to emphasize that the New Year's Eve Run is a fun event that can be enjoyed by the entire family," says race director Jeanne Bocci, of the Park, "It attracts both experienced and novice runners as well as those who walk the course just for the fun of it."

The four mile walk-run begins at 4:30 p.m. on Dec 31 at Cobo Hall and is open to anyone who can run or walk the distance. A special one mule children's run-walk, open to youngsters 12 and under, will be held at 3:30 p.m. The finish is inside Cobo Hall.

Everybody loves a champ

By Linda St. Thomas Smithsonian News Service

"Ali could have taken Marciano out in three." "Jim Brown was a better hallback than O.J. Simpson." "Sandy Koufax was the greatest pitcher of all

At one time or another, these statements could have caused heated arguments in most any arena, stadium or ballpark in the country - and they probably still do. As sportswriters know, you're skating on thin ice when you make definitive statements about who's the best anything in sports. And, as we all know, there are sports fans aplenty with stronger feelings about pitchers or quarterbacks than about presidential candi-

Debate over the "greatest" recently spilled into a museum - the Smithsonian's National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C., where staffers have selected 100 champions in American sports for a special new exhibition. It was quite a struggle for historian Marc Pachter and curators Kenneth Yellis and Beverly Cox to winnow the many worthy candidates down to a magic 100. Indeed, the project took nearly two years.

Their final roster of champions includes such all-time greats as Babe Ruth, Muhammad Ali, Jim Thorpe, Willie Shoemaker, Arnold Palmer and Billie Jean King. But if there's little disagreement here, in all likelihood there will be much more over others on the gallery's list.

"It didn't take us long to realize that there's no ultimate list of the 100 greatest sports heroes. It's all so subjective," Pachter says. "Once we accepted that simple fact, we felt liberated. Our choices probably will make some people angry because their favorite boxer or halfback or jockey was omitted. The problem isn't so much who we included but who we excluded from the exhibit."

So how did they pick these 100 men and women? The athletes had to be outstanding in their chosen sport, of course, but they also had to be charismatic figures, Pachter explains, "For this exhibit, we weren't so much interested in technical expertise. The pitcher's pitcher is not necessarily the one we wanted," he said. They were looking for a "champion" - one whose presence in the game would guarantee a crowd, who caught the eye of the editors and sportswriters of the day, who might have been the subject of a song or a film. In other words, he or she had a special relationship - good or bad - with the

It's no coincidence that there is a disproportionate number of boxing ""I" heavyweights, 'baseball sluggers and football offensive players in this exhibit. These are the very positions that tend to attract such charismatic personalities.

While many athletes, such as Lou Gehrig, were universally adored by the crowds, others are sometimes remembered for the controversy they engendered: Ty Cobb, the first player elected to baseball's hall of fame, whose ruthlessness alienated him from his teammates and the fans; Ted Williams, the slugger who became as famous for his refusal even to acknowledge a crowd's standing ovation as for his six major league batting titles, and Muhammad Ali, whose conversion to the Black Muslim faith, claims to invincibility ("They all must fall/In the round I call") and opposition to the draft during the Vietnam war antagonized some boxing- fans of the early 1960s.

Many of these athletes in the exhibition of photographs, paintings and sculptures were known to average Americans, even those who didn't read the sports pages everyday, All of them were celebrities in their time and, in most cases, they were known to succeeding generations. Today, for example, most Americans recognize the name of John L. ("The Great John L.") Sullivan, although he was a boxing champ more than 85

It must also be said of these 100 persons that they were all winners. 'Although we may talk about competition being unhealthy, when you get right down to it, Americans love a winner," Pachter says. "However charismatic these athletes may be, they would not be champions if they had been losers. What sportswriter Heywood Broun said about Babe Ruth could apply to many of these athletes. The joy of watching Ruth lies in the fact that he is so palpably intent upon victory. There is never a moment when he is not trying ...

For Pachter, Cox and Yellis, one of the agonies of working on this exhibition was leaving out so many champions. "We understood all too well how many great sports figures the nation has produced and regret how few we have the space to include in our sampling. Where, for example, is slugger Stan Musial or golfer Sam Snead or tennis pros Chris Evert and Jimmy Connors or football players Sam Huff and Tom Harmon?"

In the process of choosing the "greatest" athletes, managers or commissioners. Pachter Yellis and Cox combed through histories of sports and collections of sportswriters' columns and read the sports pages of old newspapers. Yellis trotted off to a variety of halls of fame - boxing, baseball, basketball, tennis, auto racing, skating, rodeo and college football — to do his research.

"In the beginning, we divided the work among the three of us, each taking about six sports to study," Cox recalls. "We finally came up with a list of about 160 champions and then we had our big meeting. It went on for days, with each of us trying to sell the others on the athletes he or she thought should be included in

One criterion for the finalists: the athlete's name had to be recognized by all three curators. But the most important considerations, of course, were the person's athletic ability, charisma and impact on the sport.

As specialists at the National Portrait Gallery, the exhibit's organizers also were concerned about representing those sports which have been deeply entwined in American culture from the mid-19th century through the present. So "Champions of American Sport," which is supported by grants from Philip Morris Inc. and the Miller Brewing Co., includes sports figures from the 1850s through the first world war, from the Golden Age of Sports (1920-1930) and from modern times (1930-present). It represents a total of 16 sports: baseball, football, boxing, yachting, biking, horse racing, polo, auto racing, golf, tennis, swimming, skating, track, rodeo, basketball and hockey.

Baseball, which alone has given Americans hundreds of nationally recognized personalities, presented a special crisis for the curators because it was so difficult to decide whom to omit. In the exhibit, baseball had the most space - 17 champions: 14 players, a commissioner (Kenesaw Mountain Landis), an umpire (Bill Klem) and a manager (Casey Stengel). Other sports have come to the attention of most Americans only through the prowess of a famous character such as polo's Tommy Hitchcock or yacht skipper Bus Mosbacher, who has twice defended the America's Cup.

The biographical sketches of the 100 champions provide insight into the reasons they were chosen. These sketches, written by Pachter and other historians, appear in the catalog accompanying the show.

Of Babe Ruth: "Babe Ruth was the ultimate hero of a sport with more than its fair share of heroes - a giant of monumental swagger and breathtaking talent who set the standard by which all others would be

Of Muhammad Ali: "... Ali was back on top the first fighter in history to win the heavyweight title three times. It was a cause for celebration among all but the most diehard of his critics. Muhammad Ali was "The" Champion, the most recognized and admired athlete on earth. Even his defeated opponent joined in the cheers. 'He was always my idol,' boxer Leon Spinks announced. 'He

Of Vince Lombardi: "'I will demand a commitment to excellence and to victory, and that is what life is all about.' Thus spoke Vince Lombardi, who brought to football a religious fervor. More than any other single individual, coach Lombardi symbolized the 1960's obsession with professional football."

Of Lou Genrig: "Lou Gehrig proved that nice guys do not always finish last. They can finish a glorious second. Paired, and compared, with the greatest baseball player in history, Babe Ruth, Gehrig experienced the mixed fate of fame by association with a legendary figure. He and Ruth formed the heart of the Yankee's unbeatable 'Murderer's Row' of power hitters - back to back in the batting order from 1925 to 1934, Ruth third and Gehrig fourth.'

Of Wilt Chamberlain: "Wilt Chamberlain — the 'Big Dipper' — made perhaps greater impact on basketball than any other player. During a 14 year career ... Chamberlain scored a phenomenal 30,000-plus points and pulled down 24,000 rebounds. When it comes right down to it, scoring is what basketball is all about - and 'Wilt the Stilt' (a nickname he de-tests) was unparalleled at putting the ball through the hoop."

Foot in mouth Next time you're lost in the woods and starving, remember to chew on your shoes. Leather has enough nutritional value to sustain life for a short time. If you're wearing sneakers, pray for a rescue.

A second place finish in the fall travel team league was enough to bring smiles to the faces of the Grosse Pointe Foxes, above, the 12 and under team which finished with a 7-2 record. The team included (kneeling, left to right) Amy Leonard, Catherine Johnston, Nancy Shulte, Adrienne Haas, Kate Finazzo, Mary Lou Stone, Casey Steffes; (standing, left to right) Sara Wassinger, Kerry Edwards, Laura Linder, Erin Duffy, Roseann MacConnachie, Beth Edwards and Stephanie Dinka. The team was coached by Barbara Edwards and Joe Johnston with help from Fred Leonard. The girls were sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association.

Super Bowl fever comes to North

Early Super Bowl Fever went up another degree Thanksgiving morning in the "thumbs-up" city that owns the Silverdome, site of the 16th annual edition of the pro football

The City of Pontiac is going to rename Saginaw Street, its principal business thoroughfare, "Bourbon Street North," after the famed original in the New Orleans entertainment district. "Bourbon Street North" will be the heart of a weeklong "Super Blast" starting Jan. 17, climaxing with the game.

A five-block stretch in downtown Pontiac will become a lively scene of entertainment and specialized eating places during Super Blast.

Pontiac has adopted a "thumbs-up" symbol to go with its civic slogan, "We're making it happen!" The city has been living up to the slogan, pushing ahead with a combination of privately and publicly funded projects over the past eight years, in the face of severe odds.

One of the projects was the Silverdome itself, which made possible the first northern U.S. hosting of the Super Bowl. The City of Pontiac is determined to attract its share of the thousands of visitors and millions of dollars that the sports spectacular brings to host cities.

The Pontiac Host Committee for the Super Bowl, Inc., a diversified group including city and county officials, Pontiac residents and business people and non-resident city supporters, is working toward that goal.

Pontiac Mayor Wallace E. Holland, Host Committee Chairman James B. Fitzpatrick and the Pontiac City Commission joined in the "Bourbon Street North" dedication ceremony. Local residents will gather with volunteers and community leaders for the sym-

Fitzpatrick said many vacant business buildings along Saginaw Street will come back to life on "Bourbon Street North." Among them will be ethnic restaurants, with French, Greek, Mexican, Irish and German themes already promised.

The eating places will include many run by established restauran-teurs, who will provide top professional talent to run the temporary "restaurant row." Special provisions have been made for licensing to make beer, wine and cocktails available with meals.

There'll also be a variety of added entertainment places, including some like "Pat O'Briens's North," "The Rat Hole," and "The Alley Cat," which borrow their names from the New Orleans originals.

Improvements are being made on many of the buildings and Fitzpatrick says the Host Committee promoters hope to encourage some of the temporary establishments to become permanent in the revived downtown area. The area is just north of the impressive new Phoenix Center Plaza, with its 3,000-car parking structure

There'll be plenty of activity, during Super Blast week including roving musicians and picturesque ped-dlers carts adding life to the street itself. Inside the buildings, there'll be dancing and listening to a variety of music styles, including Dixieland.

North cagers second in district The loss in the districts ended a very fine season for North's girls as they finished first in the Bi-County League with a record of 10-2. The team's overall record for the 1981
