WINNERS OF...

30 Gold Medals at Chelsea in 31 years (1987 – 2017)

WELCOME

It feels as though a lot has changed since I last wrote an introduction to an Autumn catalogue although that was only a year ago. Since then the Covid situation has eased (although visiting the elderly in care homes seems only to have improved very recently in my experience). Society has opened up and pubs and holidays are possible (and a distraction from the gardening enthusiasm of lockdown!) The repercussions from a European war have messed up everyone's lives, even more so if you are a proud Ukrainian. On the nursery our key horticulturalist and nursery manager had a cancer diagnosis last August, received treatment through the autumn and came back to work part time early this year but still undergoes tests and has yet to be given the all clear. A few weeks ago we were back at the Malvern Spring Flower show and were happy to be very busy again at the first major show that we have attended since 2019.

Maxine (who works in the office and with whom many of you may have spoken at some point) recently bought a very second-hand copy of a catalogue of John Scott & Co – who later became Scott's of Merriott near Crewkerne. The catalogue is dated 1965, although the business started a long time before that, in 1728 – something I had not appreciated when I attended their closing down sale in 2009 to buy some well used second hand scales, a paper shredder, a set of steps and a few job lots of hedging plants! What a history! But what amused us were some familiar lines. On Visiting the Nursery: "Whilst visitors are welcome to walk around we often have to explain that we have no sales staff and no labour available to lift orders for customers who call without previous notice". On the Cost of Packaging and Carriage: "When orders cannot be sent in one consignment carriage is charged extra on each parcel". Reassuringly familiar even 55 years later!

There are newer difficulties – several of our long-standing suppliers of unusual plants or bulbs have closed their doors or taken retirement and those skills and sources are not being replaced. The problem is particularly acute in Holland where horticultural scale is everything and the smaller, often older growers with unique passions are being lost to bigger firms, to retirement or their land to housing development. Both factors mean that here are some items that have been offered for many years are now absent or in short supply. Hopefully there is much else to interest you.

Successful Gardening!

CHRIS IRELAND-JONES

An interesting article in the Economist magazine (April 16th p.82) suggests that home gardens produce delicious food, but that is not their main virtue. Is the same true for ornamental gardening I wonder? It ends:

The real joy of gardening is the time spent doing it. The deepest pleasure – as with cooking, writing, bringing up children or almost anything worthwhile – is in the work itself. A gardener's memories revolve not around the food produced, but around long summer afternoons with hands in the dirt, surrounded by family, if the garden is at home, or deepening acquaintances with friends or neighbours in an allotment or community garden. To garden is to patiently, lovingly and diligently help life flourish, in the ground and above it.

Nursery work hopefully provides some of the same pleasures, although plunging our pots into gravel beds ahead of the winter (to provide extra cold protection and to moderate the highs and lows of the temperatures when the sun falls on black pots) is probably less pleasurable than some other jobs.

MORE INFORMATION

The website allows much more detail about individual plants and we are gradually building up that information source, so do have a look online if you are left wanting to know more about a particular plant or family and their suggested planting instructions. Individual planting suggestions are provided again when you get sent your order.

The website also indicates availability and if an item is Sold Out it will be indicated there. This is particularly useful for later orders.

If an item is marked Out of Season you can "Register an Interest" and with no commitment receive an email back when it is next in stock and can be ordered.

There are occasionally varieties that missed the catalogue and get listed online.

LATE SUMMER 2022

Bulbs that either flower in the autumn, shortly after planting and a few that much prefer early autumn planting despite being spring flowering.

We aim to deliver any orders made from this section in mid August to early September, ahead of orders for the Autumn section. Please order using the form at the end of this section.

ACIS

AUTUMNALIS

Slender wiry green or russet coloured stems, carrying delicate looking white papery bells. They were thought to be autumn flowering forms of the snowflakes (Leucojum) but are now in their own family. Ideal for a trough or container that stays that much drier. Naturally small bulbs, only the size of large peas which get planted close together.

Colchicum autumnale

Colchicum autumnale Album

AMARYLLIS

The Amaryllis and their hybrids flower before they come into leaf in the autumn and remain in leaf during the winter. South African in origin they consequently require a more sheltered position to survive wet, cold British winters. We have some that do well every year at the base of a south facing wall which is (in Somerset) good enough. In colder areas one might need to grow them in pots that one can protect them further. They enjoy a hot summer baking when they are without their leaves and planting them too deep means that the soil might not get warm enough to suit them. These are hybrids but not Hippeastrum (for which the name Amaryllis is often used incorrectly). Hippeastrum are of mixed hybrid origin and generally 'treated' to make them flower in the winter and are not hardy at all so are, in effect, houseplants.

X PARKERI ALBA

A hybrid form (Amaryllis x Brunsvigia) which forms big, rounded bulbs and flowers with apple-white, hugely scented trumpets circling the stem.

Acis autumnalis

COLCHICUM

Easy to grow in reasonably deep moisture-retentive soil, these appear from their summer dormancy without their leaves to flower in the autumn – hence their common name of 'naked ladies'. A pointer to the end of summer, their flowers last incredibly well considering their apparent fragility. The leaves appear in the early spring. They do not need deep planting 3" (8cm) deep is enough – perhaps a little more for ones with the biggest bulbs. They will naturalise effectively, but the mower will have to be restrained until the leaves wither away in June.

Please order early – after the end of September they seem to flower regardless of the conditions

AUTUMNALE

Softly, satin-sheened in mauve. They naturalise most effectively either in sun or partial shade where they often produce several flowers from each corm. An easy British native known as Meadow Saffron, Wychwood Forest has thousands flowering each autumn.

Colchicum speciosum album

 AUTUMNALE
NANCY LINDSAY

Evidently a strain that was first isolated in Eastern Europe and known for its reliability and vigour. The flowers are a fine, plain pink with a faint white line up from the base of each with a darker tube. The foliage is smaller than the species.

Sept 73-27 6" (15cm)
£13.00 for 3

 SPECIOSUM

The best of the larger forms for most gardens, these spread and naturalise effectively. Stronger stemmed and later flowering than C. autumnale with longer flower stems and more richly coloured thick, rounded, rosy pink-lilac petals.

 SPECIOSUM
ALBUM

The very best Colchicum which has been lost to large scale production for many years and was sorely missed. Then last summer I had a call from Scotland where some grew 'nearly wild' – would I like to buy some? Of course! They arrived in greater numbers than I expected and have now had a year in the soft south and should be beauties. Big bold goblet shaped flowers in pure white, ideal for part shade.

 WATERLILY   X AGRIPPINUM

6" (15cm)
£14.50 for 3

A much smaller Colchicum, from a smaller bulb than the others we list and one to treasure in a raised bed or in a trough. The flowers open nearly flat to the soil with pointed tips, covered in wonderful darker pinkish-purple tessellations (chequering). An unusual and special plant of which we only have a small number, but none too difficult if you have the right place.

Crocus speciosus Conqueror

Crocus nudiflorus

Crocus speciosus

CROCUS AUTUMN FLOWERING FORMS

Flowering in the late autumn the Autumn flowering Crocuses bloom as a reaction to the lowering of the soil temperatures (and the re-wetting of the soil) at the end of the summer. The spring flowering forms (listed in the Autumn section of our catalogue) flower as the soil temperatures rise. Some of these are more difficult to grow than others, but C. speciosus should be a feature of any garden providing a dreamy violet splash of colour in late September and October (and is probably the easiest to grow).

NUDIFLORUS

Easy to grow in the garden and even individual flowers popping up are a joy, but difficult to commercialise as they dislike cultivation. Hence rarely offered and likely to be small bulbed. But a fairly tall, dark flowered crocus well able to grow in short grass, they form stolons and so tend to move in the soil and also set seed so one hopes will increase one way or another.

↔ 2" (5cm) but probably much more

Oct 5" (12cm)
77-42 £9.00 for 3

Crocus speciosus Albus

SATIVUS

The source of Saffron: gathered by collecting the tiny bright red stigmata from each flower (it takes half a million per kilo thereby justifying the huge cost of Saffron). They need deep planting in rich soil, in a sunny position and probably need lifting and dividing with regularity to encourage flowering. Their flower production is triggered by suddenly colder nights, our maritime climate does not regularly provide that, which makes guaranteeing one's own Saffron production a bit uncertain.

SPECIOSUS

The easiest autumn flowering crocus. Dramatically effective, deep lilac to purple hues, with bright yellow anthers. Good in light shade or under deciduous shrubs, or in light grass, planted deeply. They will flower later than suggested in their first year, consequent to them having been out of the soil and dried off this summer. Do get enough of them! Suggested planting density 15 per sq. ft.

Gladiolus tristis

Ornithogalum reverchonii

Nerine flexuosa Alba

Romulea bulbocodium

GLADIOLUS

TRISTIS

Native to South Africa, but not quite hardy enough to trust outdoors full time, even here. A very special winter growing Gladiolus with a wonderful scent in the evenings – believe me, it does not scent by day but come the evening the perfume is remarkable. Presumably moths are the pollinator. It really needs a sheltered site in good light, where you can provide protection from temperatures lower than about -5°C when they are in leaf through January and February. The apple white flowers open progressively up the long rush-like stems and produce a generous seed set.

NERINE

FLEXUOSA ALBA

A winter growing species (all the other N. bowdenii forms that we grow are summer growing and sold through the spring catalogue) so these require a bit more shelter. The frilly white petals however last ages in flower and in sheltered gardens are a treat in the autumn.

ROMULEA

BULBOCODIUM

A small crocus-like bulb from the Mediterranean where it grows in sandy or rocky places. A sun lover which we would suggest is best pot grown and brought in for the winter just to keep them drier, some suggest that they don't even need this attention. Velvety open flowers in shades of lilac and purple. We now have too many of them so they are now much reduced.

TECOPHILAEA

Chilean bulbs from a high altitude, so one would expect them to be cold tolerant, but where they come from is relatively dry, and our winters are really too wet for them. If possible, grow them under some protection (particularly from rain) and you'll be amazed by the depth of colour in the flowers. Their blue is like the dazzling displays produced by some exotic butterflies.

CYANOCROCUS

Gorgeously blue. We can only now supply bulbs that are 'unselected' for colour as our supplier of these of 30 years standing has retired. We bought much of his remaining stock but have not been able to allocate enough time to attend to the detail as he did, so some labelling has gone a bit awry. Blue with a pale eye, or some very dark throughout.

TROPAEOLUM

A winter-growing form of these climbing plants, they start to grow in late September and flower in the late spring. Their hardiness is probably limited if temperatures fall below about -5°C for an extended period but they are actually happier grown somewhere cool rather than too warm. If in some doubt grow them in pots with something to climb up and then protect them with some fleece only if required during the very coldest weather. Reports from happy customers suggest that they really do cheer up the late spring.

TRICOLOR

Exhibiting shoals of stunning red, black and yellow flowers that last ages in flower. A climber that starts into growth very early in the autumn so early ordering is a must. One of the most spectacular plants that we sell, and a favourite of mine. The tubers are inconsistent, some round, others long and twisted and vary in their colour and skin finish, all a bit weird.

The following bulbs can be included on either a Late Summer or an Autumn order form as stocks allow.

If you order them alone they will be sent as soon as we can, but order them with anything else and their 'delivery season' will be determined by what else you order. They would all benefit from earlier planting if possible.

Cyclamen coum Album

Cyclamen coum

Cyclamen coum Dark Pink

Cyclamen coum Roseum

CYCLAMEN

These are all hardy, tough and perennial and once established will seed about. If you order and plant them early these Cyclamen will arrive dormant and ready to pop in and then awake in their new circumstances. Ordering them from the Autumn section, means that there will probably be some growth visible on them. These are all from seed, UK grown - mostly our own. Again with the loss of an old supplier the range is diminished as we try to ramp up our own supply.

Cyclamen hederifolium

Cyclamen coum Silver Leaf

Cyclamen repandum

COUM SILVER LEAF

The rounded leaves of C. coum generally show a paler edge, in these that silvering covers most of the leaf so a few tubers planted amongst others with more green leaves increases the variety of the green tapestry, their flowers are mostly pink.

Plants we list which have received the RHS Commendation 'Award of Garden Merit' are now tagged with the trophy symbol. Space does not allow us to add the hardiness rating – please be aware the award applies to the ease of cultivation, excellence and constitution, but not necessarily hardiness.

REPANDUM

Better in more sheltered conditions and certainly needing more shade and leaf mould in the soil, where they need to be planted more deeply. Only properly hardy in the south, though special circumstances may affect that generalisation, small bulbs which need careful handling - I feel that I am using too many caveats! The positives are many - they provide spicily fragrant, deep carmine-coloured flowers in late spring and they do set seed and spread where happy.

AUTUMN FLOWERING FORMS

HEDERIFOLIUM

These tubers may not have flowered last autumn so may be pink or white (though pink will dominate). The petals sweep up and away from the flower and in the spring (and for much of the year after) the ground will be carpeted in their dark, glossy, ivy-leaf shaped leaves, although some will be silvery. They will in time dominate mixed plantings of C. coum where they are planted together.

↔ 6-8" (15-20cm)

Aug/Oct

IRIS

UNGUICULARIS (STYLOSA)

A firm favourite for the winter garden. They need a sunny site and are often found growing in rubble right up against the house wall or in very poor soils, but they will perform even better if the growing conditions are not too harsh. Avoid the inclination to shear off the untidy foliage in the summer, instead rake out some of the dead leaves in the early autumn and give the plant some water and a liquid feed at the same time. It is then that they make their new roots and are initiating their flower buds so that should result in more flowers in the following winter. New divisions need careful planting and firming in, regular watering till established and possibly some protection in their first winter.

UNGUICULARIS

The species plant with pale mauve flowers, the standards slightly paler and more silvery. A tough survivor even in poor soil conditions. They have grown excessively so are reduced in price now to get back some control! They will still be supplied in big pieces.

Narcissus Ziva

U. MARY BARNARD 🏆
The darkest of them all and a glossy marvel in the winter. Tissue-like, velvety purple-blue flowers with white and golden markings on the falls, the foliage shorter and darker than the other forms. Discovered by E.B. Anderson near Algiers in 1962.

LILIUM

CANDIDUM

A loose scaled lily that is better started off early, even in October some are beginning to show their leaves. Inevitably the first orders get the pick of the crop, so ordering from this section has its benefits. Best planted quite shallowly in sunny conditions out of too much wind, often found to be happy in rather poor stoney soils.

↔ 6" (15cm)
June 36" (90cm)
107-114 £7.50 or £20.00 for 3

NARCISSUS

Also see the main Autumn Catalogue pages 36 for the main Narcissus listing. From an early planting these can help overcome the mid-winter blues in the house, but planted relatively late (late December) they are actually easier to care for and to reuse because the foliage does not get so leggy and they can go outside after flowering in March, by when most of the cold has gone. They will still need a hot dry resting phase in August.

PAPERWHITE ZIVA

Early to flower from being forced; we reckon on about eight to ten weeks to bloom from potting, so work your potting date out from when you want them in flower. White flowered and multi-headed, with a huge room-filling perfume. Grow them in good light and at cool temperatures without freezing so that they don't get too tall, only bringing them in to admire at room temperatures for their final flourish. Not reliably hardy.

AUTUMN 2022

Plants and Bulbs to plant in the Autumn, mostly to flower the following spring. Despatch of these items begins in early to mid September with the intention of sending everything on your order in one parcel. For further information see the 'Ordering from Avon Bulbs' section at the back.

You may include plants and bulbs from the preceding section Cyclamen to Zephyranthes to be sent with those that follow as Autumn items.

ALLIUM

Alliums are always welcome in the early summer as the flowers offer height and distinction when most gardens are not quite so colourful. Their exclamation mark shape differentiates them from the plants around them, and those companion plants in turn 'hide' what is sometimes distracting foliage, which (in most of these Alliums) is beginning to yellow at flowering time. They are generally plants of sunny and well-drained soils, and can be used either in dramatic eye-catching sweeps, or else, in a more cottagey style, in isolated small groups to equally good effect. Everyone seems to love Alliums and, knowing that the beneficial insects and bees are struggling nowadays, it is worth a reminder that Alliums provide a fantastic food supply for those insects, especially the late flowering forms. Our beds of A. angulosum, A. glaucum and A. tuberosum shimmer with activity on sunny summer days. Do try out a number of different forms to see which do best in your circumstances. The results of a trial at Wisley have been published in a useful booklet called the RHS Grower Guide on Ornamental Onions.

AMBASSADOR

Beginning to flower in late May these flowers should see one through all of June and into July with very tall stems topped by their mid purple heads about 6" (15cm) across. Very big bulbed plants which benefit from deep planting to ensure that the stems remain firmly upright. Good seed heads follow the main flower show.

ANGULOSUM (PYRENAICUM)

Wonderfully easy to grow plants. Bright glossy green leaved with lots of low pale lilac flowers in the height of summer when butterflies and hoverflies jostle to feed on them. We supply small clumps to be planted 9" (22cm) apart, in the sun where it is not too dry. Divide them again when they are thick.

BASALTICUM SILVER SPRING

Long flowering in that the flowers take an age to fully open atop the slender stems so there is continuing anticipation. White flowered with each topped by what are eventually currant-red seed capsules. The flowers are at their best well after the foliage has started to die away so do grow them amongst other plants to disguise them.

BEESIANUM

Discovered by George Forrest in Yunnan in the early 1900s and named for one of his sponsors, the Bees nursery in north west England. The Liverpool University Botanic Garden at Ness is now located in what was the garden of their head of the firm. This is a very narrow leaved plant with tubular slate blue bells in the late summer. Best as a plant of the rockery or raised bed on account of their size, although they will cope with wetter conditions than that suggests. Plant supplied in clumps.

Dainty chandeliers formed of dozens of small claret pink flowers hanging off the nodding stems so the bees have to hang upside down to get at the flowers, sometimes several heads form in a succession. Easy to grow and seeding themselves in lighter soils in the sun. Delivered as fresh dug flowering size plants rather than dry bulbs. We have an excess so cheaper this year!

CRISTOPHII

If you only ever buy two or three Alliums, this must be one of them. Sculptural flower heads, initially greenish purple, are gradually transformed as they are pollinated into metallic silvery-violet coloured spheres about 8" (20cm) across, all borne on quite stocky stems. The round melon sized heads naturally complement the purples of rampant geraniums or the spikier silvery blues of Lavender. Buff coloured seed heads follow. Plant them 8+" (20cm) apart in sunny well drained soils in borders or even rough grass, they will also grow in a degree of shade, but will be taller when grown in more shade.

GLOBEMASTER

Probably the best of the large headed Allium hybrids with exceptionally long lasting flowers. The first array is replaced by another second flush of their deep violet-purple flowers. The insects still love to feed on them, although despite these attentions they do not form a remnant seed head as they are sterile. Tidier leaved than most, even at flowering time. Plant in well drained soils in good light. Great planted with Astrantia 'Roma'.

Allium lenkoranicum

HOLLANDICUM

Best for bigger gardens, or wherever you might want a more subtle and textured display. These provide that irregularity in colour, height, size and maturity which adds subtlety and charm to any planting, especially one on a bigger scale. Deep lilac to pale purple flowers about the size of an orange. Easy in any free draining soil in the sun, planted about 6" (15cm) apart.

53-08 £4.20 for 5, £7.50 for 10 or £14.00 for 20

HOLLANDICUM PURPLE SENSATION

An intensely deep purple coloured strain, with heads the size of small oranges. Another of that select group of those 'must have' Alliums. They provide purple polka dots to your planting scheme, adding colour, texture and geometric silhouettes to your borders. Derived from a clone these should all be the same hue. The RHS trial report said of them: "an excellent performance and is reliably perennial".

May/ June 35" (90cm)
53-09 £5.00 for 5, £9.00 for 10 or £16.00 for 20

KARATAVIENSE

These are very broad leaved and grow close to the ground with a ruby red margin around the leaf and a white flower tinged pink. Their best use is in full sun on a raised bed or rockery where the foliage provides a very metallic looking and modern effect long before (and after) the flowers.

May/June 10" (25cm)
53-22 £5.00 for 3 or £13.50 for 9

KARATAVIENSE RED GIANT STAR

With the same broad metallic sheened leaves and stature these stand out with a purple-red flower head. It does look a bit exceptional - a bit like one extravert's flaming hair colour might amongst the other grey heads at a garden club talk, getting noticed is what it does!

May/June 10" (25cm)
53-74 £2.00 each

LENKORANICUM

A quirky, wispy plant native to Azerbaijan and reportedly only discovered in 1987, it increases to small clumps fairly readily and increases from seed in a sunny bed in well drained soils. It lasts ages in flower, and for the second half of the year seems never to be without flowers. From division and as growing plants.

Summer 12" (30cm)

MOUNT EVEREST

Probably the best tall white flowered Allium. Grapefruit sized heads top a tall glossy green stem. The leaves persist, so are not too obtrusive at flowering time. Lovely when combined with other strong coloured flowers such as Gladiolus byzantinus, and ideally planted against a dark backdrop, though some planted in the dappled shade of a Laburnum are great. We suggest that they are planted about 12" (30cm) apart.

May/June 36" (90cm)
53-43 £13.50 for 3 or £20.00 for 5

NIGRUM (MULTIBULBOSUM)

Greeny-black ovaries in the centre of each floret provide the reason for the name, though the suggestion of blackness in the name somehow does not sit so well on what is otherwise a creamy white flower! The flower head shape is less rounded and more flattened and they are easily grown in sunny well-drained soils with a dry summer rest.

 OBLIQUUM

These are Siberian in origin so are incredibly tough despite being evergreen. They never really seem to be fully dormant. A product of the cross between A. Purple Sensation (from which it gains its height and deeper colouration) and A. cristophii (which gives it the open structure) with heads about 6" (15cm) across. With such popular and eminent parentage these should be superior and indeed they performed superbly well in the Allium trials at Wisley and were judged "the best in the trial".

Spectacular and eccentric. Emerging early in the late winter these are at some risk in extreme winters but when planted in a warm sunny garden and given a dry warm summer rest after flowering they can be fabulous. Allium sphaerocephalon

Allium siculum

Allium tuberosum

Allium tripedale

Allium Violet Beauty

Allium unifolium Eros

 SICULUM (NECTAROSCORDUM)
 (Now officially in the Allium family)
 Tall stemmed (with a pronounced keel – think of the seam in a pair of tights) leading upwards to dozens of hanging green and burgundy marked bells pendulously arranged in a loose head. They enjoy more shade than most true Alliums and seed about enthusiastically (and for some are a weed) in conditions that they like and have strongly garlic scented foliage when crushed. The bees love them. The dry seed heads look like models of multi-turreted fairy castles.

 SPHAEROCEPHALON
 Butterflies love their egg shaped heads (and at their peak they are about the same size). They emerge as tight, deep green buds in June, turning purple from their tips through July, swaying in the summer breezes on long wiry stems. Woven through a summer border, often as rivers of colour, they visually 'tie things together'. Easy and inexpensive for the effect that they provide, just do plant enough of them for a generous display. We always supply bigger bulbs than are more widely available, ensuring that the flowering will be better as a result. Plant them 3" (7cm) apart or 10-15 per square foot.

 Summer 24" (60cm)
53-33 £6.80 for 15, £13.00 for 30 or £19.50 for 50

 STIPITATUM VIOLET BEAUTY
 A dusty violet colour with flowers 4" (10cm) in diameter, spherical except that the base is flattened. This one also did exceptionally well in the RHS Allium trial where its usefulness as a cut flower (it has a light fragrance) and its increase over the three years of the trial impressed the judges.
 ↔ 12" (30cm)
 May/June 27" (70cm)
53-71 £5.00 for 5 or £9.00 for 10

 TRIPEDALE (NECTAROSCORDUM)
 Like A. siculum above, but with more numerous flowers in a gorgeous soft pink, which emerge like hatchlings from their translucent sheath. Happy in sun or part shade and not as difficult to grow as the price may suggest and certainly no thug, but uncommon and very select. Persistent and increasing in our heavy loam in some summer shade. How should one say the name? I am not sure, but I hope that it should be 'tripe-dali' rather than 'tripe-dale'.

↔ 3-4" (8-10cm)
 June 36" (100cm)
53-25 £3.80 or £10.00 for 3

 TUBEROSUM
 Treated as much a herb as a bulb (like chives) but with a long flowering period through the summer, the white flowers displayed over lush foliage on very wiry stems which persist as dry straw-like markers through the winter. They are multifaceted plants, and brilliant insect feeding stations too.
 ↔ 4" (10cm)

53-38 £7.50 for 3 (small clumps)

 UNIFOLIUM EROS
 Shell pink heads of quite papery and long lasting flowers, about 15 contained within each head. Easy to grow in any sunny and well drained spot, especially the rockery. The small bulbs should be planted quite close together where their massed effect is very attractive.

↔ 2" (5cm)

Anemone apennina

ANEMONE

The flowering of the spring flowering Anemones mark that moment when the weather is on the turn for the better and the stronger light of spring is accentuated by the shiny wet foliage resulting from scudding showers (though these were seemingly absent in Somerset in 2022 and 2022 !) and windy conditions. This is just what they love. They open wide in the sunshine though if the light is only dappled by dint of still bare branches on the trees they won't mind. However they are not all alike even when 'resting': the bulbous (A. blanda) forms form hard, wizened corms, which need an overnight soak before planting and will take a long hot summer in their stride. The rhizomatous forms of wood anemone (A. apennina and the various A. nemorosa) need a cooler, shady (but also dry) rest after they have flowered, so they prefer more shaded, woodland-like conditions and, due to hating exposure to air, the rhizomes will be damp packed in coir when despatched by us.

Anemone nemorosa

Anemone blanda blue

Anemone blanda White Splendour

Anemone blanda Pink Star

APENNINA

An excellent and very pretty plant - I just wish it were more easily produced as I think it more attractive and better than A. blanda in British conditions, but it is not a similarly 'commercialised' plant. In white or shades of blue with many deeply cut petals on flowers held well above soft mounds of leaves. Ideal under big deciduous trees following snowdrops and flowering with the early daffodils with which the colours combine very naturally. Plant the small stick-like rhizomes in small groups 6" (15cm) apart where they will thereafter seed about. I think our strimming - once a year in the early summer, has greatly increased their spread. Home grown and dug-to-order from amongst the roots under the trees here, the damp packed rhizomes are inevitably rather variable in size and tricky to find, hence the cost.

BLANDA WHITE SPLENDOUR

Glaming white petals surround a hub of golden stamens, which when ruffled by the wind, show off their pink-tinged backs. Opening widely in direct sunshine, their flowering is a sure sign that spring has arrived. Compared to the blue forms slightly warmer soils and more direct light suit them better, in too much shade they get rather leggy. They grow from larger hard, irregular corms, which due to a considerable shortage of these bulbs following flooding in Holland last spring will this year be smaller and cut.

ANTHERICUM

LILIAGO MAJOR

Pretty white flowered perennials from southern Europe, known as the St Bernard Lily. They grow from an agapanthus-like crown of thick fleshy roots when more dormant in the autumn, providing for splendid, informal looking plants that thrive in moisture retentive soil in good light. When settled, each plant will carry ten or sometimes twenty flower stems piercing upward each carrying a dozen or more flowers looking like little flared trumpets with yellow stamens, opening sequentially up the stems. Border plants for good fertile soils in the sun.

Camassia leichtlinii Alba

Brodiaea Babylon

Bongardia chrysoqonum

Camassia leichtlinii caerulea

CAMASSIA

Very hardy bulbs of North American origin that love that heavy, often rather poorly drained soil that many other bulbs find too tough to cope with. If your soil is rather too heavy and your summers too wet to get repeat flowering from your Tulips some of these might be a suitable (and more sustainable) alternative, albeit with a narrower colour palette? Suitable for borders or in grassland where one could achieve a full six weeks of interest using a few different varieties.

BONGARDIA

CHRYSOQONUM

A rare bulb with coppery yellow flowers on tall slender stems with very attractive low, grey-green pinnate leaves marked with red, best suited to somewhere sun-baked and dry in the summer. As well as being fully hardy they are also hugely drought resistant and love a hot dry soil. Very special members of the Berberis family with pretty, textured, nut-like tubers.

LEICHTLINII ALBA

Ivory-cream in flower, standing out brilliantly against any dark backdrop and a good contrast plant for the last of the Alliums in May. They spread their seed around freely, and in time sow themselves through the herbaceous border in good cottage garden style. They do not naturally form as big a bulb as the blue C. caerulea and often flower from small juvenile bulbs, ideally planted about 6" (15 cm) apart. These generally flower about 10-14 days later than the 'standard' blue form of C. 'caerulea'.

LEICHTLINII CAERULEA

Especially valuable for being happy in heavier soils and a feature plant for the border in late spring where they make magnificent shows with many erect stems of deep lavender blue flowers, curving skyward from thick clumps when established. They set no seed, increasing as the bulbs split up. Longer lasting flowers result from planting them in some shade and they love clay soils that hold the moisture. Ideal partners might be Polygonatum x hybridum, Maianthemum racemosum or Tellima grandiflora. We supply big bulbs that should be planted with 5" of soil over them, 9" (22cm) apart.

LEICHTLINII AVON'S STELLAR HYBRIDS

A seed raised form, these are the result of hybridisation and selection work done here. The plants exhibit widely varying colours, combinations of purple blue, mauve, greyish, purplish, green and pale pink. We cannot guarantee what you might receive, it is 'pot luck' but many are individually eye-catching and from the seed that they in turn freely produce, who knows what you might raise yourself! The bulbs also vary somewhat in size being dug from our heavy soils - very different from the Dutch grown, machine harvested, graded bulbs from sandy soils that we are more used to.

LEICHTLINII ELECTRA

Large headed with the green bracts giving way to powder blue - lilac flowers. The individual flowers are huge and they form magnificent clumps by gradual division of the big bulbs. They set no seed. Originally, many years ago, the stock came from Beth Chatto's garden. Only available in limited numbers.

Camassia quamash (esculenta)

LEICHTLINII SACAJAWEA

Carrying cream coloured flowers these are a variegated form with a bold cream coloured edge to the leaf in the spring before they flower, this nicely accentuates what is (in Camassia generally) not very interesting foliage. The name honours a native American Indian woman who saved the starving explorers on the Lewis and Clark expedition of 1805 as they crossed America east to west (and back again) for the first time, feeding them the native 'quamash' bulbs. Again several weeks later into flower than C. l. caerulea.

LEICHTLINII SEMPILENA

A tall tower of full petalled, almost fluffy looking, cream coloured flowers. A sterile form of the cream flowered plant that is the species: C. leichtlinii alba. But the benefit of sterility for gardeners is a longer flowering season. They grow better where they receive more sun than shade and are better still where the soils are damp all through spring and early summer. Brown tips suggest that they have been too dry.

QUAMASH (ESCULENTA)

The shortest of all the Camassia, suitable for naturalizing in rough, very late mown grass, or to dot in groups informally in the borders. Much smaller bulbed than all the forms above, these give rise to rich, dark purple-blue flowers with startling yellow stamens. A true meadow plant. The bulbs are often pitted and marked when dormant, though this seems to make no difference to their growth, plant them 3-4" (10cm) apart.

CONVALLARIA

Lilies of the Valley. Spring flowering plants of woodland origins with stringy rhizomes under the soil. They like humus rich soil and part shade but everyone's experience of growing these is different and (as is reported to us) they will grow in the most unlikely places. But the critical commonality is that they do need patience to begin with and tales of them taking 2 or 3 years to settle-in abound. They are all about 6" (15cm) tall when in flower in May.

MAJALIS BORDEAUX

Bigger flowered than the ordinary forms with what are supposed to be darker leaves - but grown here in different conditions (one in sun, the other in shade) that is hard to verify. It has bulked up well from the small patch we started with.

↔ 4" (10cm)
£9.50 for 3

MAJALIS FORTINS GIANT

Larger flowered and taller than the 'common' white Lily of the Valley but equally scented. For sun or shade but in the former they need a more moisture retentive soil. Good, strong, fresh-dug rhizomes (stringy roots) to plant horizontally about 2" deep (5 cm) and twice that apart.

MAJALIS ROSEA

Like small and very exclusive pink pearls, a vigorous form which we know to be tough and productive with lovely pale pink fragrant flowers. Corydalis Blue Panda

CORYDALIS

A family with snapdragon like flowers of which we sell pot grown several of the 'flexuosa' forms. These do not derive from a true bulb so are supplied as growing plants in small pots ready to plant out. They need 'encouragement' to grow away from the compost in which they will be established, tease out the roots a bit, break up the pot shaped root ball and firm them in to your soil so that they root across that soil to compost boundary.

FLEXUOSA BLUE DRAGON

Crocus tommasinianus at East Lambrook Manor

CROCUS SPRING FLOWERING

The C. tommasinianus forms are perfect for planting in light grass or borders, self-sowing and increasing where happy and potentially spreading everywhere. The bees love them and their opening is always a certain sign of the arrival of spring. The hybrid forms of the species C. chrysanthus have been raised for garden use but need more suitable situations than do the 'tommies' which are more bombproof. They are all palatable to mice and squirrels as are some other small carbohydrate rich bulbs, but the 'tommies' are less affected. Mesh baskets (as offered on page 58 of this catalogue) are a great help (with the addition of a home-made wire lid). These buried containers do seem to thwart those opportunistic raiders. The bigger and later flowering C. vernus or 'Dutch' forms of Crocus are much bigger bulbed (so can be planted more deeply) and seem to both persist better and are less affected by rodents. Plant them 3" (8cm) deep.

CROCUS VERNUS 'DUTCH' HYBRIDS

Selected over the centuries, originally from C. vernus (which are wild plants of the mountains of Eastern Europe) these are useful for planting in grassed areas to provide an early spring show (though in February and March the grass will hardly be growing) and being bigger bulbed they can be planted more deeply and would cope with rougher grass cover than lawn grasses imply. Each corm produces multiple flowers. Flowering into the early Daffodil season they can be an effective companion to the sea of yellow in the March garden. Plant them 3" (8cm) apart, or roughly 7-12 per square foot. They do not quite all flower together (which is a benefit) so choose a few varieties to provide a slightly greater spread of flowering. They are Late February and early March flowering 5" (12cm) tall. This picture is of some now naturalised in our copse.

DICHELOSTEMMA

Allium-like bulbs of North West America with some nice stories to go with them. They are obviously very unusual plants to be found in UK gardens but they are hardy and tough enough to grow in lighter and more free draining soils. They grow much as any Allium but flower later. The sap from cut stems can be caustic to the skin.

CONGESTUM

From the far west of America, producing a compact, hen's egg sized flowerhead much like an Allium, formed of very long-lasting lilac-purple flowers, on a slender but very wiry stem. They will grow where one would expect Alliums to thrive.

ERYTHRONIUM

There is only one European form of Dog's Tooth Violet (that common name referring to the shape of the bulb); the others are all American species or hybrids where the common name for them is the Trout Lily (due to the beautifully mottled markings on the leaves). They grow best where they have cool humus rich soil conditions in the spring, usually in dappled shade, with a drier resting phase in what will by then be deeper shade in the summer. They all have interesting leaves and look great with Dicentra, Trilliums, Epimedium and the wood Anemones. Knightshayes Court, or The Garden House at Buckland Monachorum, both have good displays.

Noted for their exceptionally dark leaf markings the flowers are also more deeply coloured than the standard E. dens canis. First named (I believe) by Carol Scott whom I met and stayed with 30 plus years ago near Glasgow. They should increase quite rapidly but none of the E. dens canis is ever in flower for long, especially if it is warm, so great foliage is a strong reason to grow these.

PAGODA

A more vigorous hybrid first discovered in the late 19th Century, it is a bigger plant altogether, with creamy yellow flowers. They are easier to grow than any of the others and one starts with a big finger sized tuber. Ideally planted in some shelter from spring gales (the large leaves tend to crack in strong winds) and ideally in humus rich soils where they will clump up.

REVOLUTUM

A reddish-pink flowered Erythronium, originally from the western seaboard of North America, right through from California to Vancouver. Now they are a welcome highlight in woodland gardens here too. More subtle and refined than E. Pagoda, but if you can grow that one (and most can) then these are a definite possibility. They seed around quite vigorously and mix in very naturally with wood anemones, Anemone apennina, and all those low growing gems of April. A cool damp April is a blessing, otherwise they are too quickly over. Some will be marked with lovely brown flecks on the leaves.

FRITILLARIA

The plants listed across are illustrative of the amazing diversity of the family, from small bulbs of moist riverine meadows to giants of near desert like locations. Sadly rather few of the many species of Fritillaria are well suited to 'ordinary' garden conditions in Britain but, if you can invest some effort into their planting and exercise judgment in where to plant them, the following are to be particularly recommended. Our website does provide more detail on all of them.

Fritillaria acmopetala

ACMOPETALA

A native of the Eastern Mediterranean with one or more hanging jade green bell-shaped flowers characteristically turned back (reflexed) at the tip, with chocolate brown markings. Grow them in a little shade in fairly well-drained conditions, out of the strongest wind.

Slightly smaller statured and possibly better at repeat flowering too. These are orange-red and rather more slender looking than the true F. imperialis.

MELEAGRIS

The ever popular Snakeshead Fritillary. Serpent like with darkly chequered nodding bells, a smattering of which may be paler or even white. In Elizabethan times it was widespread – typically in damp, grassy, late-cut meadows and in moist alluvial soils. So, with that in mind, aim for these conditions to have them increasing and self-seeding yourself. They are best ordered early to allow for timely planting. GLADIOLUS

BYZANTINUS

Rich magenta coloured flowers with white flashes. These are free flowering plants with large strongly coloured flowers, and generally infertile as the plant is tetraploid. They are lovely, persisting colourful cottage garden plants for the early summer, but the leaves do emerge early in the year and in very cold gardens (or in the north) they may need a mulch over winter. There is skulduggery about regarding what is sold under this name. A poor relation to what we sell is G. byzantinus ssp. communis which is often passed off as the same plant and is a good deal cheaper. The two are like chalk and cheese. For sun or slight shade. Plant 4" (10cm) apart.

↔ 4" (10cm)

June 24" (60cm)
88-04 £8.00 for 10 or £14.50 for 20

The 'named' hybrid dwarf gladioli flower in the early summer. Short enough not to need staking, they do not tower over the garden as do the larger forms (those preferred by Dame Edna). These make particularly good cut flowers too. They grow away early, and this may result in the foliage being susceptible to severe late frost, so mulching is a possible requirement in very cold gardens. Plant them in a sheltered site in well-drained soil, 6" (15cm) deep, 4" (10cm) apart on a bed of sharp sand. The winter dormant hybrid forms are also sold in the spring, if yours is a cold garden buy them then instead.

ALBUS

Starry, tapered, gleaming white flowers tinged with green at the throat, a strong-growing favourite of ours and our customers. Do ensure that the soil is well drained and if you have failed before, try them again planted in deep pots protected from the worst of the cold till spring and then plant these out into your sunny border.

HYACINTHOIDES

The family name that covers all the varied 'Bluebells' – they are or have been known at different stages as Scilla and Endymion.

NON SCRIPTA

The English Bluebell. Violet-blue nodding bells which glisten in damp shady glades. Always in demand and providing that perfect moment in April when the woods turn violet, they were particularly good this spring. Self-seeding, so increasing steadily once established. Plant 4" (10cm) deep and 4" (10cm) apart, working on up to 15 per sq. ft.

NON SCRIPTA ALBA

Wild populations of English Bluebells are nearly all violet-blue, but rarely white flowered plants occur and it is from those that these derive. They do stand out in a sea of blue. These bulbs will always stay white and will split and increase below ground, though their seedlings may well be blue.

HYACINTHUS

The Hyacinths below can be potted for use in the house, where they will flower in March and should look magnificent in pots or be planted directly into the garden to flower in March and April. All are tremendously fragrant. They prefer very well drained and sunny situations, reaching a height of 12" (30cm). The skins of Hyacinths can cause an allergic reaction and even if your hands are not itchy after handling them, anywhere more sensitive touched by your fingers can begin to do so. Do take precautions.

These little bulbs often start pushing up one or two stems very early with pretty star shaped flowers, but their main display is reserved for late March and April. They are easy in any reasonably well drained soils and a moderately sunny site and although the leaves can be burnt off in a heavy frost (with an associated garlic smell) they seem to recover in weeks. The named forms are better and more interesting than the widely available species forms which tend to be a bit too invasive (and for which reason we do not stock). The biggest bulbs of the first are the size of a small clementine segment, but the others are much smaller.

Plants we list which have received the RHS Commendation 'Award of Garden Merit' are now tagged with the trophy symbol. Space does not allow us to add the hardiness rating – please be aware the award applies to the ease of cultivation, excellence and constitution, but not necessarily hardiness.

ALBERTO CASTILLO

Vigorous, with very white starry flowers over grey-green foliage which smells of onions when crushed. Longer stemmed, which raises the flowers well above the foliage and they pick well for small posies but to prevent those longer stems from flopping you should plant them in conditions of fairly good light.

IRIS x HOLLANDICA

These are hybrid forms of Iris xiphium that florists use lavishly in the late spring and summer, but the bulbs are reasonably inexpensive and you could easily grow your own? In the garden they are likely to last far longer than cut flowers too! These would be planted 4-6" (10-15cm) apart in sunny conditions and in lighter soils.

IRIS DWARF (RETICULATA)

These are derived from plants native to the Middle East and do best in well drained conditions with a warm dry summer rest. In UK conditions with our usual, but these days more infrequent, summer rain this is not easy to achieve so they sometimes do not do well year on year. It helps to plant them deeply 5" (12cm). The best situation would be a raised bed in the sun with well-drained soil conditions. There you'll be able to admire them up close and smell the scented ones. 15 bulbs will nicely fill a 9" (20cm) planter or pot filled with sharply draining compost for an early spring treat.

Lilium martagon Claude Shride

Lilium candidum

Lilium regale

LILIUM

Lilies would have to come near the top of any list of most gardeners' favourite bulbs. For stature, grace and perfume they are unbeatable, but to ensure longevity one needs to get some things right. Do incorporate plenty of organic matter in the area to be planted, having chosen a site that is of good, probably rich soil, not too dry in summer, and possibly shaded – many lily flowers will last longer in cooler shade. Plant at least 5" deep (except L. candidum). If planting in the confinement of a container, try to ensure regular watering. Lily beetle are a problem in warmer parts. Readily seen as red and black beetles they eat any foliage of the Liliaceae (which includes the Fritillaria). These beetles drop off and hide on the ground if you alarm them, but sneakily picking off the adults and cleaning the messy black 'eggs' off the foliage is moderately effective (and squashing them satisfies a lust for retribution) although Provado used systematically seems to reduce future generations more effectively.

CANDIDUM

The Madonna Lily. These can be included on orders from either Late Summer or Autumn planting, but they are best planted early in the autumn. A loose scaled lily that is better started off early, even in October some are beginning to show their leaves. Inevitably the first orders get the pick of the crop, so ordering from this section has its benefits. Best planted quite shallowly in sunny conditions out of too much wind, often found to be happy in rather poor stoney soils.

REGALE

Familiar and much loved favourites with ivory-white trumpets, flushed with pink on their backs, providing great wafts of beautiful scent. Accommodating in most gardens, either in borders or large deep pots. The autumn planted L. regale bulbs always seem to do better than spring planted ones which is logical as they have longer to root over the winter before they flower and consequently greater anchorage and resources available to them?

July 107-04 36" (90cm) £11.00 for 3

MAIANTHEMUM

BIFOLIUM

An unusual native of northern England. Plants with leaves that look a bit like small Hostas. These are plants for shade with ground covering possibilities in nice, leafy, damp, dappled shade where they can then form a dense mat. The leaves open in the spring with a welcome fresh greenness growing from the small wiry roots. The flowers are like small white plumes.

↔ 3" (8cm)

May 110-04 4" (10cm) £5.00 for 5

Maianthemum bifolium

MATHIASSELLA

A Mexican umbellifer which was first described only in 1954. They are architectural plants and seem to do well in full sun or part shade with green foliage in spring, and in the summer have pink and purple tints. They are evidently sterile here and consequently the flowers last for several months, lime green when they first open but coloured with purple later in the year.

BUPLEUROIDES GREEN DREAM

Unfamiliar plants still, but they have the look of some other more recognisable and favourite garden plants - Hellebores, Angelica and maybe even Euphorbia, so one can see how these have become desirable. Gardeners love long lasting green flowers! Plants from 1 litre pots that ought to settle in this winter and flower next year.

MUSCARI

The 'Grape Hyacinths', and as the name implies some are heavily scented. All do well in the drier, sunny conditions provided under deciduous shrubs in the early spring, with summer shade later in the year. Part of the group of 'Little Blue Jobs', that create the backdrop and provide the 'chorus' to the spring display. The common and weedy 'ordinary' Grape Hyacinth (M. armenaicum) is undoubtedly best avoided - it gives the well behaved Muscari a bad name.

AZUREUM

Probably the easiest to grow and not at all invasive. Tightly packed powder-blue flowers, flared open at their tips, emerging initially as a cone shaped spike but becoming more rounded as more flowers open. For a well-drained sink or rockery or in light soils at the front of a spring border.

NARCISSUS

(DAFFODILS)

The highlight of the April garden in a 'normal' year, though some earlier ones are often welcome and the last will flower into May. Do plant them really quite deeply with 4-6" (10-15cm) of soil over the biggest bulbs (unless otherwise suggested for the smaller forms). Planted deeper they will remain cool and moist in the spring and safe from gardening activity above them in the summer. Do not be tempted to cut back or tidy the foliage after flowering – this period of replenishment of the bulb's starchy food reserves is critical to future flowering. A liquid feed whilst the leaves are still green will benefit clumps in poorer soil, but generally feeding is unnecessary. I would suggest that you plant in groups of the same variety (and particularly any that you 'naturalise') and not a jumbled mixture of varieties – the effect is generally better. Most should clump up from being planted about 4-6" (10-15cm) apart unless we suggest differently, further apart for more 'relaxed' planting.

Divisions: The number in brackets after the name represents the type of flower expressed by its 'division' within the Narcissus family: 1 = trumpet, 2 = large cupped, 3 = small cupped, 4 = double flowered, 5 = triandrus forms, 6 = cyclamineus types, 7 = jonquilla forms, 8 = tazetta forms, 9 = poeticus types, 10 = bulbocodium types, 11 = split corona, 12 = miscellaneous, 13 = species and wild variants (more suitable for naturalising).

The suggested flowering month should be used as a guide only – annual variation can be great, as recent springs have shown.

The flowering height suggested is the height at which the first flowers open, the stems often extend thereafter.

CYCLAMINEUS (13)

An iconic small species, one that is much loved and sought after by many, but they rarely do well in warm, dry, limey soils. Neutral to acid soils suit them better, moist in spring and more shaded in summer. Grow them where they will be happy and seed about. We always sell out of them early.

MORE AND MORE (7)

Although I can't say that I like the name very much, I can see how it occurred to someone, these produce many, many flowers! Each bulb produces 4 or 5 stems with several flowers each. Very low growing and late flowering, ideal for a rockery or in a planter. Naturally small bulbs.

PIPIT (7)

A multiheaded form called a 'reverse' bicolor. These flowers open with all parts a sharp lemon yellow and then fade outwards from the centre of the flower to a paler, creamier colour (most bicolors fade from the tips of the petals inwards). Tough enough to plant in rough grass.

POETICUS RECURVUS (13)

The Pheasant's Eye daffodil. Wild in high alpine meadows in Europe and found gracing old gardens and orchards here. White, with slightly swept back petals, highlighted by a stubby, burgundy rimmed cup. One of the last daffodils to flower and deliciously fragrant too. Very suitable for naturalising but because of its late flowering habit better planted in dappled shade in grass, or in a cool border amongst other plants.

RIJNVELD'S EARLY SENSATION (1) 🏆

Bright yellow throughout with a short, flared trumpet. This variety's outstanding quality is that it really does flower in the garden around New Year, sometimes earlier. It is going over when the main daffodil season begins. They provide a blast of spring in the middle of winter, even before the snowdrops. Plant them where they might be a bit protected from wintery gales.

POLYGONATUM

The Solomon's Seal family. Hardy perennials that grow in most situations without any attention, preferring moisture-retentive, heavier soils best of all. They do get quite a bit taller in shade. Their only downfall is their appeal to the Gooseberry Sawfly caterpillar which strips the leaves in June in some gardens. There is now an organic nematode spray available against them.

BETBERG

Named after the German village in the Black Forest near Laufen where it was first found. The stems and leaves a dark chocolate brown when they emerge (as long as they get direct sunlight) against these the white flowers are a marked contrast. As the season progresses the leaves become more olive green.

SCILLA

The smaller Scillas, often sold in larger multiples, are rarely stand-alone performers, but they are the unmissable and necessary chorus along with the Anemones and Muscari, supporting the prima donnas of the bulb world, so you shouldn't be without them. Their preferred situations do vary widely. We have also now bowed to the Plantfinder and the nomenclature Police and are including the Chionodoxa in this section.

The spring bulbs generally exhibit a huge range of bold shapes and strong colours. As a result, if one does not follow a colour theme or stick to a limited palette one can find that the whole effect can look a bit haphazard. A way to help with this is to use a range of the 'little blue bulbs' to create a unifying backdrop. This ties the louder colours together and provides a steady consistency. Any of the Scilla, Anemone, Puschkinia and Muscari are the bulbs that I have in mind and perform this role, but you could use other non bulbous plants as well such as the later flowering Brunnera or Myosotis (Forget-me-not).

LUCILIAE (CHIONODOXA)

Multifunctional small bulbs, they can go into your beds of perennials or be allowed to seed about in rock gardens in the sun or part shade, where they combine well with the daffodils, grape hyacinths, crocuses and other small spring bulbs. They can also be naturalized in grass (though mowing too early and too short needs to be avoided). Brilliant blue with white centres. TRITELEIA

Early summer flowering bulbs, also known in the past as Brodiaea but now more accurately Triteleia. They come from north-west America. So often we are told by folk who see them in flower that they look like miniature Agapanthus, to which they are unconnected. Their papery blooms are a lasting pleasure, with up to 25 flowers per stem. Plant in well-drained soil and in good light, 4" (10cm) deep and 2" (5cm) apart.

SPECIES TULIPS

The species types tend to have small bulbs, typically about the size of an almond. They are particularly grown for their bright bold colours, mostly in April and early May and because they often persist better from year to year (even increasing in the right conditions) than do the bigger hybrid forms. In villages nearby there are examples of several colonies that I see growing and spreading. They are sun lovers and don't want it too wet, particularly in the summer when the bulbs are resting. They are attractive to mice and squirrels looking for the high levels of the carbohydrates in the autumn, if that might be a problem there is mention (under the Crocus heading) of a way of keeping them protected and the same applies here.

BIGGER HYBRID TULIPS

Arranged in broad groupings that place similar shaped varieties together these are the bigger bulbed hybrids more suited to planting in borders and containers for a colourful addition to your garden in April and early May generally. If planting in containers do remember that in the spring when the plants are growing vigorously they will need lots of water, rainfall alone is rarely enough. Liquid feed them occasionally and (if the container can be spared) allow them to go dormant in situ and then put the pot on its side for the summer in the shade to keep the bulbs dry. Summer rainfall and wet, warm conditions are the death knell for tulips.

FOSTERIANA TULIPS

(Group 13) Earlier flowering than the main Tulip display, large flowered on sturdy stems and available in lovely pastel colours. They need planting about 5" (12cm) apart and are equally suitable for containers or borders. Always well skinned bulbs.

EXOTIC EMPEROR

Double petalled in white and when about to flower looking somewhat rose-like with the white buds clasped by intriguing green bracts. Where we have seen it in gardens it has persisted for years on thin stoney soil.

FLAMING PURISSIMA

Cream coloured when they first open with just a hint of pink at the edges of the petals. This becomes increasingly dominant as the flower matures, feathering gracefully in from the edge of the petals which are eventually mostly red when fully developed, with dark anthers.

One of my favourites with quite long flowers in pale orange with pretty, green shading at the base. Good for bold contrast and great in combination planted with Purissima for an early flowering twosome. Picture taken at Great Dixter.

PURISSIMA

Opening a pale primrose yellow, about which we receive a number of phone calls each year wondering whether a packing mistake has occurred, they turn through creamy shades to pure white and then in late March sunshine they open wide to reveal dramatic mascara-black anthers. Strong stemmed over bright green leaves.

MID SEASON TULIPS

The Triumph (Group 3) and Darwin (Group 4) tulips all flower at roughly the same - we used to say mid to late April and early May, but in our fickle climate this is just a guide, they now often flower earlier than that and the frequency of that happening seems to only increase. These would be ideally planted about 5" (12cm) apart and are very well suited to the open garden in borders, or containers.

ANNIE SCHILDER

Warm rose-orange when in bud, then the flower opens and pales to a lighter shade with some yellow at the petal edges. Broadly bowl shaped with a lovely perfume that seems to come with many of the orange tulips. Dating back to the 1920s this is one that has been around a while.

A variant on the Calgary model with a prominent yellow flush to the outer petals, we find them useful at flower shows as with such short stems they do not flop over during the show, so at the front of borders or close to the edge in big pots these too could help your display?

FLAMING FLAG

White with broad raspberry flames from the base. The white with crimson mix is like an expensive ice cream, absolutely perfect in combination with the pink and white apple blossom that is out at the same time. Pictured with T. Havran. A few of these tulips go a long way.

Exhibiting broad flashes of red over what is, when they first open, quite a yellow background. This soon turns white for a stronger raspberry and vanilla contrast. Reminiscent of the tulips illustrated in the paintings by the Dutch Masters at the height of the Tulip mania.

HAVRAN

Darker than plum in some lights, with a grape like bloom dusting the petals, these are not quite as dark as Queen of Night but have a more pointed shape and would open earlier, so they could start off your dark theme. Often multiheaded with more than one flower to a stem.

HEMISPHERE

These change colour as the flowers mature so the effect is one of gradual evolution, each flower developing its freckling and faint stripes at a slightly different rate. The whole result is a range of warm colours from white through to raspberry. Most tulips are pretty uniform, these are less so, which I like, but do plant enough of them to get the effect. A supply error by the grower in 2021 resulted in everyone ordering Hemisphere being sent the wrong Tulip – one called Vendee Globe, in line with our guarantee we will replace those, so if you were one of those customers we will add them free of charge to your order.

PAUL SCHERER

Strong stemmed, with slightly grey-green foliage contrasting with the exceptionally dark cup-shaped flowers. I love the possibilities that tulips provide to allow one to play with colours in a way that no other plants allow. As dark as Queen of Night and probably with a stronger stem these are better than dark chocolate.

PRINSES IRENE

An earthy mix of oranges, marmalade and purple, and unlikely as it seems they work brilliantly together. This is a great favourite, less affected by poor weather with its reddish marked leaves on short stems. Add in a huge scent and one can see why it is so popular. See also 'Orange Princess' which is a double form of the same tulip.

LILY FLOWERED TULIPS

(Group 6) Characterised by their longer stems and that refined 'hour glass' shape to the flower, waisted when in bud and opening up in the sun with pointed tips. They are great in flower borders, and in tall containers which seem to exaggerate the stem length.

BALLERINA

Soft tangerine coloured flowers, though different lights and differing levels of UV light seems to result in some variation in the shade from year to year. One of my favourites (and in that I am not alone), I particularly love its scent when warmed in the sun. The tangerine hue also goes perfectly with all the leafy greens, altogether very eye-catching, with a heady perfume.

PARROT TULIPS

(Group 10) Exuberance is the greatest asset of this group, with flowers that seem to be overflowing with frilled or fluted petals. Dramatic is the best way to describe them. Wonderful to use as part of a fantastical flower arrangement. Big and heavy headed, best in good light and in some breeze which will shake the rain from the multitudinous petals.

BLACK PARROT

The unopen flower buds seem to be clutched in a green fingered grip and when it escapes to flower the dark chocolate purple petals seem to erupt in a cockscomb of frilled excess, a dark favourite indeed.

ORDERING FROM AVON BULBS

Generally: This catalogue is valid through the remainder of 2022 and expires in December. The prices are for single bulbs unless it says otherwise, and can be found under each description. VAT is included in our prices at the prevailing rate. Please remember that this catalogue was written in June when bulbs we offer are listed in the expectation, not the certainty, that we can supply them. Nature, the weather, and the perishability of living bulbs means that we sometimes cannot supply things that we list, despite our best intentions. If that happens we make no substitutions for items out of stock without contacting you for authority unless they are from our Collections, within these we do make suitable substitutions if required.

If, when you get your parcel, you are concerned at all by its contents please contact us as soon as you can. We do occasionally make mistakes, but we do make no specific guarantees about our bulbs except that we believe them to be viable, suitable and correctly named. We cannot guarantee flowering - though we would expect it in the first season from the vast majority of the bulbs supplied under reasonable growing conditions.

Ordering: You can order by post or phone. Alternatively you can browse this catalogue but place your order online using the Quick Order facility on our website. Whichever way you do it we will acknowledge your order, ideally by email but if not, by post. Please check that your order has been correctly entered onto our system.

Paying: Please provide a means of payment with your order. This could be your credit or debit card details (the card payment is then taken as the parcel is despatched), similarly a Not to Exceed cheque – made out like a normal cheque but undated and with no values. Across the top of the cheque you instead write “Not to Exceed £XX” where the value is a slightly greater than the amount you expect to pay. We will then complete it at the time of despatch for the correct total. Or a normal cheque for what you believe is the right amount (which we will bank when the order is placed). If the card payment is not authorised at the point of despatch your order will be held up whilst we contact you and obtain your correct card details.

Delivery – When? There may be some delay before we can send you your order. Orders are dealt with in receipt order in their season and when all the items are ready to be sent.

How much? The basic postage charge is £5.95 for all parcels within mainland UK, but there are exceptions. For addresses in the Scottish Highlands, the Scottish islands and Island destinations such as the Channel Islands, Isle of Wight, Isle of Man and Scillies we may need to add a surcharge dependant on parcel weight, these are generally sent by Royal Mail or ParcelForce, but these require a trip to the Post Office 3 miles away.

In detail: ‘Mainland’ UK: Parcels under 2 kg are sent by the Royal Mail. Parcels heavier than 2 Kg will be sent to mainland UK addresses with our carriers, DPD, on a next working day service (no deliveries on a Saturday). Providing us with your email address will result in a message from us to confirm despatch of the parcel (whoever the carrier) and will also result (for the parcels sent with DPD) a further advisory message to allow you to track the delivery. From DPD also (if you provide a mobile telephone number) you will be sent a text message telling you exactly when your parcel will be delivered (to within an hour) and you can reply to this to change that time slot. Whichever service we use we do recommend that you provide us with Safeplace leaving instructions. The delivery will then not require your signature but will be left where you nominate.

Other ‘Mainland’ Destinations

For Destinations in the Highlands and Islands and the remoter parts of Britain: see the paragraph under How Much?

Europe & Northern Ireland: Sadly, due to the cost of phytosanitary inspections and other issues we are not accepting orders from Europe or Northern Ireland.

Collecting your Order: You may like to collect your order from the nursery or at a show we are attending (with two weeks’ notice preferably) and avoid a delivery charge. This can be arranged for a mutually convenient moment when the bulbs are available. Please arrange such collections before the end of October.

What3Words. Getting a parcel to the right address and even to ensure that it is left in the expected location is becoming more and more important. If DPD cannot find your address they are more and more taking it upon themselves to leave parcels at Pick up Shops, which may not be located within a suitable distance and might cause you additional inconvenience. DPD understandably want to reduce their time and fuel use and to improve their first time deliveries. At the moment as long as you provide us with an email address and/or a phone number you should get an alert as to when a delivery will be made within one hour’s time slot of the expected delivery date. But technology now allows you to improve the chances of them finding you easily at the first attempt.

The What3Words app divides the world up into 3m squares and allocates each of those with unique but randomly generated three words. Our office steps (our own favoured delivery point) are located by hairspray. thudding. moral - not as catchy or memorable as Friends. Romans. Countrymen I grant you, but it works. So PLEASE, if yours is an address where you know that there have been problems for parcel couriers in the past – maybe the street numbering is not consistent (or your house has no number), a rural address where the roads are not well marked or the vegetation covers the signage do consider installing the app to determine the three words that mark your favoured delivery spot and provide these as your delivery instructions – which could be: “In the porch: ruler. drone. driven” and the delivery might work even better! (This is for an address in Carnarvon, Western Australia, so best not use that?!)

DPD now give you the opportunity to add your What3Words address to your Profile in their app and also a photo of the front of your house, so once you have found your What3Words address, please consider adding it on there and they should be able to find you first time, every time

Five Year Diaries

We have revamped and reprinted our Five Year Diary. It is now illustrated by 12 black and white images all taken in our locality, reflecting the seasons where they are used.

Spring pictures of the flooded levels around Muchelney, summer pictures of Glastonbury Tor, autumn pictures of the cider apple harvest and then on the cover a beautiful drone shot in colour of Burrow Hill, a very local landmark taken at dawn on a New Year's morning when the trees were covered in a hoar frost. The dated pages have not changed so as you fill in an entry for any day you also see what was written on that day up to four years back. So whether you are a weather watcher, a film buff, a vegetable gardener or a new Mum, this is a great memory builder.

Finished in a wipe-clean cover and spiral bound it weighs 770g and measures 6" x 9" (15 x 23.5cm) sent wrapped in a purpose made book sleeve. They can be started at any time.

£22.00 each including P&P.

Peat Free?

There is a lot of discussion in the Press and elsewhere about the use of peat in horticulture. We did use a proportion of peat in our own compost mix until fairly recently but have over the years been reducing that proportion and replacing it by coir in particular as well as bark based materials. This has been reasonably successful and we have now not used peat for a while.

Mesh Baskets

We have long suggested the use of aquatic baskets to contain special bulbs in the garden. This helps to keep them from 'wandering', means that you can move them all at once without excessive disturbance (and your own home-made lid) offer protection from pests. The plants within can root out into the surrounding soil but not escape. Good for small bulbs and special snowdrops. These are rugged and long lasting pots from the Finofil range.

We can offer 2 sizes, both cylindrical:

14 cm diameter x 10 cm deep (1 litre)

668-02

£4.50 for 3

23 cm diameter x 13 cm deep (3.5 litre)

669-03

£3.00 each or £8.50 for 3

New Unused Snowdrop Pots

We recycle and reuse the pots in which the snowdrops have been grown, but we do get asked for pots by keen Galanthophiles who might be growing their own snowdrops to sell or give away. We try not to encourage the growing of snowdrops in pots long term, but of all the pots we have used over the years these seem the most suitable for single snowdrop bulbs. They are 9cm square and 12.5cm deep with good drainage holes and of a robust construction and only available in black!

Sent with any order they will not incur additional postage charges, sent alone please allow £3.00

Seeds from Avon Bulbs

We have a seed box which travels to the shows and from which customers can pick out seed packets that they might like to purchase. The range is small and generally reflects the plants that we have grown and are showing to associate well with the bulbs on the display (but the annuals flower from seed very much more quickly than bulbs).

But many of our mail order customers do not see us at the shows and may like the chance to buy a packet or two? Availability may be limited depending on the demand at the shows!

Average seed contents: 20

Allium cernuum

Claret pink flowered plants of reasonably well drained locations in full sun. Of North American origin and hardy in the UK, self sown seedlings spreading and thickening one's clumps. Summer flowering about 18" (45 cm) tall with leaves that persist for much of the year. The flowers are good for beneficial insects. They may take 3 years to flower from seed, some will flower in their 2nd year

T77-003

Average seed contents: 50

Camassia leichtlinii 'Avon's Stellar hybrids'

Hardy North American plants, Camassia all like heavy soils in sun or part shade. They flower in late April or early May, (after the blue flowered forms which produce little or no seed). The flowering plants are 24-26" tall (60-90 cm). Colours will vary - pink, lilac, blue, cream and green.

T77-024

Average seed contents: 15

Cerinthe major 'Purpurascens'

A hardy annual from the Mediterranean region, known as Honeywort. An aristocratic border plant which is beautiful and versatile. It is adored by bees and is much favoured as a cut flower. It has glaucous leaves with interesting purple bracts and bell shaped flowers from May to September.

T77-004

Average seed contents: 15

Dahlia coccinea var palmeri

Single orange-red flowers in late summer on a plant which exhibits very dissected 'frothy' foliage. The plant can be large, the seed was collected from an established plant about 7' tall. Dahlias like a rich fertile soil and need planting in the sun. They may need a mulch (or to be lifted) in cold gardens, but the species forms seem hardier than the hybrids. These should flower in their first season.

T77-006

Average seed contents: 25

Gladiolus tristis

A beautiful South African species that flowers in April/May in Britain with wonderful pale straw coloured flowers with pretty green highlights and a good perfume in the evenings. 3-4' (30-40 cm) tall. They will need a sheltered situation in cold gardens or cold districts, but if they can be grown in a favoured spot they will set seed and increase. They are in leaf through much of the winter when they will cope with temperatures down to -3°C.

T77-008

Average seed contents: 80

Nicotiana mutabilis (Ornamental Tobacco)

A striking tender plant up to 5' (1.5m) with showers of white flowers which turn through pink to a deep magenta as they mature. The effect is spectacular with both colours present on the plant together. Flowers in the late summer. If a plant is overwintered (in frost free conditions) flowering is much earlier and more profuse the second year.

T77-027

Average seed contents: 15

Nectaroscordum siculum

Closely related to Alliums (the ornamental onion), originally from Asia minor and Mediterranean these have tall smooth stems on which there open dangling bell shaped flowers in pink, purple and green. When dry they stand erect. The whole plant is very garlic scented when handled. They grow best in lighter soils in sun or part shade and are happy growing in grass. They flower in the early summer about 30" (75cm) tall.

T77-005

Average seed contents: 20

Orlaya grandiflora (White Lace Flower)

A plant of meadows, vineyards and olive groves in the Mediterranean. Fern-like foliage and lace-like white umbels, with the outer petals larger than the inner. 18-24" tall (45-60cm). An easy to grow annual setting seed that you can collect and grow.

T77-026

Average seed contents: 50

Pimpinella major rosea

Deep pink umbels of small flowers, they look like a pink flowered cow parsley. Blooms in May/June, ideally in the sun or light shade, 40" (100cm) tall. Sow the seeds in the autumn in ordinary garden soil or gritty compost (as they require chilling to break the dormancy) and overwinter the seed tray outside. They may not germinate until the spring. Prick out into small pots when the seedlings are large enough to handle and when these plants are large enough themselves plant into their final position.

T77-010

Average seed contents: 15

Tulbaghia cominsii x violacea

Long flowering perennial of South African origin. Long thin leaved foliage, onion scented when crushed. Purple - pink flowers from June to October, 18-24" (45-60 cm) tall. Seedlings may vary, due to the hybrid nature of the plant. Plants flower in their second year. Very good patio plants in planters, enjoying warm conditions and very drought tolerant. In cold areas mulch plants in the ground in winter and protect pots from extended freezing temperatures. Hardy outside to about -10°C.

Lunaria annua
Chedglow

Hardy biennial flowering April to early May with wonderful chocolate leaves and lilac flowers, growing to 3' (1 m) or a bit more. Decorative seed heads persist with translucent discs that can be used in dried arrangements.

777-028

Average seed contents: 10

Lunaria annua
Corfu Blue

Hardy biennial, flowering in the spring often earlier than other Lunaria, with purple-blue flowers on purple flushed stems, growing to 3' (90cm) tall and a spread of up to 30" (75cm). The seed cases are distinctive as papery silvered seed heads. These may hybridise with other Lunaria close by. The leaves are browsed by rabbits.

777-014

Double Lilac

777-011

Double Pink

777-012

Double Shiraz

Papaver somniferum

Fully double flower heads of various colours. June flowering about 36" (90cm) tall. May need staking in windy gardens. They are plants of open, sunny situations in well drained soil and are hardy, but annual, so you will be reliant on falling (or collected) seed for future years. Self fertile, but some slight variation in flower colour may occur.

Tulipa sprengeri 🌷

May flowering species tulip, now unknown in the wild. Red flowered, often verdigris marked on the outside with contrasting golden anthers. About 18" (40cm) tall. May take 3-4 years to flower, but avoid disturbance in the area. Once flowering will self seed. Bulbs flower when grape sized or larger.

Maxiflex Gardening Gloves

We have now extended the range of gloves that we offer. We previously only offered them in sizes 7 and 10, and whilst they are elasticated that was not good enough! They are now available in the intermediate sizes as well so remeasure your hands (details on the website) and see what now fits better and add a pair or two to your order? They remain at the exceptional price of £6.50 each or £18.50 for 3.

Measuring the circumference of your hand as indicated choose the size of glove you need:

Circumference " / (mm)	Glove Size	Item Code	Cuff Colour
7" (178 mm)	7	669-02	Red
8" (203 mm)	8	669-03	Orange
9" (229 mm)	9	669-04	White

Features of the Website

If you have seen a plant, or read about it somewhere and want to order it, but it is 'Out of Season' you can 'Register an Interest' by putting in your email address and the next time that we have that plant ready to order you'll get an email to say that you can look again with a view to ordering that item.

There is also a Quick Order Form function. If you have found items that you wish to order in the catalogue you just need to put their code number (as printed alongside every item in the catalogue ie Iris bucharica 103-09) into the Search field and then go to the Selection Option (below that) to be shown the pack sizes which you might order and then Add them. Once you have completed your list go to Add items to your basket and they will do just that. Easy!

You can buy our Gift Tokens through the website: Just click on Shop to access the Gifts and Vouchers section where you can make an order. The recipient can easily redeem the voucher which will be sent to them against a purchase either on the website or by phone.

There are also some items that we generally can only offer in smaller numbers and do not themselves justify space in the catalogue (or get left out for reasons of space). These are offered on the website without making it into the catalogue.

Dormant Snowdrops 2022

We publish a list (circulated as an email to those that have requested it and thereafter added to the Website) of our dormant snowdrops as they become ready to plant in August/ September. If you wish to be added to this email address list please contact us.
