DID YOU NOTICE?

For several years now, we've featured the Pantone Color of the Year in our catalog. You'll find this year's choice, Living Coral, in the color blocks behind headers and logos, and in the text that introduces each genus.

If you're unfamiliar with the COTY, a bit of background: In 1963, the company developed a patented color matching system for paint, print and textiles, allowing for consistency and clear communications. The Pantone Color of the Year is an influential (and sometimes controversial) pacesetter for fashion world-wide.

Why does it matter to us—or you? Simple: Our industry revolves around color. As growers of (mostly) hardy plants, we have mixed feelings about this, but more and more, even perennials are marketed as “living decor.”

Living Coral is everywhere, in clothing, furnishings, and the latest decor for home and patio. Flowers and foliage that play well with it, in harmony or in contrast, are in demand.

That's why it matters. That's why it's all through this catalog, not just on this page. Keep it in mind as you make your selections for your lineup.

THE ROAD AHEAD

Fantasy writer C.S. Lewis, in a realistic frame of mind, wrote, “Isn't it funny that day by day nothing changes, but when you look back, everything is different.”

Isn't that a pretty good description of plant growth? You sow seeds, or stick cuttings, and for a while, nothing changes. But over time, everything is different. You didn't get to actually see the changes as they occurred, but those seeds and cuttings are no more. They've become entire plants.

That quote also describes our industry. Here we are again, greeting a new season, a new beginning, a new catalog. It feels a lot like last year, but much has changed—in our businesses, and between these covers. More will change this year. While they're happening, we sometimes miss the changes that, in hindsight, proved world-altering.

At Emerald Coast Growers, our mindset is always to be proactive. We want to be the change that's coming next. To that end we've invested heavily in our future, and yours. Just look at our Breeding and Research & Development efforts on page two.

Of course we watch, and react to, what's happening around us in the present. And of course we're mindful of what's worked, and what hasn't, in the past. But you can't drive a car, or a business, steering only by mirrors, hindsight and peripheral vision. The most important story is the one in the windshield. Action trumps reaction.

Our focus is forward. Our aim is to be the change that's coming next. Thank you for joining us on the journey. Whatever else changes, your success remains our driving motivation.

GREAT NEW PLANTS ARE NO ACCIDENT

Every time consumers visit a garden center, they expect to find new and improved plants. As sure as new SUVs adorn the dealer's showroom every fall, new and different cultivars will brighten the garden center bench every spring. And you help make it so.

Industry insiders often wonder: Do our ultimate customers know, or care, how it works? Like a magic act, a lot goes on behind the curtain to make all that color appear. And we're the moving parts in the hidden supply chain.

That chain starts with an idea. It starts with breeders.

Breeding

A happy accident, like a spontaneous sport or a bee cross, may result in a good new variety. But as a rule, new plants don't just happen. They're the result of careful, meticulous breeding and research work.

At Emerald Coast Growers, we're serious about bringing you truly improved plants. We work with a wide range of breeders, from mavericks to multi-nationals with whole New Plant departments. And we're not just in the audience.

R&D

We're part of that effort ourselves. A new block of greenhouses is up and running at our grass farm, designed for and dedicated to research and development.

Here, we refine production protocols and tweak growing environments for greater efficiency. We audition potential introductions, exposing hidden differences between similar varieties, so we can confidently offer the best performers.

Great new plants have to work for every link in the chain. There's math, method and machinery behind the magic that conjures all that wonderful color at retail.

Let's join forces. Together, we can keep the magic coming and enhance America's landscapes—and your bottom line—for years to come.

MIGHT AS WELL JUMP

If asked to name three safe, traditional perennials that everybody knows and grows, what would you say? Rudbeckia 'Goldsturm'? Coreopsis 'Moonbeam'? Echinacea 'Magnus'? How about Salvia May Night, or Heuchera 'Palace Purple'?

All are appropriate choices, familiar and well established. But once upon a time, those safe, reassuring names were brand new, unknown, and a little scary. Growing them required a leap of faith, hoping your customers would jump with you.

"You can't test courage cautiously," wrote Annie Dillard. But with our liners, paradoxically, you can keep your feet firmly planted and still make leaps of faith. Grow your traditionals, and try something scary. One of this year's new things might just elbow an erstwhile safe bet right off your bench.

Our selection of herbaceous starter plants ranks among the industry's most comprehensive, and most discerning. Every year we winnow here, augment there, making our lineup leaner in places, more muscular in others. The NEW! label in the pages ahead will help you make those leaps with as much faith as possible.

ORNAMENTAL GRASSES

YOU KNOW OUR GRASSES BECAUSE WE KNOW OUR GRASSES.

We don't often pat ourselves on the back, but we're pretty darned good at grasses.

Nearly 30 years ago, Emerald Coast Growers opened for business propagating ornamental grasses exclusively. Our lineup has since expanded dramatically into other arenas, as is evident in the preceding pages.

Nonetheless, all these years later, we're still widely known as "the grass company." That image has its upside, and its downside. It's frustrating to think some of our valued customers, or potential customers, might be overlooking our perennials and succulents.

Then again, it's pretty flattering that a category as diverse and challenging as ornamental grasses is our signature product. That's the side we choose to focus on.

HOW DIVERSE?

Grasses and grass-like plants are found on every continent—even Antarctica. Our ornamentals range from tiny four-inch Acorus to soaring 14-foot Erianthus. They represent over 30 genera.

To tame such a wide gamut, funnel them through production and calendar windows and make them all work for you takes a skill set ranging from mundane to arcane. Producing ornamental grass liners is like propagating any other crop—except when it's not.

HOW CHALLENGING?

Some cooperative species require merely a straightforward sowing of high-yield seed. Others demand a complex, multi-stage protocol involving laboratories, microscopes and careful coaxing. With still others, the vigorous, consistent propagules you expect are achievable only through a lengthy process, over a year total, with a season in the field and labor-intensive division by trained hands.

In short, grasses aren't just one crop but a category with lots of specialized needs. And we'll do whatever it takes to mold this multifarious lot into forms that will do your bidding, where and when you need them.

Because, after all, we're the grass company.

Miscanthus (Maiden grass)

Miscanthus is a premier group of ornamental grasses, favorites of gardeners and landscapers for many years. The genus contains literally hundreds of cultivars. M. sinensis, the major commercial species, forms large clumps of leaves that grow upward, then cascade gracefully outward. The showy flowers are composed of many small spikelets with needle-like awns of beige, red, or pink. These finely divided parts catch sunlight to glow beautifully, especially when lit from behind.

There are three basic foliage options: Solid green, longitudinally variegated, and horizontally banded. Foliage may turn bronze, red, or gold in the fall, and holds up well through winter. Miscanthus can be used alone as specimens, or massed for screens, hedges, and backgrounds. The plumes make long-lasting cut flowers. Spring and fall are both appropriate planting times. Ideal conditions include full sun to bright shade, and fertile soil. They grow well near water, and require irrigation in hot, dry conditions.

×giganteus (Giant miscanthus)

A picture says a thousand words.

Plant tags have tremendous power. A plant in its prime at the height of the season will sell itself, but tags help close the deal anytime. Our color picture tags make your ornamentals' potential tangible, showing your customers a beautiful, mature plant even when the real thing isn't at its peak. Finally, tags aren't just a pretty face: they provide the practical growing information your customers need to succeed.

Ask for picture tags with your next order.

DORMANT PLANTS

In winter and early spring, you may open our boxes and find starters with brown leaves, or even no leaves. What's wrong? Probably nothing. Your plants are simply dormant.

Perennials rest in winter, storing precious energy in their roots, ready to push out new growth when warm weather returns. It's natural for foliage to turn brown or drop off. Examine the roots. They should be firm and fleshy, not soft and mushy.

Most perennials benefit from a cold period, and some absolutely require it to flower. Vernalized plants often out-perform those that have had it too soft. If you're unsure, just wait. Keep your trays evenly moist, NOT sopping wet, in a warm, bright house. When clear signs of life appear, pot up as usual.

Don't frown at the brown. Brown is beautiful. Like the rest of the world, your starters will be lush and green again before you know it.

CUSTOM GROWN ORDERS

Don't see what you want in a size that suits your needs? We will custom grow, year-round, many perennials and ornamental grasses in sizes other than our spec production. Quantity restrictions apply.

Please call or email your request. We will provide a price quote and earliest ready date for your order.
