Successful Companion plants

The perennials listed here were indicated as very good companion plants according to several studies. We suggest twenty companion plants for tulips and daffodils, ten for hyacinths and special bulbous plants. These lists are far from complete since many more could also be good options. The perennials listed here, however, grow well at various locations and under various climate conditions.

Companion plants for tulips

Perennials particularly suited for this purpose attain their height fairly quickly in the spring and produce substantial foliage that will hide the sight of the tulip foliage.

- Amsonia
- Geranium
- Inula
- Thalictrum
- Dicentra
- Veronica longifolia
- Helianthus
- Kalimeris
- Thermopsis
- Veronicastrum

Companion plants for daffodils

Perennials particularly suited for this purpose attain their height fairly quickly in the spring and produce substantial foliage that that will hide the sight of the daffodil foliage. This list contains only a few of many perennials that would be very suitable for combining with daffodils. In other words; daffodils can easily compete with perennials.

- Alchemilla
- Chelone
- Geranium
- Hosta
- Darmera
- Hemerocallis
- Ligularia
- Brunnera
- Lysimachia punctata/ciliata/clethroides

Companion plants for special bulbous plants

- Aruncus
